Global Pharmaceutical company AbbVie Sponsors
CHICAGO CHAPTER, AND National Organization of IT Giant BDPA

(LARGO, MD) National BDPA is honored to have the global biopharmaceutical giant, AbbVie as a bronze level sponsor. AbbVie is not only a research-based pharmaceutical manufacturer but also an advocate for better worldwide healthcare with an aim to make a remarkable impact on people's every day lives. Their sponsorship bolsters the support of BDPA's local and national membership of skilled professionals and students at all levels in any and all endeavors related to the STEM fields.

AbbVie prides itself in the cornerstones of research and innovation. They understand that to advance cutting-edge science it must be done through a dynamic and collaborative approach. They collaborate with peers, universities, clinical experts, governments, and advocacy groups to seek new ways of providing solutions for their patients, and they understand that their continued success includes being a good corporate citizen and giving back to the very communities that their employees work and live. BDPA is grateful for the partnership with AbbVie and looks forward to using this partnership to enable a more diverse technology landscape.

For over 40 years, BDPA has enabled the upward mobility of minorities in technology from the classroom to the boardroom. The organization was founded in 1975 by Earl Pace and David Wimberly to close the digital divide for underrepresented minorities in STEM fields. BDPA has over 40 chapters nationwide and offers more than $100,000 in scholarships annually to hundreds of high school and college students who wish to pursue STEM careers.
