LETTER FROM THE SECRETARY-TREASURER

To All Members of the Association:

The one hundred and third Annual Meeting of the Eastern Division will be held from Wednesday, December 27th through Saturday, December 30th, 2006, at the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel, Washington, DC. All official meeting functions will take place at this hotel. Hotel accommodations at convention rates are available at the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel; there is also a block of rooms (at the same rates) at the Omni Shoreham Hotel, directly across the street from the Marriott Wardman Park. I suggest that you make reservations at your earliest convenience. This issue of the Proceedings contains the following items:

- (1) The complete program, including the program for group meetings.
- (2) An advance registration form for individuals.
- (3) An advance registration form for departments planning to interview candidates at the meeting and wishing to use the APA Placement Service.
- (4) Forms for room reservations and room reservations at student rates.
- (5) A table reservation form for the receptions.

Additional copies of the full program will be available at the Registration Desk.

1. REGISTRATION

Rates for registration are as follows:

APA Members:	$50
Non-members:	$60
Student members:	$10

These rates are the same as for the previous four years. Of the $50 the Eastern Division collects from each APA member, $35 will be returned to the National Office to cover the salaries of staff members essential to the functioning of the Division. The remaining $15 will go to offset meeting expenses directly.

Persons who are not now members may take advantage of the lower registration fee for members by joining the APA. Regular and student membership application forms are available from the APA National Office, on the APA's web site (www.udel.edu/apa), and will be available during the meeting at the APA Registration Desk. The APA Registration Desk will be open on:

Wednesday, December 27: 3:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Thursday, December 28: 8:30 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.

Friday, December 29: 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Saturday, December 30: 8:30 a.m. to Noon

Only registrants are entitled to attend the Reception on December 28th at no additional charge. Non-registrants who wish to attend this reception must purchase a $10 ticket; tickets will be available at the door to the reception. For those who register, name badges will serve as proof of registration.

2. NEW MAIN PROGRAM TIMES

At its December 2004 meeting, the Eastern Division Executive Committee voted to recommend a two-year experiment in which main program sessions would be held on the evening of December 27 and the morning of December 28, in addition to all the usual main program times. (In recent years the main program has begun on the afternoon of December 28; only affiliated groups have held sessions at these earlier times.) 2006 is the first year in which this plan is being implemented; a few invited main program sessions are scheduled on the evening of December 27 and the morning of December 28. One goal of this is to make it easier for those who are coming to the meeting primarily for placement purposes to attend at least some of the main program. Comments on this experimental schedule are welcome.

3. PLACEMENT SERVICE

The APA Placement Service functions mainly as a channel of communication between interviewers and job applicants. It can be particularly valuable when other arrangements fail to function properly. For this reason, interviewers and candidates, even those who plan to use the Placement Center for no other purpose, should inform the Placement Center about how they may be contacted in case of an emergency. The placement process will operate most smoothly when appointing officers and applicants make preparations for their part in advance of the Annual Meeting and when interviews are arranged prior to the meeting on the basis of listings in Jobs for Philosophers. Detailed information about the APA Placement Service can be found elsewhere in this issue of the Proceedings.

A Placement Ombudsperson, either the Chair or a member of the APA Committee on Academic Career Opportunities and Placement, will be available in the Placement Service area for anyone encountering problems with the interviewing process.

4. BOOK EXHIBITS

The publishers' book exhibit area is open at the following times:

Thursday, December 28: 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Friday, December 29: 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Saturday, December 30: 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

5. PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

The Presidential Address will be delivered by Seyla Benhabib at 4:45 p.m., December 29th. The title of the address is "Another Universalism: On the Unity and Diversity of Human Rights."

6. JOHN DEWEY LECTURE

At its 2004 meeting, the Eastern Division Executive Committee accepted a generous offer from the John Dewey Foundation to fund a John Dewey Lecture at each annual meeting. The Dewey Lecture will be given by a prominent American philosopher who will be invited to reflect, broadly and in an autobiographical spirit, on philosophy in America. The Eastern Division is pleased to announce that its first John Dewey Lecture will be given by Richard Bernstein at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, December 29 (session V-M). The lecture will be immediately followed by a reception.

7. PROMETHEUS PRIZE

At its 2005 meeting, the APA Board of Officers accepted a generous offer from Prometheus Books to fund a Prometheus Prize, the goal of which is to honor a distinguished philosopher in recognition of his or her lifetime contribution to expanding the frontiers of research in philosophy and science. The prize is to be awarded every two years, and the winner will present a lecture at one of the three Divisional meetings. The first Prometheus Laureate is Philip Kitcher, and he will present his lecture at 9:00 a.m. on Friday, December 29 (session IV-M).

8. RECEPTIONS AND RECEPTION TABLES

There will be Receptions on the nights of December 28th, from 8:00 p.m. to Midnight, and December 29th, from 9:00 p.m. to Midnight.

The large round tables at the Receptions will be numbered. A chart will be distributed at registration giving the table locations along with an index showing, for each table, who has reserved it.

Departments and societies are invited to reserve tables for a fee of $25 per table for both nights. If you wish to reserve a table, please fill out and mail the form included in the back pages of this issue of the Proceedings or call or email Ms. Linda Smallbrook at the National Office (Phone: 302-831-1113; Fax: 302-831-3372; email: lindas@udel.edu). The deadline for making table reservations is December 12th.

9. BUSINESS MEETING AND VOTING MEMBERSHIP

The annual Business Meeting will be held on December 29th at 11:15 a.m. in the Marriott Ballroom. There will be reports from Divisional and National Officers and Committees.

According to the Association's By-Laws, regular membership is given by an act of the Executive Director on behalf of the Board of Officers. Each year the list of regular members that appears in the November issue of the Proceedings is used as the list of eligible voters for the three subsequent Divisional meetings. Certification of persons as voting affiliates of the Eastern Division will take place at the entrance to the Business Meeting itself, for those wishing to attend and to vote.

10. RESOLUTIONS

- (a) All resolutions to be presented for inclusion on the agenda of the Business Meeting as separate items must be submitted in writing to the Secretary-Treasurer at least nine weeks in advance of the Annual Meeting (by October 25, 2006) in order to be properly announced to the membership.
- (b) No question of a substantive nature other than routine business shall be in order under “New Business” unless it has been received by the Secretary-Treasurer three weeks in advance of the Annual Meeting (by December 6, 2006) for transmission to the Executive Committee, except if three-fourths of the Eastern Division affiliates in attendance at the Business Meeting vote that such a question should be taken up at that meeting.
- (c) According to section 9.c of the By-Laws of the APA, “Resolutions which purport to represent the sense of a division on matters of public policy may be voted on only by mail ballot authorized by the annual Business Meeting of that division. Such mail ballots will include relevant minutes of the meeting and a summary of the arguments presented.”
- (d) The Eastern Division Executive Committee has the prerogative to order a mail ballot on any question of a substantive nature other than routine business that may come before the Business Meeting.
- (e) There is a Resolutions Subcommittee of the Executive Committee consisting of the Vice President, the Divisional Representative to the Board of Officers, and the Secretary-Treasurer, each of whom is available to consult with members before and during the Annual Meeting, on the preparation of resolutions.

11. THE 2007 PROGRAM COMMITTEE

The 2007 Program Committee invites contributions for the 2007 Annual Meeting that will be held in Baltimore on December 27-30, 2007. The 2007 Program Committee is composed of:

James Dreier (Chair)

Richard Bett (ex officio)

Cian Dorr

Tamar Gendler

Sean Kelly

Eva Kittay

Leonard Lawlor

Ernest Lepore

Christia Mercer

Ram Neta

Lorenzo Simpson

Nancy Tuana

Roslyn Weiss

The deadline for submitted papers for the 2007 meeting is February 15, 2007. For further details on how and where to submit papers for consideration, see the section on Paper Submission Guidelines elsewhere in this issue.

The 2007 Program Committee welcomes nominations, including self-nominations, for commentators and session chairs. In selecting commentators and chairs, the Program Committee tends to prefer, other things being equal, persons who have not made frequent appearances on the Eastern Division Program in the past few years. Nominations should be sent to the Chair of the Program Committee, James Dreier, Department of Philosophy, Box 1918, Brown University, Providence, RI 02912. Nominations should be received by the Chair no later than April 1, 2007; they should include a short list of significant or representative publications by the nominee, and should indicate the nominee's area(s) of specialization. (A curriculum vitae is not required for this purpose.)

12. GRADUATE STUDENT TRAVEL STIPENDS AND THE WILLIAM JAMES PRIZE

The Eastern Division is pleased to announce that there are two sources of financial support for junior members of the Association who wish to submit papers for consideration for the Eastern Division program. One source is the Graduate Student Travel Stipends, the other is the William James Prize. The guidelines for both are given below.

Graduate Student Travel Stipends. The Eastern Division will award a $300 travel stipend for any paper written by a graduate student that is accepted by the Program Committee in its normal, blind-review process. Eligibility is restricted to APA members or student associate members who are graduate students in good standing in an M.A. or Ph.D. program in philosophy. A graduate student may submit a paper either as a colloquium paper or as a symposium paper. Authors who are willing to have a shortened version of a symposium paper considered as a colloquium paper should submit the shortened version, along with a shortened abstract, simultaneously with the submission of the symposium paper. Authors must comply with all rules, including those intended to ensure the integrity of the process of blind-reviewing, that govern normal submissions to the Program Committee (see the APA Paper Submission Guidelines and the Eastern Division Paper Submission Information elsewhere in the Proceedings or on the APA web site, www.udel.edu/apa), with two modifications. First, the author must indicate that the paper is being submitted for consideration for a graduate student travel stipend. If the paper is submitted electronically, this is to be done by checking the relevant box on the online submission form; if it is submitted by mail, the paper must be accompanied by a cover letter indicating that the paper is in competition for a Graduate Student stipend. (This information is not to be included in the paper itself.) Second, whichever method of submission is used, the author must also supply, at the time of submission, documentation from the author's institution showing that the author is a graduate student in good standing.

William James Prize. The Eastern Division will award the William James Prize to the best paper in the area of American Philosophy that is both (a) written by a philosopher who received the Ph.D. after January 1, 2002, or is a graduate student, and (b) accepted for inclusion in the Eastern Division program by the Program Committee through the normal process of blind-reviewing. Thanks to a generous gift from Professor and Mrs. John Lachs, the James Prize carries with it an honorarium of $300. For purposes of competition for the James Prize, American Philosophy is to be construed broadly as including not only studies of the work of significant thinkers in the history of American Philosophy but also creative extensions or applications of the ideas, methods or results of traditional American Philosophy to philosophical issues of current interest or lasting importance.

A paper may be submitted for the competition for the James Prize either as a colloquium paper or as a symposium paper. Authors who are willing to have a shortened version of a symposium paper considered as a colloquium paper should submit the shortened version, along with a shortened abstract, simultaneously with the submission of the symposium paper. Authors must comply with all rules, including those intended to ensure the integrity of the process of blind-reviewing, that govern normal submissions to the Program Committee (see the APA Paper Submission Guidelines and the Eastern Division Paper Submission Information elsewhere in the Proceedings or on the APA web site, www.udel.edu/apa). In addition, each submission for the competition for the James Prize must be accompanied by a letter from its author both (a) stating either the date on which the author's Ph.D. was granted if the author has already received the Ph.D., or the fact that the author is a graduate student if that is the case, and (b) expressing the author's wish to have the paper considered for the James Prize. (The paper may, as usual, be submitted either electronically or by mail, but the letter must be mailed.)

The competition for the William James Prize in 2007 will be judged by a subcommittee of the 2007 Program Committee. Its members are James Dreier (Chair of the Program Committee, serving ex officio), Richard Bett (Secretary-Treasurer of the Eastern Division, serving ex officio), and two other committee members.

In the event that no entrant marked specifically for the William James Prize competition is accepted by the Program Committee, the Program Committee will survey the Graduate Student Travel Stipend recipients to see whether any of those papers qualifies by topic for the James Prize. If one (or more) does so qualify, it (or the best one) will receive the William James Prize instead of a Graduate Student Travel Stipend. No paper may be awarded both the William James Prize and a Graduate Student Travel Stipend.

Each recipient of an award will be acknowledged in the printed program for the annual Eastern Division Meeting.

13. APA PRIZE RECEPTION

There will be a special reception for the presentation of awards, at which all meeting registrants are welcome. The prize reception will take place at 5:00-6:00 p.m. on December 28. The awards to be presented include the Graduate Student Travel Stipends and William James Prize, as well as a number of national APA prizes; the specifics are listed with the announcement of the reception in the main program.

14. THE 2008 PROGRAM COMMITTEE

The Eastern Division's Committee on Committees, whose ex officio members are the Vice President, the Divisional Representative to the Board of Officers, and the Secretary-Treasurer, invites nominations, including self-nominations, for membership on the 2008 Program Committee. Nominees should be voting affiliates of the Eastern Division. Each nomination must be accompanied by the nominee's curriculum vitae and must be received by December 1, 2006, at the Office of the Secretary-Treasurer, Department of Philosophy, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD 21218-2686.

On behalf of the Executive and Program Committees, I extend to every member of the American Philosophical Association a warm invitation to take part in our one hundred and third Annual Meeting.

Cordially yours,

Richard Bett, Secretary-Treasurer

ABSTRACTS OF COLLOQUIUM PAPERS

ENVIRONMENTAL PRESERVATION AND SECOND-ORDER PROCRASTINATION (VII-F)

CHRISOULA ANDREOU, UNIVERSITY OF UTAH

When it comes to environmental preservation, procrastination, though it involves courting disaster, is difficult to resist. And it is not hard to see why. The long-term goal of environmental preservation has substantial immediate costs. Relatedly, it requires that we refrain from taking actions whose effects are individually negligible but cumulatively devastating: and this is an exercise of the will that it is tempting to postpone. I here argue that procrastination with respect to environmental preservation is in the class of procrastination problems that are particularly difficult to overcome because of the presence of factors that support second-order procrastination, which involves procrastinating in dealing with a (first-order) procrastination problem. This helps explain the distressing fact—assuming it is a fact and not an invention of hysterical misapprehension—that, despite widespread professions of serious concern, the issue of environmental preservation is not getting as much of our problem-solving attention as it deserves.

DISCLOSURE AND PURE IMAGINING: HEIDEGGER'S ONTOLOGICAL READING OF KANT (VI-F)

EMILIA A. ANGELOVA, TRAILL COLLEGE AND TRENT UNIVERSITY

Heidegger's Kant and the Problem of Metaphysics is usually taken to be solely concerned with transcendental imagination and the Analytic, and neglectful of the Dialectic. But a study of Kant's dialectic and the roots of the phenomena/noumena distinction shows that dialectic has its roots in reason as faculty of receptivity, that original thinking is pure imagining. In this case Kantian dialectic resembles the disclosure of Being in Heidegger, and a kinship is suggested between theoretical reason and imagination. This suggests a closer connection between Heidegger's interpretation of Kant and Kantian dialectic.

AN OLD PROBLEM IN A NEW SETTING: MADDY'S MATHEMATICAL NATURALISM AND WIGNER'S PUZZLE ABOUT APPLICABILITY (V-F)

SORIN BANGU, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Does Wigner's puzzle (Wigner 1967) about the applicability of mathematics to science pose a problem for Maddy's mathematical naturalism (Maddy 1997)? This paper argues that this doctrine faces difficulties in dealing with the puzzle. After I sketch out Maddy's and Wigner's positions, I show that the traditional strategies to dissolve the puzzles are not available to the naturalist.

BESIRES AND DIRECTIONS OF FIT (VIII-G)

MATTHEW BEDKE, UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

Functionalism holds that beliefs and desires are separate mental states with separate functional-dispositional roles. Beliefs are disposed to fit the world, and desires are disposed to make the world fit them. And yet phenomenology suggests that moral judgments have both a world-mind direction of fit by representing the ethical facts of the matter, and a mind-world direction of fit by motivating action accordingly. How can that be if desires with mind-world direction of fit are really separate existences? I argue that besires are fully consistent with a functional-dispositional analysis of psychological attitudes so long as we clearly distinguish desires qua functional role and desires qua mental state. While motivation entails desires qua functional role, which is separate and distinct from other functional roles, besires purport to be realizers of psychological roles, and it is not true that the realizers of the functional roles are themselves distinct and separate.

THE BUT NOT ALL: A NEW ACCOUNT OF PLURAL DEFINITE DESCRIPTIONS (VII-H)

BERIT BROGAARD, UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI–ST. LOUIS

A number of authors in favor of a unitary account of singular descriptions have alleged that the unitary account can be extrapolated to account for plural definite descriptions. In this paper I take a closer look at this suggestion. I argue that while the unitary account is clearly onto something right, it is in the end empirically inadequate. At the end of the paper I offer a new account of plural definite descriptions that avoids the problems with both the unitary account and the standard Russellian analyses.

MORAN ON AGENCY, JUDGMENT, AND SELF-KNOWLEDGE (VIII-G)

VINCENT CHIAO, NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

This paper challenges Richard Moran's recent approach to self-knowledge of one's attitudes, in particular as applied to one's authoritative knowledge of one's desires, and suggests that a better approach (at least for desire) would replace the central focus on judgment that underlies Moran's approach with an account of identification with an attitude. I argue that Moran's view can accommodate authoritative self-knowledge of desires that are not all-things-considered in character only at the cost of an implausible conception of what judgment in such cases must be. Secondly, I argue (by presenting two counter-examples) that Moran's conception of first-person authority as authorship of an attitude does not require an endorsing judgment, as one can take a desire to be fully one's own even when one does not judge that having the desire is particularly reasonable. I conclude by briefly sketching how an identification-based account of self-knowledge would avoid these two difficulties.

HOLISTIC DIRECTIONS OF FIT AND SMITH'S TELEOLOGICAL ARGUMENT (VIII-G)

MARY COLEMAN, BARD COLLEGE

Michael Smith makes what has become an influential argument in favor of the Humean theory of motivation. In this paper, I explore what Smith would have to establish—beyond the conclusion of this argument—in order to show that the Humean theory is true. I contend that he would have to establish that we must conceive of world-to-mind direction of fit atomistically. I also argue that Smith has good reason to conceive of mind-to-world direction of fit holistically. Therefore, he needs to defend the counterintuitive claim that we should conceive of one direction of fit holistically and the other atomistically. Finally, I consider the disagreement between Humeans and non-Humeans about whether desires can be given rationalizing explanations, and I argue that a mental state can be given a rationalizing explanation if and only if that state has mind-to-world direction of fit.

RETHINKING THE ONTOLOGY OF CARTESIAN ESSENCES (V-H)

RAFFAELLA DEROSA, RUTGERS UNIVERSITY-NEWARK

The old and recent debates on Cartesian essences have focused on the question of whether Descartes is a Platonist or a conceptualist about essences. I argue that this is a false dichotomy. An adequate account of Cartesian essences must accommodate and reconcile two central doctrines and texts in Descartes's philosophy. I will argue that recent conceptualist and Platonist interpretations neither accommodate these doctrines nor reconcile these texts. Such failures are not accidental since Descartes's doctrines of divine creation and simplicity render it impossible for Descartes to be either a conceptualist or a Platonist. Failure to notice this fact explains why there has been no progress on this exegetical issue.

SEEING PAST, AND THROUGH, THE STABILITY APPROACH TO INTERFERENCE (VII-F)

DARREN DOMSKY, UNIVERSITY OF CALGARY

Non-anthropocentric environmental philosophers who base their environmental ethic on a duty of non-interference tend to take what I call the stability approach to this concept of interference. No matter the variation, this stability approach is extremely problematic. Curiously, though, it is also remarkably appealing. In this paper, I do three things: I unveil just how problematic the stability approach is; I compare it to what I call the agency approach to interference, which is immune to all these problems; and I use the agency approach to reveal the secret of why the stability approach is so resiliently appealing despite its problems.

DISAGREEMENT AND BOOTSTRAPPING (VI-G)

ADAM ELGA, PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

Suppose that you and an epistemic peer disagree about a claim, based on the same batch of total evidence. How much should your peer's contrary assessment move you? Contra Kelly (2005), I defend the equal weight view, according to which you should think that you and your peer are equally likely to be mistaken. The defense is parallel to “bootstrapping” (Vogel 2000, 615) or “easy knowledge” (Cohen 2002) objections to reliabilism about knowledge.

PLATO’S REJECTION OF THE PLEASURELESS LIFE (III-H)

MATTHEW EVANS, NEW YORK UNIVERSITY

In the Philebus Plato has Socrates argue that the best life for a human being is neither wholly without intellectual activity nor wholly without pleasure, and that any rational human agent would prefer a life that has significant intellectual and hedonic content to a life that entirely lacked either one. Most leading interpreters of this argument (including John Cooper and Terence Irwin) hold that, according to Plato, the rational agent will choose the mixed life over either of the two unmixed ones because she recognizes that some pleasures and some intellectual activities are worth pursuing for their own sake. My goal here is to show that there is a plausible alternative interpretation of the argument that allows Plato to maintain something he seems to assert elsewhere in the Philebus—namely, that no pleasures are worth pursuing for their own sake.

THE PHYSIOLOGICAL BASIS OF DESCARTES’S DISTINCTION BETWEEN SENSATIONS AND SENSORY JUDGMENTS OF EXTENSION (V-H)

ROGER FLORKA, URSINUS COLLEGE

Descartes’s distinction between sensory judgments of extension (the attribution of shape, size, and so on, to external things) and sensations (experiences of colors, smells, and so on) is already reflected in the physiological stories he presents as the causal precursors to sensory perception. The crucial point is that sensations are produced by the stimulations of single nerves whereas sensory judgments of extension are produced by configurations of nerves. Regarded as the functional minima of the production of sense-perception, single nerves, unlike the configurations of nerves behind sensory judgments of extension, have no parts and are intrinsically non-relational. This difference in the physiological histories behind the two kinds of sensory perceptions anticipates the unintelligibility of sensations that Descartes contrasts to the systematic relatedness underlying the possibility of full understanding of the modes of extension.

SOLDIERS, SLAVES, AND THE LIBERAL STATE (VIII-H)

DAVID J. GARREN, UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY

The moral status of the soldier within the just war tradition as well as within international law is considered to be twofold: the soldier is considered to bear responsibility for how a war is fought, that is, he is considered to bear responsibility for the proportionate and discriminate use of force, and yet at the same time he is considered to bear no responsibility for whether a war is fought. Responsibility for that decision is considered to rest entirely in the hands of the political leadership of the state. This raises an obvious and important question, however. Namely, whether and in what way the alienation of the soldier's liberty and autonomy with respect to the justice of the cause for which he fights can be justified in the liberal state, given liberal commitments to freedom, autonomy, and individuality.

BEYOND STATUS, TOWARD A NEED-BASED THEORY OF RECOGNITION (VIII-H)

ERINN GILSON, UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS

Recent discourses about recognition have focused on Nancy Fraser's status-model and Axel Honneth's identity-model. While acknowledging the value of Fraser's criticisms of identity-models of recognition, this paper counters her claim in Unruly Practices that the discourse of needs sacrifices an analysis of how needs are interpreted to the simple demand that they be met to assert that a need-based account is a perhaps more fruitful application of the concept of recognition because: 1) it upholds the importance of a notion of self-identity and accounts for the relationship between a form of coherent self-identity and a sense of agency, and 2) it expresses the claim that recognition has a constitutive role in the formation of identity and agency in contrast to Fraser's account, which implicitly diminishes that aspect of recognition by conceiving recognition as remedial.

THREE THINGS CONSTRUCTIONISM ABOUT RACE CAN DO (III-G)

JOSHUA GLASGOW, VICTORIA UNIVERSITY OF WELLINGTON-NEW ZEALAND

Philosophers widely recognize race as a piece of social construction, yet this commonplace is coupled with two rival positions. Some constructionists deny the existence of race. Others think that race is neither illusory nor biologically real, but is instead real as a social kind. In a philosophical climate in which few defend the biology of race, most of the reality-of-race clashes are between the skeptics and the social kinds realists. Against this broader landscape, Ron Mallon has objected that the attempt to conjoin realism with race's social construction cannot satisfy all of three constraints on an adequate theory of race. Here I articulate how a version of realist constructionism (henceforth simply "constructionism") can overcome this objection. The key is a certain specification of how criteria for racial membership and, thus, race itself are implicitly localized.

CONFESSION, FORGIVENESS, SOLIDARITY: HEGEL'S THEORY OF LAW IN THE PHENOMENOLOGY OF SPIRIT (III-F)

SHANNON HOFF, MUSKINGUM COLLEGE

In Hegel's Phenomenology, the identification of individual and universal is initially expressed in ethical life and state of right, through the concepts of law and right. These legal categories, however, virtually disappear in the remainder of the text. I will argue in this paper that law re-enters the text in Hegel's discussion of forgiveness, but that the ascendancy of forgiveness as a fundamental principle radically circumscribes the role of law. In addition to developing the import of these legal insights for interpretation of the Phenomenology, I also construe forgiveness' transformation of law as productive in light of contemporary scepticism regarding liberalism's efficacy and neutrality. Representing legal universals as dependent on difference, negotiation, and solidarity, Hegel's theory of forgiveness provides a strategy for exposing and addressing the inequalities in access to power that liberal concepts of freedom and equality have been accused of concealing.

PAN-PSYCHISM, PHYSICALISM, AND THE RUSSELLIAN THEORY OF MIND (VII-G)

EMMETT L. HOLMAN, GEORGE MASON UNIVERSITY

On the view of some, an impasse has been reached on the mind-body problem: mainstream physicalism fails to do justice to the subjectivity of consciousness, and dualism has problems of its own. So, lately, another view has been gaining popularity, a view that might be called the "Russellian theory of mind" (RTM) since it is inspired by some ideas once put forth by Bertrand Russell. Most versions of RTM are pan-psychist/experientialist, but one recent version bills itself as a kind of non-mainstream physicalism. In this paper, I will (begin to) examine the extent to which RTM represents an advantage over its competitors. The unsurprising conclusion will be that there are a lot of challenges ahead for the RTM theorist. The surprising conclusion will be that it's not clear that pan-psychist/experientialist RTM holds an advantage over physicalist RTM in this regard.

MUST WE BE SO LITERAL? (VI-H)

DAMON HOROWITZ, STANFORD UNIVERSITY

The nature of the relation between metaphorical meaning and literal meaning is relevant to current discussions about Contextualism which seek to clarify the notion of "what is said." Under some proposals, the very words of a metaphorical utterance undergo a shift in meaning and express something different from their ordinary literal meaning. But if we admit this type of mercuriality of meaning with metaphors, we may be encouraged to generalize the license to other cases of context-sensitive meaning, which would lead to a radical contextualist conclusion of skepticism about the notion of "what is said" as conventional literal meaning. In a recent paper, Camp attempts to defeat this suggestion. She argues that literal language has normative priority over metaphorical language in a way that distinguishes metaphorical meaning from "what is said." I argue here that this argument, and various suggested extensions of it, are unsuccessful at defeating the contextualist conclusion.

REPRESENTATIONISTS SHOULD BE PRIMITIVISTS (VIII-E)

JAMES JOHN, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Representationism is a theory of the relation between experiences' phenomenal and representational properties. It says that an experience's phenomenal properties are identical with the members of some subset of its representational properties. Primitivism is a theory of color. It says that the colors are sui generis properties. This paper argues that Representationists should be Primitivists.

ONE REASON TOO MANY (V-G)

LEONARD KAHN, OXFORD UNIVERSITY

What is it for something to be valuable? G. E. Moore's answer was that value is a simple, non-natural property, and this answer did much to set the agenda of ethical theory for more than a century. Of course, Moore's answer has been intensely criticized, but most of the criticism has focused on his claim that value is non-natural. For the sake of argument, I shall simply assume his claim was correct. My question in this paper is whether value is simple. Recently, T. M. Scanlon has contended that it is not. I outline Scanlon's argument and explain why several recent attacks on Scanlon's argument do not undermine it as an assault on Moore's position. I then show that another line of attack can be developed in a more worrisome fashion. I conclude by showing how one might defeat this Moorean rejoinder.

THE SIMILARITY ACCOUNT OF COUNTERFACTUALS (III-G)

BORIS KMENT, UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN—ANN ARBOR

According to the standard account, a counterfactual "If A had been the case, then C would have been the case" is true if and only if C is true in the closest possible A-worlds. Closeness between worlds is commonly understood as the resultant of weighting different respects of similarity between the worlds (where the method of weighting may be quite different from the one we are using in making offhand judgments of overall similarity). I discuss how this account needs to be understood if it is not to be trivial, and then present a counterexample to the theory thus understood. I consider possible replies by the similarity theorist and argue that they fail.

RESTRICTED COMPOSITION WITHOUT SHARP CUT-OFFS (III-G)

DANIEL KORMAN, UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS—AUSTIN

On the naive conception of material objects, mereological composition is restricted. There are some objects that together compose something (e.g., these bricks together compose a house) and others that do not (e.g., there is nothing composed of my nose and the Eiffel Tower). Many metaphysicians have abandoned the naive conception in favor of unrestricted mereological composition—the thesis that, for any collection of disjoint objects, those objects compose something. Perhaps the most influential argument for unrestricted mereological composition is the argument from vagueness, first put forward by David Lewis and defended in detail by Theodore Sider. The argument takes as a premise that there cannot be borderline cases of composition, in the way that there can be borderline cases of baldness and heaps. I show how the proponent of the naive conception may resist this premise, and thus block the argument from vagueness to unrestricted mereological composition.

A PROBLEM WITH DRETSKE'S APPEAL TO GRICEAN NATURAL MEANING (VII-G)

PHILIP KUCHAR, UNIVERSITY OF WESTERN ONTARIO

The usual criticism of Dretske's informational theory of intentionality is that this theory can't satisfactorily account for misrepresentation. Instead of discussing the problem of misrepresentation, I want to look at a problem that arises for Dretske's theory from an analysis of Grice's concept of natural meaning. Dretske appeals to Grice's distinction between natural and non-natural meaning to ground a reductive explanation of intentionality. I argue that in so far as natural meaning is intentional, the sense of "meaning" at issue is the sense in which the antecedent of a nomic dependency is important to someone, and that the degree of importance depends on the person's interest in, and therefore beliefs about, the consequent of the relation.

MODAL INTUITION AND THE NECESSITY OF NARROW PERCEPTUAL CONTENTS (VIII-E)

PETER LANGLAND-HASSAN, CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK GRADUATE CENTER

A well-documented feature of Kripke's arguments for a posteriori necessities is that they assume the reliability of some modal intuitions, while calling others into question (Naming and Necessity [Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 1980]). The general reliability of modal intuitions is thought to be preserved through Kripke's use of a "redescription" paradigm invoking "qualitatively identical epistemic situations." Given qualitatively identical epistemic situations can exist, what are they? I criticize several "externalist" understandings of qualitatively identical epistemic situations, arguing that any viable analysis must invoke narrow perceptual contents—contents which supervene entirely on intrinsic properties of perceivers, and in virtue of which perceptual experiences attribute various properties to the environment. I conclude that any appeal to a posteriori necessities presumes a tenable account of narrow perceptual contents to be forthcoming. For it is only by appeal to such contents that the modal intuitions required to motivate a doctrine of a posteriori necessities can be rendered reliable.

IS VIRTUE A LOGOS, KATA TON ORTHON LOGON, OR META TOU ORTHOU LOGOU? THE DISPUTANTS OF ETHICS VI.13 (III-H)

THORNTON LOCKWOOD, FORDHAM UNIVERSITY

In EN VI.13, Aristotle states that whereas Socrates claimed that virtue was a logos and current thinkers claimed that virtue is "in accord (kata) with right reason," in fact virtue "involves (meta) right reason" (1144b21-23, 25-30). Commentators have disputed the meaning of Aristotle's contrast because of his equivocal use of the terms kata, meta, and logos and the unclear doctrines of his disputants. I argue that the "Socrates" of this passage is the historical Socrates whose doctrine that virtue is a logos is based on a "monistic" psychology. The current thinkers are Speusippus and Xenocrates, and their notion of virtue in accord with right reason reflects a static conception of happiness and an instrumentalist account of reason. Aristotle's own position, that ethical virtue involves or integrates right reason, illustrates both his dualistic psychology and the integration of the perfections of its rational and irrational parts, namely ethical virtue and prudence.

 THE PERSPECTIVAL CHALLENGE TO REPRESENTATIONALISM (VIII-E)

MICHAEL MADARY, TULANE UNIVERSITY

In this paper I appeal to an uncontroversial Husserlian observation about the essentially perspectival nature of perception in order to pose a serious challenge to the representationalism of Michael Tye and Fred Dretske, among others. First I describe what I call the perspectival content of perception. Then I show that, because perspectival content has no correctness conditions, perspectival content is not representational content. There are two strategies for the representationalist to argue that there are correctness conditions for perspectival content. The first strategy is to argue that we can possibly be incorrect about our own perspectival content. The second strategy is to argue that there is a determinate way that things should appear from a certain perspective. I show that both these strategies are plagued with problems.

PATRIOTIC VIRTUE (VIII-H)

HEIDI MAIBOM, CARLETON UNIVERSITY

It is sometimes thought that liberal principles require the state to dispatch justice, not just to its own citizens but to citizens of all countries. Where a person is born is an accidental characteristic of that person that has no moral relevance. It is therefore wrong that such characteristics determine their life prospects and entitlements. In this paper, we argue that it is possible for liberals to defend a patriotism whereby the state privileges its citizens and vice versa. By constructing the state as a moral agent and applying ideas from Aristotelian virtue ethics, we show that different standards of justice do apply within the state-citizen relationship.

ORDINARY MORALITY IMPLIES ATHEISM (VII-I)

STEPHEN MAITZEN, ACADIA UNIVERSITY

Theism, I argue, cannot accommodate an ordinary and fundamental moral obligation acknowledged by many people, including many theists. My argument turns on a principle that a number of philosophers already accept as a constraint on any plausible theodicy. I defend the principle against objections from those inclined to reject it.

ON TRUTH, EXCESS, AND SUBJECTIVITY (VI-F)

ADAM MILLER, COLLIN COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE

On the face of it, Jean-Luc Marion and Alain Badiou have less in common than they share. However, it is the argument of this paper that, contrary to such expectations, their work converges in their strikingly unfashionable desire to recuperate a robust and positively prescriptive notion of truth. Further, it is my argument that their respective attempts to recuperate truth share not only a common end, but pursue remarkably homologous paths.

IMAGINING SEEING AND IMAGINING KISSING: AGAINST WALTON'S THEORY OF DEPICTION (VI-H)

BENCE NANAY, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA—BERKELEY

Kendall Walton claimed that the surface of the painting serves as a prop for what he called “a visual game of make-believe.” On looking at the painting, we imagine our experience of the painting to be of the represented object. I argue that there are two ways of interpreting Walton’s claim. (1) If one’s actual visual experience does not play any role in this imagining, then imagining seeing would boil down to be visualizing, which contradicts Walton’s main claim that props play a constitutive role in this process. (2) If, however, one’s actual visual experience does play some role in this imagining, then imagining seeing would amount to imagining that what one sees is the represented object. Imagining that what one sees is the represented object can be interpreted as a de re or a de dicto claim. I argue that none of these interpretations can provide a plausible account of depiction.

THE VARIETY OF A BODY OF EVIDENCE DEPENDS ON HOW IT IS DESCRIBED (IV-H)

GREG NOVACK, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—MADISON

The variety-of-evidence thesis (VET) says that ceteris paribus, more “varied” bodies of evidence confirm more strongly than “unvaried” bodies of evidence. This paper shows that at least two formal, probabilistic accounts of BET are description-variant, in the following sense. Suppose E1 is a more varied body than E2. Sometimes, simply changing the way we describe their contents reverses the judgment of which body is more varied. At least one method of redescription is even guaranteed to render both bodies maximally “varied” (and, hence, equally varied as well). Yet, the confirmational powers of the bodies remain invariant. Variety thus conceived is apparently irrelevant to confirmation. I discuss what this means for VET, and (if there is time) whether our pretheoretic judgments about variety are description-variant.

HOW TO BE A NORMATIVE EXPRESSIVIST (V-G)

MICHAEL PENDLEBURY, NORTH CAROLINA STATE UNIVERSITY

Expressivism can make space for normative objectivity by treating normative stances as pro or con attitudes that can be correct or incorrect. And it can answer the logical challenges that confront it by treating a normative assertion (like “Eating meat is wrong”) not merely as an expression of a normative stance (like opposing meat-eating) but as an expression of the endorsement of a proposition that is true if and only if that normative stance is correct. Although this position has superficial similarities to normative realism, it does full justice to the core expressivist thesis that at bottom, a normative assertion expresses a normative stance rather than a factual belief.

WAKING UP FROM CRITIAS' NIGHTMARE: HAPPINESS IN THE CITY OF DREAMS IN PLATO'S CHARMIDES (III-H)

ALAN PICHANICK, ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE

In this paper, I argue that if one carefully analyzes Socrates' Dream near the end of Plato's Charmides, one is given insight not into Socrates' conception of self-knowledge (as knowledge of ignorance), but into the unconscious fantasy of his interlocutor, Critias. Critias promotes the ideal human life as one that has knowledge of all things past, present, and future, a vision of human wisdom that is at odds with Socratic awareness of limitations. Socrates then shows that this fantasy, now made conscious, cannot be made coherent: Critias is unable to show his picture of human wisdom is able to lead to human happiness. An alternative picture of wholeness in both the city and the soul are needed, one that incorporates the recognition of limitations, which Socrates puts forth as well as embodies, and does not reject in the dialogue.

RESPECT AND THE VALUE OF ART THESIS: IS ALL ART VALUABLE? (VII-J)

HENRY PRATT, UNIVERSITY OF DAYTON

A number of prominent philosophers endorse what I call the value of art thesis: all artworks are artistically valuable to some positive degree. In order to assess this thesis, I use some literature on moral respect for persons to distinguish between two kinds of artistic value. An artwork has artistic recognition value when it is the sort of thing that we are disposed to take under consideration when engaging in the practices of art criticism. An artwork has artistic appraisal value when and to the extent that it manifests characteristics that make it deserving of a positive evaluative judgment as an artwork. The value of art thesis is plausible, I argue, only when understood in terms of recognition value. Those who hold that all artworks have some degree of appraisal value are mistaken because they cannot make sense of the common judgments that artworks are bad or even totally worthless.

ETERNAL TRUTHS AS COMMON NOTIONS (V-H)

SHOSHANA SMITH, COLGATE UNIVERSITY

Descartes divides the possible objects of perception into three categories: things, affections of things, and eternal truths. The first two categories can be fit easily into Descartes's ontology; they are substances and their modes. The third category does not fit easily into Descartes's ontology. In Descartes's writings, we find two answers to the question of what the eternal truths are. The first is that eternal truths are essences. The second answer is that eternal truths are "common notions." Common notions are a puzzling category that has gotten little attention in Descartes scholarship. I argue that common notions are abstractions from truths about essences and that their ontological status is that of modes of thinking, or modi cogitandi.

THE MODERN STATE AS ABSOLUTE MECHANISM: HEGEL'S LOGICAL INSIGHT INTO THE RELATION OF CIVIL SOCIETY AND THE STATE (III-F)

NATHAN ROSS, DEPAUL UNIVERSITY

This paper examines the figure of absolute mechanism in Hegel's Science of Logic of a logical justification of his conception of the state in his Philosophy of Right. It begins by using this passage from the Logic to draw a definitional distinction between a finite object and a rational objective entirety, and I argue that, for Hegel, political freedom is only possible in the latter kind of structure. Then I consider the complex relation of civil society and the state in Hegel's political philosophy as consisting of three syllogisms, and I explain the political implications of each of these syllogisms. In conclusion, I argue that the notion of freedom or self-determination in Hegel's conception of political institution is best explained in terms of his argument regarding absolute mechanism.

A PRIORI INTUITION AND THE BODY: RETHINKING KANT'S DOCTRINE OF SPACE AND TIME (VIII-F)

MATTHEW RUKGABER, UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS—URBANA-CHAMPAIGN

Rather than narrowly focusing on the first Critique, all of Kant's writings, from the 1768 essay "Directions in Space" to the Opus postumum, are utilized in this essay to provide a novel and plausible interpretation of the doctrine of a priori intuition. My conclusion is that Kant's doctrine of the ideality of space and time is actually an account of the a priori structure of the body as a sensible perspective on the world. A priori intuition is understood as the bodily anticipation of objects or of possible sensations along the three-dimensional axes of the body and its temporal dimension.

CAN THE PROBLEM OF POVERTY BE SOLVED? HEGEL'S PESSIMISM AND THE CONCEPT OF WORK ASSOCIATIONS (III-F)

KORY SCHAFF, OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE

Despite the existence of the welfare state, poverty remains a significant source of instability in modern societies. Hegel predicted this problem in Elements of the Philosophy of Right (GPR), but notoriously offers no solution. The orthodoxy among commentators is that Hegel is pessimistic that the problem can be solved. However, this standard formulation is missing an important variable: work. Hegel's actual claim is that the rationality of the modern state also depends on Korporationen, or "work associations." In this paper, I argue that the orthodox view requires qualification. The primary role of the work association is to alleviate the major source of poverty, and this part of Hegel's theory of work organization is missing from the orthodox view.

PUBLIC LANGUAGES, KNOWLEDGE, AND SEMANTIC NORMS (VII-H)

KRANTI SARAN, HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Are public languages required to explain communicative success between speakers? Wiggins thinks so, but Heck doesn't. I assess two arguments of Wiggins's and Heck's responses. Firstly, the Argument from Knowledge concludes that public languages are required for a speaker's knowledge of the meaning of utterances. But Heck shows that mere common knowledge of meaning suffices. I show that common knowledge in this context must make reference to linguistic practices—but this falls short of public languages. Secondly, the Argument from Normativity concludes that public languages undergird semantic norms. But Heck argues that general features of the communicative situation generate semantic norms. I argue that Heck's proposal fails because such features raise symmetrical reasons for speakers to conform to each other, rather than for one speaker to defer to the semantic norm. I show that linguistic practices, though not public languages, play a crucial role for communicative success.

WHY DOES COHERENCE APPEAR TRUTH-CONDUCTIVE? (IV-H)

TOMOJI SHOGENJI, RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE

This paper aims to reconcile (i) the intuitively plausible view that a higher degree of coherence among independent pieces of evidence makes the hypothesis they support more probable, and (ii) the negative results in Bayesian epistemology to the effect that there is no probabilistic measure of coherence such that a higher degree of coherence among independent pieces of evidence makes the hypothesis they support more probable. Using a simple model I show formally that a higher degree of coherence is indirectly associated with a higher probability of the hypothesis because a higher degree of coherence indicates a stronger individual support. This analysis explains why coherence appears truth-conducive, but in such a way that it defeats the idea of coherentism since coherence plays no independent role in the confirmation of the hypothesis.

JOHN HICK'S SOUL MAKING THEODICY AND THE VIRTUE OF LOVE (VII-I)

ERIC SILVERMAN, SAINT LOUIS UNIVERSITY

John Hick justifies evil's existence by claiming it is necessary for the process of "soul-making," through which a more valuable type of moral character is developed than could be accomplished without the existence of evil. Hick's theodicy has ramifications for ethics as well as philosophy of religion. His theodicy commits him to a conception of virtue theory that departs from the ethical theories held by many theists. An explication of Hick's ethical theory and comparison with relevant aspects of Thomas Aquinas's ethical theory shows its relative strengths and weaknesses. At stake in this paper is whether Hick's ethical theory makes his theodicy more or less plausible, particularly in light of its implications for the virtue of love.

INTUITIONS AND MORAL PHILOSOPHY (IV-G)

JOSEF THOMAS SIMPSON, FORDHAM UNIVERSITY

Appeal to intuitions often stops conversations on various matters intellectual and moral. This appeal very often is predicated upon a misguided notion of the unchangeable nature of intuitions. In this paper, I argue that intuitions are not thus unalterable and hence should not be the conversation stopper which they usually are. On the contrary, intuitions are useful for moral inquiry in (at least) three significant ways. First, intuitions serve as the starting place of moral inquiry. Second, intuitions serve as prima facie evidence for moral beliefs. However, since they are only prima facie evidence they are likewise defeasible and/or malleable in relevant ways. Finally, due to these two claims, intuitions drive moral inquiry. The preceding theses are developed following a defense of a minimal characterization of the concept of an intuition. On this account, intuitions are dispositions such that in relevant circumstances there is a moral or intellectual seeming.

KANT'S THINGS-IN-THEMSELVES AS BARE SUBSTRATA: CRITIQUE OF LANGTON (VIII-F)

ALEX SPARROW, UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI

In her book Kantian Humility, Rae Langton seeks to understand what she calls Kant's "Epistemic Humility" in its metaphysical basis. She presents a model of Kant's metaphysics in which the phenomenal realm of appearances constitutes the relational properties of objects while the noumenal realm of things-in-themselves is the corresponding intrinsic properties of those same objects. In my paper, I show that her model does not allow for noumenal interaction. Furthermore, I defend the "bare substratum" view of things-in-themselves that she seeks to refute so briefly. Finally, I present an alternative conception of Epistemic Humility without reference to any sort of inner properties.

POVERTY OF THE MORAL STIMULUS (V-G)

KYLE SWAN, NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

An argument from the poverty of moral stimuli, modeled after the Chomskian arguments for linguistic nativism, is presented. The argument does not, perhaps, ultimately show that moral knowledge is innate, but it does seem to show that an innate endowment plays a distinctive role in moral judgment. It turns out, in fact, that this innate endowment comes in the form of an affective-response system. This evidence about how our moral psychology works impacts on some of the traditional debates in metaethics. One proposal in these debates might aid in the rescue of a modest sort of moral nativism.

KITCHER ON THE ETHICS OF INQUIRY (V-F)

ROBERT B. TALISSE, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

Philip Kitcher has argued that "were we to recognize certain kinds of truths, the impact on some people would be to erode their sense of worth and make it difficult, even impossible, to frame a conception of their lives as valuable"; he contends that, in such cases, "free inquiry may be too dangerous to be tolerated." Kitcher proposes an ethics of inquiry according to which scientific research must be constrained by considerations of its likely effects upon socially underprivileged groups. In this paper, the authors argue that Kitcher's proposal is flawed.

EVERYDAY NOUMENA: THE FACT AND SIGNIFICANCE OF ORDINARY INTELLIGIBLE OBJECTS (VIII-F)

JENNIFER ULEMAN, STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK—PURCHASE

Using Kant's Metaphysics of Morals deduction of property, or 'possessio noumenon', as a jumping-off point, this paper argues that objects as diverse and familiar as tenants, wills, state constitutions, legislators, corporations, money, households, marriages, and promises should be read as among the Kantian noumena. I argue that an object's status as noumenal or phenomenal ultimately depends on whether it is the object it is in virtue of the system of laws of nature or the system of laws of freedom. I suggest that attention to everyday noumena challenges us to think about the joint contributions of empirical and a priori concepts and principles in determining both phenomenal and noumenal objects. The paper's larger agenda is to challenge the view of Kantian noumena as troublesome entities best accorded a minimal role or naturalized away. In my view, Kantian noumena are significant, ubiquitous, and ineliminable.

ARTIST, GET YOUR GUN (VII-J)

JULIE C. VAN CAMP, CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY—LONG BEACH

I explore the responses to two episodes involving the use of guns and live ammunition in performance art. I consider whether our discomfort with the use of guns can be explained as simply a matter of time (post-Columbine) and place (classrooms), or as infringement of free speech. I then consider whether a framework for ethical analysis, drawing on the approaches of Kantian respect for human dignity and utilitarian concern for consequences for all persons, adequately clarifies the issues here. I propose that the ethical and legal analysis of "justification" and "excuse" provides an appropriate methodology for considering these issues.

MORAL RESPONSIBILITY AND PERSONHOOD AS A DESERT BASE (IV-G)

BENJAMIN VILHAUER, WILLIAM PATERSON UNIVERSITY

Free will theorists commonly assume that giving up the concept of moral responsibility entails giving up the concept of desert. I argue that this is not the case. If we give up moral responsibility, actions are no longer legitimate as desert bases because actions can only be legitimate desert bases if we are morally responsible for them. But some desert claims are not based on actions. Instead, they are based on the sheer fact of personhood. For example, we deserve access to our rights not because we have acted in any particular way, but simply because we are persons. Personhood remains legitimate as a desert base even if we reject moral responsibility because we could not be morally responsible for being persons. Society could acknowledge personhood but not action as a desert base if society was founded on principles chosen in the original position.

NEO-REDUCTIONIST VIEWS OF KNOWLEDGE HOW (VI-G)

CHARLES WALLIS, CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY—LONG BEACH

The recent literature on know how has focused almost exclusively upon the neo-reductionist theory offered by Jason Stanley and Timothy Williamson (Stanley and Williamson 2001). Discussion surrounding the paper concerns the argument Stanley and Williamson offer for their view and methodological presuppositions that underlie that argument. While such discussions are useful, I wish to turn the debate to the theory itself. In this paper I argue that contrary to popular perception the thesis forwarded by Stanley and Williamson's paper is in fact clearly and demonstrably false. Moreover, Stanley and Williamson theory seems inadequate to handle standard cases from the know how literature—cases which Stanley and Williamson seem to acknowledge as legitimate.

DEFENDING A SELECTIONIST EXPLANATION FOR THE SUCCESS OF SCIENCE (V-F)

K. BRAD WRAY, STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK—OSWEGO

Van Fraassen (1980) argues that our current best theories enable us to make accurate predictions because they have been subjected to a process of selection similar to the process of natural selection operative in the biological world. Van Fraassen's selectionist explanation has been criticized on a number of grounds. I review and address these criticisms in an effort to defend and deepen our understanding of the power of a selectionist explanation for the success of science. I argue that the plausibility of the realists' explanation for the success of science rests on an inaccurate understanding of the nature of predictive success. The predictive success of our best theories is a relative success. Given the relative nature of predictive success, I argue that realists are mistaken to infer that what our theories say about unobservable processes and structures is true from the fact that they enable us to make accurate predictions.

ABSTRACTS OF INVITED AND SYMPOSIUM PAPERS

FEMINISM AND THE FETISHES OF CAPITALISM AND TRADITION (I-C)

ANN CUDD, UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS

This paper explores the question of whether feminist political transformation requires basic alterations in capitalism, the now prevalent economic system in the developed world, or whether there is a possibility of an enlightened capitalism that would not perpetrate the many ills attributed to the economic imperatives of capitalism. I claim that such an enlightened capitalism can be constructed that is a genuinely positive intervention in the developing world, particularly for women. There are three steps in the argument for this claim. First, I explore how individuals' abilities to freely deliberate and choose can be compromised by social institutions under which they live: the problems of deformed desire and false consciousness. Second, I examine the ways that capitalism and traditional cultural and economic arrangements deform and direct individuals' preferences and posit tests for free deliberation and choice. Third, I construct an enlightened capitalism that can meet these tests while traditional social and economic arrangements will often fail. The paper thus presents an argument for capitalism from a feminist perspective that solves the problems of deformed desires and false consciousness.

RESPECTING PERSONS, PUBLIC REASON, AND RELIGIOUS BELIEF (III-A)

GERALD GAUS, UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

A commitment to respecting the free and equal moral personality of others requires that a bona fide moral demand must be validated by all rational free and equal moral persons. So if M is a bona fide moral demand it must be validated by all such persons. Our question is: How do religious beliefs enter into the validation, or invalidation, of a purported M ? The first step is to get some grasp on the class of religious beliefs that would be held by a rational free and equal moral person: clearly not any religious conviction whatsoever would qualify, since some are inconsistent with reason. I will, however, reject the strong claim that all religious belief insofar as it relies on faith is unwarranted: given a plausible foundationalism, a person can have a religious belief that possesses some degree of self-justification and is not defeated by any other elements of her belief system. Having identified the class of religious beliefs that may be held by a free and equal rational moral person, the moral (and political) question concerns their status in the public validation of moral requirements and the justification of coercion. I reject two popular views: (1) strict secularism according to which belief β may enter into public justification only if all free and equal moral persons hold β and (2) ecumenicalism according to which any belief β held by a free and equal moral person Alf may be used by Alf to justify a moral claim on Betty. My core claim is that we must distinguish two different roles beliefs play in public justification: as justifiers and defeaters. If Alf is trying to justify M on Betty it will be of no avail for him to appeal to his rational belief β that is not shared by rational Betty: this is the insight of the strict secularists—it looks as if (we shall see this is not really right) only beliefs shared by all others can act as justifiers. Suppose Alf acknowledges this and advances a public justification that only relies on belief set B that Betty rationally holds. However, Betty's rational religious belief γ can serve as a defeater for Alf's justification because γ added to B may invalidate M. I shall argue that this analysis vindicates one version of liberal religious toleration: religious beliefs cannot be advanced as justifications for coercing others, but must be publicly respected in law and public policy.

FEMINISM AND CAPITALISM (I-C)

NANCY HOLMSTROM, RUTGERS UNIVERSITY—NEWARK

There are many varieties of feminism and many theoretical models of capitalism, but I argue that feminism's attitude towards capitalism should be based on whether or not capitalism is good for women, capitalism as an actual political-economic system, not simply a logically conceivable system. There is no simple yes or no answer to this question but, rather, it depends on how we answer these sub-questions: Compared to what? Which women? With respect to what aspects of their lives? In what time frame? I argue that the respects in which capitalism can be said to be good for women are more limited than those in which they are bad. Therefore, feminists ought to be anti-capitalist as well as anti-patriarchal.

SPINOZA'S COGNITIVE AFFECTS AND THEIR FEEL (VI-E)

EUGENE MARSHALL, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—MADISON

Spinoza commentators generally agree that affects of the mind in Spinoza's system involve a kind of cognition, a view sometimes labeled "cognitivism," which is the view that emotions, or affects, contain some cognitive content. Several, however, have criticized Spinoza's cognitivist account, claiming he over-intellectualizes the affects—that Spinoza's philosophical system allows no room for the feel that distinguishes emotions from simple representations. Just as Spinoza's physical realm involves nothing but Cartesian, mechanistic bodies and so lacks such properties as color and warmth, so too does Spinoza's mental realm allow only the purely intellectual adequate ideas and common notions. This stark view of the mental leaves no room for the feel of the emotions.

I wish to defend Spinoza's account from this charge. More generally, I wish to show that Spinoza's account of the emotions is not overly intellectual, as Segal makes it out to be, though it is cognitivist. I will argue that, even given his cognitivism, Spinoza accommodates the feel of the affects, which Segal claims to be lacking.

After reviewing Spinoza's view on the identity of ideas and volitions, I argue that affects are all ideas in which one's power changes. More precisely, I argue, an affect is a felt change in power involved in certain ideas. Just as an idea can be considered both as a volition and as a cognition, so too can certain ideas also be considered as affects.

This understanding of affects places the felt power of the affects at the center of Spinoza's psychology. Further, this understanding allows Spinoza to account for the seemingly irreducible, idiosyncratic nature of the affects. In the end, I argue, Spinoza can and does accommodate affective feel in his psychology.

ACTUALITY AND COUNTERPARTS (IV-E)

MICHAEL NELSON, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA-RIVERSIDE

In their recent "Counterparts and Actuality" [Mind 114: 1-30], Michael Fara and Timothy Williamson argue that counterpart theory should be rejected because it is incompatible with the addition of an actuality operator. Their argument turns on a sentence like, "George won iff it is not actually the case that George won," which they claim to be inconsistent, whereas its translations into counterpart theory end up being consistent. I show that their argument is mistaken. Such sentences, even before their translation into counterpart theory, have a peculiar status, being what Kaplan calls contingently logical falsehoods.

EMBODIED PRACTICAL INTELLIGENCE (IV-C)

DIANA TIETJENS MEYERS, UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT-STORRS

Affective states and patterns of affective response are central to our identities as agents, for they color perception and shape motivation. Yet, few philosophers of action have included affectivity in their accounts of autonomy and practical intelligence. This paper clarifies the relation between embodiment and affectivity as well as the role of embodied affectivity in agency. I argue against the view that affective bodily feelings are devoid of content apart from beliefs, and I argue that affective bodily feelings endow corporeity with cognitive capacities and mechanisms of intelligent control.

MERLEAU-PONTY'S ACCOUNT OF PERCEPTION (VII-D)

KOMARINE ROMDENH-ROMLUC, UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

Perception occupies a central place in Merleau-Ponty's philosophy. For him, perceptual consciousness is primary consciousness. It is in perception that the lived world comes into being for the subject, who simultaneously becomes a subject: a consciousness oriented towards a world. It thus goes without saying that if one wants to understand Merleau-Ponty's philosophy, one must get to grips with his theory of perception. My aim in this paper is to set out Merleau-Ponty's view of what it is to perceive. Merleau-Ponty's claim that perception is the condition of there being both a world and a subject indicates that his concerns are different from those of contemporary theorists writing on perception. It follows that the problems with which such theorists engage do not arise for Merleau-Ponty. Nevertheless, it will be helpful to initially approach his account via these problems, since a consideration of why his theory does not face them will aid our understanding of his account. Having clarified the metaphysical status he accords perception, I will continue to develop my reading of his theory. I will argue that perception has no content on his view but is, instead, an activity of bodily consciousness, in which the subject is in direct contact with a yet-to-be-formed world. Through the subject's continued engagement with perceived things, a world takes shape, and the Lebenswelt eventually emerges.

TRENDS IN FRENCH PHILOSOPHY: FASHION? OU AUTRE CHOSE? (IV-F)

ALAN D. SCHRIFT, GRINNELL COLLEGE

Whether in philosophical circles or the popular media, there is a widely held belief that there is an inherent trendiness to French philosophy that other, "more serious" philosophical traditions shun. This paper shows that much of what looks like passing fashion is in fact the consequence of a state-controlled examination created over two centuries ago to credential lycée instructors: the agrégation de philosophie. Analyzing the correlation between this exam, faculty teaching responsibilities, and publication histories, I argue that the agrégation has played a heretofore unrecognized and crucial role in the intellectual formation of all French philosophers.

REPAIR AND THE SCAFFOLD OF MEMORY: POST-KATRINA REFLECTIONS (V-B)

ELIZABETH V. SPELMAN, SMITH COLLEGE

In December 2005 residents of the Ninth Ward of New Orleans were allowed at last to find out whether their dwelling places were salvageable or their belongings retrievable. We might begin to understand the moral and political significance of their losses, and of debates over whether or what to rebuild in New Orleans, by considering the following: What is the nature of the relation between people and the place-defining objects by which they are surrounded? How do objects such as personal belongings and familiar buildings provide scaffolding for memory? In what ways does it matter whether such objects are preserved, restored, rebuilt, or replicated? How is the repair of infrastructure connected to repair of the social fabric?

MAIMONIDEAN SKEPTICISM, THE INTELLECT, AND DIVINE UNITY (IV-A)

JOSEF STERN, UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

In his Guide of the Perplexed, part I ch. 68, Maimonides, in the name of the philosophers, draws an analogy (that he is said to have been the first to notice, though it concerns two well-known Aristotelian doctrines) between the human and divine intellects: for each, the intellect in act, cognizing subject, and cognized object are identical. Readers of the Guide have found this analogy perplexing because its affirmative claim about the deity seems to contradict both Maimonides's advocacy of negative theology (laid out in the preceding chapters Guide I: 50-60) and his repeated assertion that there is no similarity between God's knowledge and humans'. In reaction, they draw one of two morals. Either they discount the negative theology and defend the metaphysical claim that the deity is an intellect, or they try to explain away Maimonides's claims about the divine intellect as a theological ruse to deflect the radical consequences of his negative theology. In this paper, I argue, to the contrary, that Guide I:68 is a critique (rather than defense) of the philosophers' view that the deity is an intellect. Maimonides's criticism extends an objection, drawn from the Arabic Plotinus, that he had already raised against negative divine attributions: both the subject-predicate syntax of attributive propositions (including negated privations) and the relational character of knowledge violate the unity, or simplicity, that Maimonides demands not just of God but also, in order to achieve scientific knowledge, of our representations of the deity. After working out the details of this argument, I show its significance for Maimonides's skepticism about the possibility of human knowledge of metaphysics and its place in the context of contemporary disputes over Maimonides's epistemology. Time permitting, I shall also sketch the implications of Maimonides's skepticism for his account of intellectual providence and his conception of the task of philosophy.

DO WE REALLY NEED A SOCIAL ORDERING? (III-E)

PETER VALLENTYNE, UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI-COLUMBIA

In Weighing Lives, John Broome defends a version of critical utilitarianism according to which the general (or moral) value of a world is determined by the sum, over the lives in the world, of the well being of each life less the "morally neutral" level of well being. Lives with positive well being, but below the morally neutral level, thus reduce the value of the world. Broome's argument rests on an assumption that general (or moral) value is complete and transitive. I shall question both assumptions and suggest that a person-affecting approach to morality developed by Melinda Roberts is more promising. It appeals to complete and transitive orderings of well being for each individual but involves no appeal to complete and transitive general value.

TRUTH AND TELLINGS IN MORAL REPAIR (V-B)

MARGARET URBAN WALKER, ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY

Truth-telling in cases of serious wrongs, increasingly embodied on the large scale in truth commissions and in human rights standards, is obviously instrumental to responding to wrongs with justice and appropriate compassion. I argue further that both the discovery and the tellings of truths aspire to a restructure a moral and epistemic community. I look at two aspects of moral repair, acknowledgment and voice, arguing that the standing to claim access to certain truths as well as the authority and credibility to speak certain truths is a constituent of full membership in a human moral community. To lack this standing is not only to be rendered vulnerable to mistreatment, injustice and violence. As important, to be mistreated, violated or oppressed itself can undermine this standing both for individuals themselves and between them. Thus the moral importance and the communal responsibility of protecting, reaffirming or creating the status of full and reciprocal accountability in the wake of serious wrongs.

DIFFERENCES THAT MAKE A DIFFERENCE: METAPHILOSOPHICAL REFLECTIONS ON EPISTEMIC PLURALISM (VIII-C)

ALISON WYLIE, UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

The time has come, Harding argues, to compare and strategically integrate the fruits of diverse critiques of ideals of truth, value freedom, and unity in science—to chart a way forward, both for the sciences themselves and for the conjoint disciplines of science studies. This is a constructive move, predicated on a conviction that it is only epistemic absolutists who can assume that, in giving up claims to “transcultural” warrant, we risk a corrosive epistemic relativism. Indeed, Harding argues that democratic, pluralist forms of science practice can be expected to produce more accurate, robust, maximally “objective” forms of knowledge, but this is a potentiality that can only be grasped by “a different philosophy of science” (2006: 152): one that focuses on the pragmatics of science and takes seriously the ubiquitous and productive role of (context-specific) values in science.

I ask what this alternative mode of philosophical analysis comes to, and what reformulated epistemic ideals it can sustain. A primary goal of such analysis must be to specify more precisely what epistemic advantages follow from the forms of pluralism—epistemic diversity—Harding endorses for science. Although Harding does not, herself, pursue such a course, I argue that this requires a resolutely case-based approach to philosophical analysis, cautious of context-stripping and of the sorts of abstractions that have been the stock in trade for analytic philosophy of science. But in this case the question of standards of adequacy reasserts itself, with respect to both the descriptive and the normative dimensions of the enterprise. I consider, in conclusion, the implications that Harding’s brief for pluralism has for philosophical practice.

APA PLACEMENT SERVICE LOCATIONS

The Placement Services will be located in the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel as outlined below. For your convenience, maps of the hotel appear at the back of this issue.

JOB CANDIDATES

1. Candidate Numbers will be assigned at the Placement Desk.
 2. The location of a Job Interview will be available from the Placement staff, or posted on the bulletin board at the information desk.
 3. Additional “Request for Interview” forms will be available at the Placement Desk.

4. APA Membership Applications will be available at the APA Meeting Registration Desk.
5. Information and instructions for using the Service will be available at the Placement desk (also see following pages), and posted on the information bulletin board.
6. The mailboxes for Job Candidates will be located at the Placement Desk.
7. A complete set of Job Postings will be available at the Placement Desk.
8. A message for the APA Placement Ombudsperson can be left at the Placement Desk.

INTERVIEWERS

1. Interviewers check in here—as soon as possible upon arrival.
2. Payments for On-Site Interviewing Departments will be received here.
3. Space will be provided here for interviewers to check their files.
4. “Request for Interview” forms received from job candidates that have been reviewed by interviewers should be returned here.
5. A list of interviewing table assignments will be posted on the Placement Information Bulletin Board.

INTERVIEWING AREA

1. APA Interviewing Tables will be located here.
2. In the event that additional space for interviewing is needed, we will post the additional location on the Placement Information Bulletin Board.

INFORMATION AND INSTRUCTIONS FOR JOB CANDIDATES

REQUIREMENTS FOR USING THE PLACEMENT SERVICE

1. You must be an APA member in order to use the Service. Placement is a benefit of membership for candidates, and there is no additional charge to use this service. Membership applications are available on the APA web site (www.apaonline.org) or by contacting the APA National Office (302) 831-1112, or at the Membership/Registration desk at the Meeting.
 2. You MUST REGISTER for the MEETING in order to use the Service.
 - If you register in advance for the meeting and indicate that you will be a candidate (an advance registration form is located at the back of this issue), a candidate number will be assigned in the National Office and will appear on the back of your badge. You must pick up your badge from the APA Registration staff prior to using the Placement service.
 - If you register on-site for the meeting, present your badge to the Placement Staff, who will be available to assign you a candidate number in the “Placement Service” line.

WHAT TO BRING WITH YOU

1. Your copies of recent issues of Jobs for Philosophers.
2. Several copies of your curriculum vitae. If you run out of CVs at the meeting, the hotel has a copy center located in the Business Center.

HOW TO USE THE PLACEMENT SERVICE

After you have picked up your registration materials from the APA Registration staff, you are ready to use the Service. If you do not yet have a candidate number on the back of your badge, please go to the job candidates' area to receive one.

JOB CANDIDATES' AREA

Here you will find a file folder (mailbox) with your candidate number on it. All communications addressed to you during the meeting will be placed there. Your folder contains:

1. "Request for Interview" forms. Additional forms will be available from the Placement staff. Be sure that your Placement Number appears at the top of all forms.
2. A "Locator" form for you to list your name and hotel address. Please do not remove this form from your folder. This is used only in the event that we need to contact you during the meeting.

JOB POSTINGS

New jobs (not having appeared in the Jobs for Philosophers) will be posted on a bulletin board in the Placement Service Area. You should check this board regularly for new postings. Each ad should contain instructions on how to apply.

INSTITUTIONS THAT HAVE CHECKED IN WITH PLACEMENT

The names of institutions that have registered to use the Service will be posted on the bulletin board (updated regularly) in alphabetical order. Each listing will indicate the following:

1. If the listing institution has checked in with Placement.
 2. If the institution is accepting interview requests at the meeting.
 3. The relevant JFP for the institution's opening(s).
 4. Where the institution plans on interviewing (Table with number assignment).
 5. Miscellaneous notes deemed appropriate by the Placement staff or the institution.

SUBMITTING AN INTERVIEW REQUEST FORM

Complete the top portion of the “Request for Interview” form and attach a copy of your CV. Be sure that your candidate number appears at the top of all forms. After you have completed the necessary information, place your request form and CV in the box marked Requests for Interviews which will be prominently displayed on the Placement Service Desk. Your “Request” will be forwarded to the institution by a staff member.

INTERVIEWS

After your “Request” has been reviewed by a representative from the institution, the form will be returned to your file folder with the institution’s response appearing on the bottom of the form. Check your file folder often so that you can be certain to receive your messages promptly.

By Noon on December 30, all “Requests” submitted by you should have been returned to your file folder, and you should remove them at that time. Occasionally, an institution may retain applications to review at a later date. If you applied for a job that had been posted and the institution did not check in with the Service during the meeting, it is suggested that you contact the institution by mail.

INTERVIEWING LOCATIONS

Some departments will be conducting interviews at tables. Other interviewing table locations will be posted if additional space is required. Each institution using a table for interviewing will be assigned a table number. The table numbers assigned to institutions will be posted on the bulletin board in the Placement Service Area.

ADVICE FOR JOB APPLICANTS

The APA Committee on Career Opportunities offers the following advice for job applicants: The schedule for those seeking jobs and those Departments offering positions is difficult for all concerned. From the point of view of Departments, any publication date for Jobs for Philosophers is a compromise between the competing demands imposed by the need to get funding for positions, so the later the better, and by the need to have time to process applications, so the sooner the better. From the point of view of job applicants, there are also competing demands: the sooner it is published, the more time to apply, but the later it is published, the more opportunities will be available. There is no easy solution to this problem, but you can ease your difficulties somewhat by being prepared when the JFP is published. You should have your curriculum vitae ready to put in an envelope, a generic draft of a letter of application ready to be fine-tuned for particular job opportunities, and the rest of your file ready for mailing. This means talking to those who are to write letters of recommendation long before the JFP is due to arrive, preparing material about your teaching capacities, and selecting a writing sample for those Departments that request it. Applications should be complete, as well as clearly organized. It is to your advantage to send in your application as soon as possible after an ad appears.

INFORMATION AND INSTRUCTIONS FOR INTERVIEWERS

REQUIREMENTS FOR USING THE PLACEMENT SERVICE

1. It is expected that all individual interviewers will register for the meeting either by using the registration form found in the back of this issue or by stopping at the APA Registration Desk to register on-site prior to using the Placement Service.
2. All Departments (not individuals) planning to interview at the meeting should complete the Placement Service advance registration form found on our web site, www.apaonline.org/apa/divisions/eastern or at the end of this section.

Upon receipt of an advance registration form additional information pertaining to the Placement Service will be sent to the attention of the contact person listed on the form. In the event that we send Placement forms either via email or mail, please be sure to complete these and return them to our office at your earliest opportunity. Not doing so may cause your materials to arrive after the Staff has already left the office to travel to the meeting. In this case, we must have you fill out the forms again on site. If time does not allow sending them to us, please bring them with you and turn them in at the Placement Desk.

CHECKING IN WITH THE SERVICE

Before you begin to interview candidates, please check in with the Placement Staff. We will need to know that you have arrived on site for candidates inquiring about your institution. Additional information will be requested from you (or confirmed if your department pre-registered) at this time as well.

Some institutions accept interview requests at the meeting; some of these job notices may have appeared in Jobs for Philosophers while others are unpublished positions. A new, unpublished position will be assigned an AD# and posted on the bulletin board in the Placement Service area. If you are bringing such a job notice with you to the meeting, please provide the Placement Staff with four copies of the notice for the position you are advertising. Such a position announcement should be typed on one side only in a good size and easy to read font, and be as brief as possible. Only positions that have not appeared in Jobs for Philosophers will be posted. If you would like a position that has been posted at this meeting to appear on our website immediately following the meeting, or in the issue of Jobs for Philosophers, you need to submit this ad immediately, following the close of the meeting via our website, www.apa.udel.edu/apa/publications/jfp/advertise.asp. If you need assistance with this, contact the APA National Office.

Some institutions interview by prearrangement after placing an advertisement in Jobs for Philosophers and then contacting candidates prior to the meeting. When you arrange an interview with candidates, please inform them that they must be APA Members in order to use the Service and they must register for the meeting in order to use the Service.

If you plan to conduct job interviews anywhere other than at the interviewing tables/suites we have provided, please let us know your plans because candidates often come to us to ask questions about the location/time (etc.) of their interviews, and we need to have complete, up-to-date information in order to help them (and you).

Departments using a Suite for interviewing will need to complete an interview schedule form at the time they check in with the Service. Doing so enables the Service to notify the candidates you wish to interview of your interviewing location. Be assured that only those candidates listed on your interview schedule will be told the location of your hotel room, unless you have directed us to give this information to all candidates who ask. Departments interviewing at tables DO NOT need to complete this form.

N.B.: If you are conducting interviews in a hotel room, please be aware of the following policy statement adopted by the APA Board of Officers at its November 2004 meeting:

“Departments should not conduct Job Interviews in non-suite hotel rooms. Candidates who are subject to such interviews can appeal to the APA and are guaranteed anonymity.” (Originally published in Proceedings and Addresses of the American Philosophical Association, Vol. 78, No. 5, pp. 23, 119.)

APA INTERVIEWING TABLES

The Placement Service provides numbered tables for interviewing purposes; you will receive your table number assignment when you check in. These table number assignments will also be posted on the Placement Service Bulletin Board. Should additional space for interviewing tables be necessary, this location will be posted as well.

INSTITUTION FILE FOLDER (MAILBOX)

There will be a file folder bearing the name of your institution. Requests for interviews from candidates will be placed in this file folder.

REVIEWING INTERVIEW REQUESTS

When a candidate requests an interview with your institution, you should receive her/his curriculum vitae attached to a “Request for Interview” form. The bottom of this form is to be completed by you and returned to Placement staff. If an interview is granted, space is provided on this form to list the time, date, and location of the interview. If you are unable to interview a candidate, space for this response is also provided on the form. Any request you receive in an envelope contains confidential material and should be destroyed rather than returned to the candidate. As a matter of professional courtesy, all requests should receive a response. When a candidate receives a “Request” form back without a response, he or she is likely to assume that the material has not been reviewed and might return this to you via our service or contact your institution by mail.

Each candidate is assigned a numbered file folder to facilitate prompt communication between interviewers and candidates. Materials that you wish to transmit to a registered candidate should be handed in to the Placement Service staff, and will be delivered to the candidate by our staff.

APA STATEMENT ON PLACEMENT PRACTICES

The APA Committee on the Status and Future of the Profession reminds you of its Statement on Placement Practices: The APA discourages the nomination by graduate departments of job seekers for positions in philosophy, and the submission of their dossiers in response to announcements of positions, without their knowledge or interest. This may seriously mislead those who are conducting searches, and may have unfortunate consequences both for them and for genuinely interested applicants. Graduate departments using a nomination procedure or submitting dossiers on behalf of job seekers should either attest explicitly that the candidate wishes to be considered for the positions in question, or (preferably) ensure that the job seekers themselves submit personal letters of application for these positions. Departments conducting searches are encouraged to recommend or require explicitly (in their position announcements) that each candidate, to be assessed of full consideration, should submit a personal letter of application for and interest in the announced position.

A Placement Ombudsperson will be available at the meeting. Please see the Placement Service Staff if you would like to contact the Ombudsperson.

PAPER SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Online Paper Submissions: Papers may be submitted either electronically or in hard copy by mail. For electronic submissions, follow the instructions on the APA web site. For hard copy submissions, mail to: Lindsay Palkovitz, ATTN: [Eastern, Pacific, or Central] Division Papers, The American Philosophical Association, University of Delaware, 31 Amstel Avenue, Newark, DE 19716, (302) 831-1112. NOTE: Authors of accepted papers will be asked to submit their abstracts by e-mail to the National Office. Papers in any area are welcome. All papers are blind reviewed. Author's name, institution, or references pertaining to the identity of the author should be omitted from the paper, abstract, notes, and bibliography. Submitted papers are not returned to authors. Papers not accepted by one Division may be re-submitted for consideration to another Division. In submitting papers, authors warrant that those papers are entirely their own work or the joint work of the authors identified in the cover letter, and that, where appropriate, acknowledgement of the contributions of others has been made.

Graduate Student Travel Stipends and Awards: Papers to be considered for Graduate Student Travel Stipends/Awards must meet the criteria specified by each Division. For more information, visit the following address: www.apa.udel.edu/apa/divisions/stipends.

GUIDELINES FOR ALL THREE DIVISIONS

(*Guidelines 6, 7, 9, and 10 only apply to authors who are submitting papers in hard copy.)

1. Authors must be members in good standing of the APA.
 2. 1 copy of the paper.
 3. 1 copy of the abstract.
 4. Colloquium papers are limited to 3,000 words.
 5. Abstracts for colloquium papers are limited to 150 words.
 - *6. Title or cover page, which must include: a) title; b) word counts for all papers and abstracts; c) author's contact information; d) the Division the paper is to be submitted for.
 - *7. Papers must be typed on one side of page, double spaced, 1-inch margins on all sides, all pages numbered, 10-12 pt. font.
 8. No more than one submission by the same author for the same Division will be considered.
 - *9. Indicate name of Division on outside lower left side of the envelope containing the paper.
 - *10. Include a self-addressed stamped envelope to the National Office if you wish the receipt of your paper to be acknowledged.

11. Any paper which is under consideration for publication elsewhere will be considered, provided that it will not appear in print until after the Divisional meeting is held. If this is the case, indicate when and where the paper is expected to be published.
12. Papers are not accepted by e-mail.
13. Authors are advised to provide accurate email addresses as part of their contact information because they may be contacted by email, sometimes under urgent circumstances. Authors who expect to relocate between the date of submission and the date of the meeting should arrange for email forwarding, or else provide both current and new email addresses with their contact information.

EASTERN DIVISION:

Meeting is held December 27-30.

Selections are announced in May or June.

Papers accepted by either the Central Division or the Pacific Division may not be presented at any subsequent meeting of the Eastern Division.

Papers exceeding 3,000 words will not be considered as colloquium papers.

Submissions for consideration as symposium papers must not exceed a length of 5,000 words. Abstracts for symposium papers must not exceed a length of 300 words. Authors should be aware that only a few papers are selected for presentation as symposium papers. If authors wish to have a shortened version of their paper considered as a colloquium paper, they should submit the appropriately shortened version, along with a shortened abstract, simultaneously with the submission of the symposium paper.

Any paper submitted without an abstract will not be considered. Any paper whose abstract is deemed unacceptable by the Program Committee will not be accepted. No revised abstract submitted after the paper's acceptance will be published in the Proceedings and Addresses of The American Philosophical Association without the approval of the Program Committee.

PACIFIC DIVISION:

Meeting is usually held at the end of March.

Selections are announced in January.

A paper that has been on the Main Program at a past APA meeting (any division), or will be on the Main Program at a future Central or Eastern Division meeting, cannot be presented as a Main Program colloquium/symposium paper at the Pacific Division meeting.

Submissions for consideration as colloquium papers must not exceed 3,000 words.

Submissions for consideration as symposium papers must not exceed a length of 5,000 words. Abstracts for symposium papers must not exceed a length of 300 words. Authors should be aware that only a few papers are selected for presentation as symposium papers. If authors wish to have a shortened version of their paper considered as a colloquium paper, they should submit the appropriately shortened version, along with a shortened abstract, simultaneously with the submission of the symposium paper. (This will be considered a single submission.)

CENTRAL DIVISION:

Meeting is usually held at the end of April.

Selections are announced in January, or before when possible.

Papers under consideration by the Pacific Division will not be considered by the Central Division.

Papers exceeding 3,000 words will not be considered.

MINUTES OF THE 2005 EASTERN DIVISION BUSINESS MEETING

1. The meeting was called to order at 11:23 a.m. by President Jerry Fodor.
 2. President Fodor announced the agenda, which had been distributed to members present, and appointed Stephanie Lewis as Parliamentarian.
 3. The minutes of the 2004 Business Meeting, which had been published in the Proceedings, volume 79, number 1 (September 2005), were approved as published.
 4. The Secretary-Treasurer announced that the minutes of the December 27, 2004, Executive Committee meeting had been published in the Proceedings, volume 79, number 1 (September 2005), and had been formally approved by the Executive Committee (at its December 27, 2005, meeting) as published. The Secretary-Treasurer also reported that the 2005 Program Committee had met in April 2005 to establish the submitted portion of the 2005 program, and that the 2006 Program Committee had met in September 2005 to establish the invited portion of the 2006 program.
 5. The reports of Eastern Division mail ballots, which had been published in the Proceedings, volume 79, number 1 (September 2005), were received.
 6. The auditor's report of the division's finances for fiscal year 2004-2005, which had been distributed to members present, was received.
 7. The report of the Nominating Committee, which (as announced in the Proceedings, volume 79, number 2 (November 2005)) had been posted on the APA web site since October 2005, was received.
 8. The Secretary-Treasurer reported the following actions taken by the Executive Committee at its December 27, 2005 meeting: The Committee decided to fund a few foreign invited speakers per year, on a three-year trial basis, to attend the meeting; the details are to be worked out by a sub-committee and then submitted to the full Committee for approval or modification. The Committee also decided to renew for another three years the agreement among the three Divisions to pool Divisional advertising revenue, and to contribute $6,500 towards the funding for a new summer institute promoting diversity in philosophy; the Board of Officers had already agreed to provide the latter funding, and to invite the Eastern Division to contribute towards the project in the form of a reimbursement to the National Office in this amount (representing one-third of the total). This request may be renewed for another two years. Finally, the Committee reappointed Richard Bett as Secretary-Treasurer for a three-year term beginning July 1, 2006.

9. The Secretary-Treasurer announced the nominations of the Executive Committee for two positions on the Nominating Committee and invited other nominations from the floor. Listed alphabetically, the Executive Committee's nominees are Martha Bolton, Rae Langton, Howard McGary, and Henry Richardson. No nominations from the floor were forthcoming.
10. The Secretary-Treasurer reported that the winners of the Graduate Student Travel Stipends had been awarded their prizes at a reception the previous evening, and were listed in the Proceedings, volume 79, number 1 (September 2005) at the place in the program where the reception was announced. No William James Prize was awarded this year.
11. President Fodor read the names of those members whose deaths had been reported since the 2004 Business Meeting. Their names are:

Frederick Adelman	Dominick Iorio
Francis Willard Brush	James J. Jelinak
Claude Caspar	James H. Kiersky
Gerrit Daams	C.H. Kenneth Knisely
M.C. Dillon	Louis H. Mackey
John M. Dolan	Paul L. Mathews
Paul Edwards	Stanley Paluch
Brian K. Etter	Louis P. Pojman
Charles A. Fritz	Edward Pols
Jonathan Gold	Charles M. Sherover
James R. Greenwell	Craig Staudenbaur
David Gruber	Roger J. Sullivan
Lewis E. Hahn	Henry M. Walton
Catherine Harris	John William Yolton
W. Murray Hunt
12. Reports were received from Ernest Sosa, Chair of the Board of Officers, concerning actions taken at the November 2005 Board meeting, and from William Mann, Acting Executive Director, concerning the upcoming search for a new Executive Director.
13. There were no items of new business.
14. The agenda called for an open forum on issues concerning the welfare of the Division and the Association. No such issues were raised.
15. The meeting adjourned at 11:43 a.m.

Respectfully submitted,

Richard Bett

Secretary-Treasurer

MINUTES OF THE 2005 EASTERN DIVISION EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

Present: Seyla Benhabib, Richard Bett, Bob Brandom, Cheshire Calhoun, Jorge Garcia, Christine Korsgaard, Michele Moody-Adams, David Rosenthal, Ernest Sosa, Merold Westphal. Visitor: William Mann (items 1-9). Absent: Jerry Fodor.

The Executive Committee took the following actions at its meeting on December 27, 2005:

1. Approved the minutes of its previous meeting on December 27, 2004 (as published in Proceedings and Addresses volume 79, number 1, September 2005, pp. 143-145).
 2. Received a report on other actions of Eastern Division committees during the 2005 calendar year, including the results so far of the experiment to expand the invited portion of the Eastern Division program, as agreed at the 2004 meeting.
 3. Set the agenda for the 2005 Business Meeting.
 4. Heard reports from William Mann, Acting Executive Director of the Association, and Ernest Sosa, Chair of the Board of Officers, concerning a) actions at the 2005 Board meeting, b) the search for a new Executive Director to be conducted in the spring of 2006, and c) a new data collection project to be undertaken by the Committee on the Status and Future of the Profession, hopefully in conjunction with the AAUP.
 5. Received a report on the Division's financial situation. The question was raised as to whether to adjust the ratio of the amounts invested in the various funds so as to bring it back into line with the ratio agreed upon when these funds were originally invested. It was decided that no action would be taken at present, but that the question would be revisited every three years, and that on these occasions Stephanie Lewis, Treasurer to the APA Board of Officers and investment advisor to the Eastern Division, would be invited to the meeting to give her opinion.
 6. Considered the question of providing travel funding and accommodation for a few foreign invited speakers. It was decided that there should be a systematic procedure for doing this, rather than a practice of responding ad hoc to requests. As for what that systematic procedure should be, the matter was referred back to the sub-committee originally appointed in 2004 to consider the question, and consisting of Richard Bett (Chair), Ernest Sosa, and Bob Brandom, with Stephanie Lewis as outside consultant. It was, however, decided that such speakers should somehow be required to demonstrate need; that whatever plan was decided upon should be on a three-year experimental basis; and that - the amount to be allocated for this purpose per year should be $7,500.

7. Approved the 2005-2006 Divisional budget. In addition, the following finance-related decisions were made: a) the Secretary-Treasurer was directed to find out how much other comparable associations charge in exhibit booth fees, to determine on this basis whether and, if so, by what amount to raise the Eastern Division exhibit booth fees, and to present these figures to the Executive Committee for consideration and approval or modification; b) it was decided that the mileage reimbursement rate for, e.g., Program Committee members traveling to committee meetings by car should be the rate used by the IRS; c) the policy on reimbursing Executive Committee members for attending the meeting was modified so as to read as follows: "With the exception of the Secretary-Treasurer, Executive Committee members are not reimbursed for travel to the Eastern Division meeting unless they would not have attended the meeting but for the Executive Committee meeting or their home institutions refuse to cover these costs. Officers of the Division (i.e., President, Vice President, Past President, Divisional Representative and Secretary-Treasurer) receive hotel rooms from the complimentary room block; at-large members of the committee do not, but will be reimbursed for their hotel costs if the above condition obtains"; d) the policy of pooling advertising revenue with that of the Pacific and Central Divisions, for the purpose of supporting divisional activities, was approved for another three years; and e) the request of the Board of Officers that $6,500 be provided to the National Office to contribute towards the funding of the first year of a new summer institute proposed by the FEAST (Association for Feminist Ethics and Social Theory) Diversity Committee, with the possibility of renewal for another two years, was approved.
 8. Received a report on expenses associated with support of philosophers affected by hurricanes Katrina and Rita.
 9. Received a report on hotel contracts signed since the last meeting, and decided not to alter the current practice of negotiating contracts so as to incorporate a requirement concerning competitive bidding. In addition, a resolution passed by the Board of Officers encouraging a policy of union preference in hotel contracts, and the avoidance, whenever feasible, of holding meetings in the midst of labor disputes, was received and discussed. (See minutes of 2005 Board meeting, published in Proceedings and Addresses volume 79, number 5, May 2006, p. 27.) Any concrete response to this resolution will, however, have to await the negotiating of a new contract, which is not planned until early 2007.
 10. Appointed Richard Bett Secretary-Treasurer for a second three-year term beginning July 2006, on the same conditions as for the first term.
 11. Recognized as affiliated groups the International Association for Computing and Philosophy, the International Association for the Philosophy of Sport, and the International Association of Environmental Philosophers.
 12. Received a report on the winners of Divisional awards and prizes, and decided that all graduate students, not only those in residence, should be eligible for Graduate Student Travel Stipends.

13. Nominated four candidates for two positions on the 2006 Nominating Committee. They are Martha Bolton, Rae Langton, Howard McGary, and Henry Richardson. Two alternates were also decided upon, to be contacted should one or more of these candidates decline to stand.
14. After receiving suggestions from the Committee on Committees, established a list of candidates and alternates for membership on the 2007 Program Committee and instructed the Secretary-Treasurer to form a committee from that list plus the list of continuing members.
15. After receiving suggestions from the Committee on Committees, established a list of candidates and alternates for membership on the Advisory Committee to the Program Committee and instructed the Secretary-Treasurer to form a committee from that list plus the list of continuing members.

Respectfully submitted,

Richard Bett

Secretary-Treasurer
