Philosophy taught me how to think critically and ask the right questions. Many of the concepts I studied still inspire how I see things and how I frame ideas.