

The Association of New Jersey Recyclers (ANJR) is a non-profit organization promoting environmental sustainability through sound resource management and recycling strategies. ANJR sponsors workshops, events, and professional development programs and provides information through its website and publications. ANJR's membership includes individuals from the public and private sectors, local government officials, the recycling industry, and the business community. The New Professionals Network, a subcommittee within ANJR, offers specialized programs for entry-level professionals in the recycling industry, providing opportunities to engage with experienced professionals and develop leadership skills for positive change in recycling across the state.

Join ANJR now as a member of the New Professional Network and receive a special introductory offer of 50% off your usual one-year membership. Membership begins as soon as payment is received and renews annually on January 1 at the regular rate.
