Why is the 2017 Annual Meeting of ASNM Special?

- 2017’s Annual Meeting is the 40th anniversary of the first workshop on evoked potential monitoring which was held in Cleveland, OH 1977 and hosted by Clyde Nash.

- The second workshop was held in St. Louis, MO in 1979.

- The third gathering was held in Tokyo, Japan and was called “the first international symposium on spinal cord monitoring” and was hosted by Dr. Tetsuya Tamaki.

- The next meeting was held in Erlangen, Germany in 1984 and was called “the second international symposium on spinal cord monitoring” and was hosted by Dr. Johannes Schramm.

- In 1986, Drs. Thomas Ducker and Richard Brown hosted a meeting in Annapolis, MD.

- Dr. Koki Shimoji hosted a fourth meeting in Niigata, Japan in 1989.

- Each of these events were organized by the International Scientific Committees and were the foundation upon which the American Society of Neurophysiological Monitoring (ASNM) was established in 1990.

- The 2017 Annual Meeting will honor the pioneers whose research, clinical expertise, and leadership have made great strides for the field of intraoperative neuromonitoring and the Society.
