Dr. Peterson was a pioneer in sports medicine and a constant fixture on the sideline, gym, professional rodeo circuit in four states. He was an associate physician for all of Seattle's professional sports teams, including the Supersonics, the Seahawks, and the Sounders. Professionally, he emphasized the importance of nutrition in sports performance and recognized the impact of mental health issues in athletes, providing a true “team” approach to the care of all athletes. Whether he was with his team covering hydroplane races on Lake Washington, the rodeo arena, and in the hydro pits. The loss of his mentorship and wisdom has left the light a little less bright.
