Statement:

Why do I want to serve the ARMA community as a Director? In a word: belonging. Belonging to ARMA has provided me with professional connections that extend far beyond my geography, my workplace, and my educational background. Belonging to ARMA opened a career path to me that I had not yet imagined for myself as a 20-something with an MLIS degree. I want this sense of belonging for our next wave of Information Professionals. It is my professional and ethical responsibility pay it forward by volunteering my time to help ARMA continue to provide the resources, guidance, and support for the next generation of members.

As former ICRM Board of Regents President, I've demonstrated the qualifications and skills needed for the ARMA Director role. I'm committed to growth through collaboration among RIM and IG for the long haul.
