August 15, 2018

On behalf of the Florida Council for Community Mental Health and the Florida Alcohol and Drug Abuse Association and in collaboration with the Florida Hospital Association, we welcome you to the 2018 Florida Behavioral Health Conference!

The program for this year’s conference is packed with interesting and informative presentations on a wide variety of topics impacting the behavioral health industry. Each day’s agenda features dynamic subject matter experts from across the country who share your passion for improving lives and taking behavioral health care in Florida to the next level of success and effectiveness.

The theme of this year's conference is “Don't Stop Believing.” That phrase is both a call to future action and a reminder to reflect on the thousands of lives that have already been improved – and in some cases, saved – by people like yourselves, who have committed themselves to the work of behavioral health care.

Your work can be challenging and the issues you confront each day have become increasingly complex, but the individual contributions you make form the fabric of a vital safety net for vulnerable Floridians of all ages. So, Don't Stop Believing your work is important and it is making a positive difference by giving hope, healing, strength, recovery and resilience to others.

Over the next few days we invite you to learn, network and be encouraged about your work. Don't Stop Believing that together we can continue to improve and refine our system of care so all Floridians can have access to the behavioral health services they need.

This annual event could not be a success without the generous support of our sponsors: Aetna Foundation, Alkermes, Beacon Health Options, Iris Telehealth, Magellan Complete Care, Otsuka, Streamline Healthcare Services, Sunshine Health, Valant and WellCare. Their commitment to our work is very much appreciated. We also thank our exhibitors and advertisers for their continued support.

Please take time to relax, rejuvenate, and connect with your colleagues and peers while you enjoy the Conference!

Sincerely,

Mark Fontaine

Assisted Outpatient Treatment: Why and How It Can Work!

Salon A

Assisted Outpatient Treatment (AOT) in Florida is statutorily defined under the Baker Act (Chapter 394) as Involuntary Outpatient Services. This presentation will review the basic elements of the “Outpatient Baker Act” and how this treatment support is being used in Lake and Sumter Counties through a funding opportunity from SAMHSA. The AOT program is engaging individuals with frequent involuntary admissions in the recovery process with the aid of the court. We will discuss the prevailing opinion that the order “has no teeth” vs. our experience with “the black robe effect.” The success of the program is rooted in collaborative efforts among inpatient services, the judiciary and a multidisciplinary team providing direct services to the participants. Information about the evidence-based practices in use by the program.

Changing Criminal Behavior and Improving Treatment Delivery: The Role of Cognitive Behavioral Therapy

Salon B

Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) has become a recognized treatment modality for a number of interventions in different programs. However, specific knowledge of what it is, why it works, and how it should be implemented is not well understood. This presentation attempts to clarify what CBT is and why it is important and its continued impact on treating individuals with SUD and/or mental health problems.

Changing the World: Collective Impact, Wraparound, and Results-Based Accountability Strategies Used to Improve Systems of Care

Salon C

Creating long-term sustainable and transformational system change requires Champions, Collaborators, and Change Agents. This presentation will teach participants how to use a Collective Impact framework with Results-Based Accountability strategies to identify priorities, engage stakeholders, create meaningful activities, and evaluate outcomes, including the Wraparound process in systems of care. Examples of successful collective impact initiatives (Wraparound, Maternal Child Health, Co-occurring Conditions) will be shared as well as challenges and next steps. This methodology may be used in a variety of settings (system, organizational, program) as well as areas of interest. Participants will walk away with tools they can implement in their own workplace to effect change.

In this session, we will outline the more significant areas that require providers’ attention, and focus on the changes to 42 CFR Part 2 and what they mean to you. We will also discuss how federal and state law intersect on the issue of patient record confidentiality.

Early Childhood Court: Changing the Multigenerational Cycle of Adversity

Salon F

Many adult issues, including substance use and mental health conditions, and other adversities are now understood as disorders that began early in life. Early Childhood Court uses science to break the multigenerational cycle by fast-tracking services to address parents’ urgent needs, providing evidence-based interventions to address trauma histories, promoting a nurturing relationship through parent and child therapy, and establishing the supports needed to provide a safe, stable, and permanent home for the child. This session provides an overview of trauma science, illustrates the impact of adversity on child development, and explains how “baby courts” strengthen families, expedite permanency and prevent recurrence of abuse.

Mimi Graham, EdD, Director, Florida State University, Center for Prevention & Early Intervention Policy

Food and Addiction: Eating Disorders as a Substance Use Disorder

Salon G

Given the complexity and nature of eating disorders, this presentation seeks to shed light on the growing continuum of research pointing to the addictive elements driving pathological overeating and the regulation of appetite. The notion that some eating disorders resemble other forms of compulsive or addictive disorders is not entirely new. We will discuss the prevailing definition of Substance Use Disorder (SUD) as it applies to the biological and personality characteristics of an addict and what these have in common with disordered eating, as well as co-morbid SUD and eating disorders. In addition, the specific foods of abuse are identified and the interplay of biology and psychological factors are discussed, along with the evidence supporting this food addiction thesis and the implications of adopting this perspective.

Marty Lerner, PhD, CEO, Clinical Psychologist, Milestones In Recovery’s Eating Disorder Program
Harm Reduction in Florida

Salon H

This session will teach participants about the importance of harm reduction programs that provide health care services to people who use drugs, including needle exchange and naloxone distribution programs. Step-by-step instructions for recognizing and responding to an opioid overdose will be presented. Instructions for enrolling in DCF's Overdose Prevention Program will be provided to non-profit organizations interested in receiving free naloxone to distribute to individuals at risk of experiencing an opioid overdose. Other harm reduction strategies will be identified and discussed.

Amanda Muller, Overdose Prevention Coordinator, Florida Department of Children and Families

Initiating Overdose Drills in Addiction Treatment Programs: A Response to the Opioid Crisis

Salon I

The United States is experiencing an epidemic of opioid overdose deaths. This lecture will present some background and data on fentanyl's role in opioid overdoses and how drug users perceive the risks this substance poses. Further, providers of Substance Use Disorder treatment need to be prepared to respond to overdoses. This lecture will also present a novel response - overdose drills - that the Phoenix House programs have implemented nationwide to ensure preparedness.

Benjamin Nordstrom, MD, PhD, Acting President and CEO, Phoenix House

Older Adults and Suicide: Relevant Factors, Treatment Resources and Case Studies, Oh My!

Salon J

The number of older adults in the United States and abroad is rising. Death by suicide rates are climbing. At the same time more and more states are adopting options for assisted suicide (hastened death). We will explore several relevant factors which behavioral health providers must be knowledgeable to ensure quality care for older adults at risk for suicide. We will also explore a variety of clinical resources available to enhance your practice in different clinical treatment settings (residential, outpatient, etc.). Using the tradition of Story Corps (in which candid, unscripted conversations about life occur between two people), case studies will highlight clinical takeaways to inform your mind as a professional and to inform your heart as a human.

Power of Language: Change your Words and Change the World

Salon K

The nomenclature of the behavioral health treatment community is influenced by many factors including criminal justice, street slang, and cultural norms about mental illness and substance abuse. As members of the behavioral health community, we also have influence. We have the ability to affect change in our communities and society by changing the way we talk. In this workshop, we will discuss biased language and explore ways to use plain, descriptive language in place of labels, metaphors and slang to engender more productive relationships in our professional and personal lives.

Kristina Krug, President, Peer Support Coalition of Florida

Sobriety Enhancement and Full Recovery

Salon L

This presentation details the process of using evidence-based Sobriety Enhancement Strategies to achieve optimal results with Substance Use Disorder (SUD) individuals. Participants will learn how these individuals use substances to reinforce their misguided beliefs and to alter their perceptions. Genetic influences on substance initiation and substance use disorders are a guide to understanding the positive intent for the chosen psychological underpinning and the substance use. First use memories are a key to understanding how the substance brought some form of relief to the client's situation. An integral part of the presentation will be using a volunteer to demonstrate the use of early memories both directly and metaphorically, and finding the positive intent for client's early substance use.

Treating Trauma in the Adolescent Substance Use Disorder Population

Indian River/Hamilton (Downstairs)

Trauma is a significant underlying factor behind the Substance Use Disorders (SUD) affecting our nation’s adolescents. In this session, participants will learn the working definition of trauma and the prevalence of trauma in the SUD treatment setting. It is important for providers and families to be educated on the impact trauma can have on a person and their substance use, so they can offer a more effective recovery environment, during and after treatment. Additionally, this workshop will discuss approaches for assessing trauma and client centered treatment strategies by shifting the narrative from, “What is wrong with you?” to, “What happened to you?” to improve client outcomes.

The Polk County Helping Hands Project

Jackson (Downstairs)

Helping Hands is a collaborative project between the Polk County Health and Human Services Division, Polk County Jail, community providers and Central Florida Behavioral Health Network. The project is designed as an innovative and cost effective way to address the mental health needs of those released from the jail. In this project, the county is using community paramedics and peer supports to ensure individuals released from jail have access to medications and support services and participate in engagement activities. The goals of the program include reduced recidivism to the jail and acute care services, increased engagement and follow-up with services, and improved access to medications.

Why Projects Fail - Managing Complex Change in your Organization

Palm Beach (Downstairs)

In today’s competitive environment, change is the only constant. Organizations that have the ability to manage change will have a significant advantage over their competition. But the reality is that a majority of major change efforts end in failure. This workshop will introduce an adapted model for leading and managing complex change within your organization. It will explain the different competencies that are needed to properly lead and manage change, creating a framework to ensure success in any major project or initiative that you will undertake in the future.

Child Parent Relationship Therapy: How to Move Beyond the Barrier of Individual Therapy for Children
Salon A
In this presentation, clinicians will be exposed to Child Parent Relationship Therapy (CPRT) and learn how it can be utilized as a substitute or support for individual therapy. CPRT is a 10-session model of Filial Therapy developed by G. Landreth & S. Bratton. This model has the potential to change the way clinicians view treatment when working with young children and families. Imagine a world where the therapy does not stop in the play room but is continued throughout the course of the child’s life in the home. Giving parents the skills a play therapist utilizes helps increase the odds for success by changing the parents’ perception of the child’s behaviors, allowing them to see the whole child rather than the problems.

How to Boost Your Drug Court’s Success Rate Through the Proper Use of Sanctions, Incentives and Drug Testing
Salon B
Based on 60 years of behavior research, this workshop will transform your understanding of incentives and sanctions and dramatically improve your understanding of the science related to behavior management and change. This workshop will also review the best practices of drug testing and answer questions like: What exactly does “random” mean? What does “observed” mean? What is creatinine and why do we need to measure it? How many and what types of drugs should we be testing for? How often should we be testing participants? What should we do if a participant challenges the drug test results? By the end of this workshop, you will know how to do drug testing that follows “best practices.” You will also know how to implement sanctions and incentives to obtain the highest success rate for your drug court or treatment provider.

Meeting the Needs of Commercially Sexually Exploited Children: Connecting Research to Practice
Salon E
Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children (CSEC) has garnered considerable attention in child welfare, but there is limited empirical research or evaluation on the services provided to these children. This presentation describes the approach taken by Citrus Helping Adolescents Negatively impacted by Commercial Exploitation (CHANCE), a treatment program for CSEC victims implemented in Miami-Dade County, Florida, to integrate research and evaluation into program development and improvement processes. Key lessons learned about best practices in both treatment and research, specific to CSEC, will be shared.

One Agency’s Journey to Adapt: Five Lessons You Need to Know About Change Management
Salon F
Are you finding yourself lost in a sea of changing mandates and swimming fast to catch your breath? Are the processes and systems you have in place making your palms sweat? Adapting to change can be stressful, but sometimes you know there has to be a more efficient way of doing things. In this session, we'll examine the decision-making journey Fellowship House, a private, nonprofit psychosocial rehabilitation center for individuals who experience severe and persistent psychiatric disabilities, took to implement a new electronic records system and meet new challenges within its organization. We'll share the good, bad, and sometimes funny stories of what it's like to work with a vendor to integrate a new software system and successfully launch electronic billing in the state of Florida.

Overdose in the ER: Effective Hospital Diversion

Salon G

Last year, Florida’s emergency departments (EDs) treated nearly 18,000 patients who overdosed on opioid-related drugs. 10% were treated for multiple overdoses. While EDs provide the very best immediate care, drug treatment and rehabilitation programs provide the best long-term solution. Made possible through the Aetna Foundation, The All in for Florida: Hospital Intervention Project was launched in Spring 2018 through a collaboration between the Florida Alcohol & Drug Abuse Association, the Florida Hospital Association, and the Emergency Medicine Learning & Resource Center (Florida College of Emergency Physicians) with the goal to connect emergency departments with community-based providers to provide opioid abuser access to treatment services.

Preliminary Outcomes for Substance-Abusing Parents Enrolled in a Family Dependency Treatment Court

Salon H

This presentation will discuss preliminary outcomes for substance-abusing parents enrolled in a Family Dependency Treatment Court (FDTC). Data were gathered from 84 clients who received intensive outpatient treatment services as part of the FDTC program. Participants were eligible if reunification was a goal and substance use was identified as a main factor. Participants completed urinalysis drug screenings twice per week as well as an interview assessing self-reported substance use and mental health symptoms at program intake and six-month follow-ups. The average length of treatment was ten months, with approximately 56% of clients successfully reunifying with their child(ren). Clients also reported significant reductions in self-reported substance use and mental health symptoms. Findings indicate that treatment is effective and participants are being reunified consistently with other FDTC programs.

Provider Licensing and Designation System (PLADS)

Salon I

PLADS is the state of Florida’s web-based system for obtaining and renewing substance abuse treatment, prevention, and intervention program licenses. It’s also the state’s system for issuing and managing Addictions Receiving Facilities and Baker Act facility designations. Recovery Oriented and System of Care Concepts: Practices Promoting Community-Based Recovery

Salon J

Families served by the child welfare system often have complex needs and challenges that require intervention and support from multiple agencies and systems partners to be effectively addressed. The Recovery Oriented System of Care (ROSC) and Systems of Care (SOC) frameworks provide a recovery-oriented approach by which resources can be leveraged strategically across the system to improve outcomes for families served by child welfare. ROSC and SOC concepts and practices promote community-based recovery, resilience and wellness for children, youth and adults with behavioral health conditions. Alignment of recovery concepts and practices across system partners and coordination of recovery-oriented services and supports across family members served by child welfare promote individualized and strength-based family focused treatment and support.

Running on Fumes: Young Adults and Psychostimulant Use Disorder

Salon K

Psychostimulant Use Disorder (PUD) among young adults who use it non-medically is growing at an alarming rate. Students incorrectly believe these drugs enhance school performance, and often take them to “recover” from heavy drinking. Psychostimulants like Adderall are widely available and sanctioned, and highly addictive and dangerous when abused. Often PUD is complicated with alcohol or other Substance Use Disorders. Obstacles include fear of not being able to achieve. Peer-supported, longer, holistic treatment is underscored by personal engagement in daily education and practice of the Twelve Step process and support beyond treatment.

Safety Plans for Suicide Risk: Putting the Patient Back in the Driver’s Seat to a Safe Destination

Salon L

Suicide is the 10th leading cause of death in the United States. This program will examine the assessment of suicide risk using a step-by-step collaborative process with the patient that includes, in part, examining risk factors, warning signs, and protective factors as well as the kinds of practice questions to ask and the framework to use when asking them. It will describe the process for using the data gathered in an assessment to help a patient develop a safety plan for themselves and their environment that includes specific coping skills and how and when to reach out for help.

There is a Way to Text with Patients Without Encryption
Indian River/Hamilton (Downstairs)
If an organization or facility has policies and procedures in place governing the use of hand-held telephones, with necessary patient consent documented, therapists can use unencrypted texts to communicate with clients.

The First 72 Hours: Gender-Responsive Trauma-Informed Care in Residential Settings
Jackson (Downstairs)
For many organizations striving to be trauma-informed, intake and orientation is often an overlooked component and at best only given cursory attention. However, the first 72 hours could determine whether or not a client feels safe, which is a basic tenet of trauma-informed care. During the intake process staff often probe into the most personal and sensitive parts of an individual’s life, which can be extremely intrusive, painful, and re-traumatizing for those that are seeking service. Aside from the gathering of personal information, women can have a host of experiences with non-clinical staff that can trigger trauma responses. Utilizing a learning centered model, this workshop will combine a variety of learning methodologies, including experiential, audio/visual, and kinesthetic, to change the narrative and inform the development of gender-specific trauma-informed sensitivity during the intake and orientation period.

Trauma and the Opioid Crisis
Palm Beach (Downstairs)
Addiction specialists have long known there are strong connections between traumatic experiences and the addiction process. In order to effectively combat the Opioid Crisis, trauma must be addressed as an essential part of the equation. This workshop will describe the trauma/opioid correlation, including the neurobiological and developmental processes that lead to addiction. Additionally, evidence-based prevention and intervention/treatment practices will be discussed.

Comprehensive Treatment Court: A Jail Diversion Model

Salon A

Comprehensive Treatment Court (CTC) is a diversion program within the Twelfth Judicial Circuit’s Mental Health Court. CTC is offered on a voluntary basis to Sarasota County residents who have been charged with a qualifying criminal misdemeanor offense and suffer from serious mental illness (SMI). The program is a collaborative effort between the judicial system, Centerstone of Florida (a behavioral health agency) and community partners. Most CTC participants are unable to fulfill their basic needs and struggle with homelessness, untreated mental illness and limited social support. This presentation will describe the added difficulties for those with SMI in the judicial system, Judge Quartermaine’s vision for change and Centerstone’s dedication to providing services that bridge the gap between individuals suffering with SMI and the judicial system.

Court-Based Solutions to the Opioid Epidemic

Salon B

Representatives from the Miami-Dade Drug Court and Jackson Health Systems will discuss the implementation of an outpatient Medication-Assisted Treatment clinic established in Miami-Dade to address the recent surge in opioid abuse among drug court participants. The complexity of these participants’ needs requires enhancements to existing services. The clinic follows participants from induction through maintenance. The panel will discuss ways to effectively address gaps in services for drug court participants using opioids, and better ensure participants’ successful stabilization and rehabilitation. The panel will also discuss ways to enhance services by improving access to substance abuse treatment through a streamlined continuum of care.

Early Intervention in Psychosis: National Snapshot, Best Practices and Potential for Expansion in Florida

Salon C

This presentation focuses on the important, emerging area of early intervention in psychosis (EIP), a team-delivered, holistic service model focused on improving outcomes for youth and young adults with a recent first episode of psychosis. The presentation will include: (1) an overview of national developments in the area of EIP, including exemplar regional initiatives elsewhere in the US, as well as current evidence regarding clinical effectiveness, cost-effectiveness and impact; and (2) a review of the current state of EIP programming in Florida, followed by an interactive semi-structured discussion to generate ideas, awareness and support for the expansion of EIP programs in Florida and development of mechanisms or processes to facilitate ongoing provider training, quality assurance and improvement, and the maximization of population-level impact.

Florida HIE Encounter Notification Service (ENS): Turning on the Light!

Salon D

If having information about a patient’s hospital encounters would help shed light on their on-going treatment, this is the presentation you have been waiting to hear. The expansion and availability of Florida’s ENS can help shine the light on information behavioral health providers can use to improve the quality of patient care. This presentation will provide insight on how ENS can increase efficiency and effectiveness through care coordination of patients.

Faces of Trauma and Self-Injurious Behavior

Salon E

Trauma can impact people in ways that are both evident and not evident. Trauma can be experienced directly, vicariously or unintentionally. Attendees will learn how to work with persons that have direct trauma event experience as well as those vicariously impacted by traumatic events within their community or nation. The target audience for this presentation is clinical staff and persons who work with traumatized individuals or have been exposed to trauma situations themselves.

How Brain-Gut Health Supports Mental Health and Addiction Recovery
Salon G
Brain health should be one of the primary goals in the treatment of mental illness, especially given the statistic that if you experience a serious mental illness, your life expectancy is reduced by 25 years. Lifestyle factors that impact life expectancy include nutrition, exercise, sleep, alcohol/drug/tobacco use and polypharmacy. Lifestyle factors also can cause inflammation in the brain. Research continues to demonstrate how the Brain-Gut connection is far more important to brain health than understood in the past. Good gut health is linked to good brain health and prevention of some types of mental health issues. Good brain health allows the brain to compensate for injury and disease. This workshop will review and discuss the effects of brain inflammation and review nutritional interventions to support brain health.

How to Operationalize a Recovery-Oriented Framework
Salon H
Florida’s Recovery Oriented System of Care (ROSC) priority is becoming recognized as a paradigm shift in behavioral health service delivery and policy practice change. DCF, Managing Entities, and key stakeholders are partnering together to make this shift and changing the landscape of Florida’s behavioral health system. Improved quality of life outcomes through innovative practices and strong collaborative cross-system partnerships are outcomes for a ROSC. Five key priorities have been identified to implement recovery concepts statewide. Increasing understanding of how to operationalize a ROSC framework within a Managing Entity region by building strong cross-system collaborative relationships is key. Participants in this presentation will understand these priorities and how recovery-oriented concepts are being implemented across the state and in local communities.

Older Adult & SUDs: We need to talk!
Salon J
The percentage of older adults in the United States population will dramatically grow over the next two decades. There are signs that this age group is increasingly struggling with substance use disorders (SUDs). There is also evidence that this age group is under-served and often under-diagnosed or misdiagnosed. We will examine all of these issues and what can be done to effect change.

A Multi-Faceted Approach to Cravings Management
Salon K
The DSM V added “cravings” to the criteria for substance use disorders in October, 2015. Just as addiction can impact every area of life, so too must the approach for cravings management. The goals for this workshop will be to review the literature on cravings management techniques, discuss cravings management medications and elicit a discussion of multi-faceted approaches that have worked for those on the front lines of substance use disorder (SUD) treatment. This dynamic presentation is both experiential and educational with the use of mixed-media and pop-culture references.

Reward Deficiency Syndrome and the Genetics of Addiction
Salon L
Genetics can account for 40-70% of addiction and other behaviors. Reward Deficiency Syndrome (RDS) is a relative failure of the dopaminergic system, which plays a major part in brain reward mechanisms. The syndrome has been linked to dopaminergic dysfunction; acute excess or chronic deficit of dopamine release in the brain reward circuitry. This deficiency includes various conditions, (such as drug and alcohol abuse, smoking, obesity, pathological gambling, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder), in which the subject seems to be unusually concerned to achieve reward.

Tobacco Use Disorder: The Neglected Addiction

Indian River/Hamilton (Downstairs)

Tobacco users with mental illness and Substance Use Disorders (TUD) are more likely to die from tobacco related diseases than their behavioral health condition. Although treatment of TUD is the most cost-effective and morbidity-reducing of 30 preventive services, it has the lowest delivery rate. Assessment, diagnosis, and treatment of TUD is often overlooked in mental health and addiction treatment. This workshop will examine the benefits of tobacco cessation in improving depression, anxiety and overall psychological quality of life, and improving long term abstinence rates from alcohol or illicit drugs. Participants will be educated about successful, evidence-based strategies integrating treatment of TUD with other behavioral health services.

The Hush Hush World of Sexual Assault: Daring to Speak Its Name

Jackson (Downstairs)

Sexual assault has always been a problem. However, as it gains increased public attention, there will perhaps be a greater need for counselors to help clients who have been assaulted. The goal of this workshop is to take a comprehensive look at the big picture and understand a counseling perspective for working with victims of sexual assault. The first part of this presentation focuses on the societal issue, gaining an understanding of the problem and the principles necessary for appreciating the collective voice of victims. The second part of this presentation focuses on the counselor’s role in working with victims of sexual assault.

Wrap Around Services and Emotionally Disturbed Children

Palm Beach (Downstairs)

Building the Voice of Recovery Community Organizations (RCOs) – A Toolkit for RCO Development

Salon A

This workshop will discuss the basics for increasing community recovery champions within a Recovery Oriented System of Care (ROSC). Recovery Community Organizations (RCOs) focus on the reality of long-term recovery from a substance use disorder. This workshop will focus on creating an awareness and understanding of the benefits of bringing a RCO to a community. The presentation includes the basic concepts, structure, and building blocks to create this type of organization. Participants will learn the fundamental concepts of an RCO and understand how to create recovery champions in their community through peer to peer recovery, public education, advocacy, services, and inclusion.

The Relationship Between Adverse Childhood Experiences, Human Trafficking, and Addiction as a Means of Control by Traffickers

Salon B

This presentation will describe how adverse childhood events contribute to the vulnerability of children to human trafficking recruiters, and how the human traffickers use substances as means of control and enslavement.

Connecting the Prevention Dots: from Program Selection to Evaluation

Salon C

It is essential to improve the field of prevention by implementing evidence-based programs (EBPs) and strategies. However, selecting which EBPs will be most effective in reaching the community prevention goals based on assessed need is often unclear for a myriad of reasons. Identifying valid EBPs is complex, and although national registries endorse or list particular strategies, the appearance on a list does not, in and of itself, guarantee that the EBP will be effective at achieving targeted prevention goals. By providing context for EBPs and following the Strategic Prevention Framework, this presentation will document how providers can best match strategies to their goals, select appropriate EBPs, and evaluate their progress.

Emerging Best Practices for Integrated Care from CCBHC Pilots

Salon D

In an era of ongoing budget cuts, the national workforce shortage and transitions to value-based payment, the Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinic (CCBHC) program has emerged as a solution that puts clinics on solid financial footing while allowing them to expand comprehensive, integrated services. This session will explore emerging best practices in integrated care from CCBHC sites, including information on how the CCBHC model has allowed clinics to increase hiring, strengthen partnerships with hospitals, primary care and law enforcement, support innovations to care delivery through technology, and increase access to care while expanding services. The workshop will also include an overview of the future of the CCBHC program and opportunities to expand to new states and new clinics.

Crisis Communication

Salon E

This presentation focuses on the process of using communication to deescalate a person who is in a crisis state. Law enforcement and crisis mobilization members often find themselves deescalating crisis or violence. This course intends to show another way to deescalate crisis through the use of talk techniques meant to influence hormones in the brain during crisis, so ultimately the crisis communicator can bring the person from a high emotion/low rational state to a low emotion/high rational state. The course is a step-by-step process that can help any level of communicator become more effective using Active Listening Skills more effectively, while also creating a better awareness in measuring kinesics, inflection, and context of individuals in a crisis state.

Deconstructing Depression: Bio-typed and Symptom-Specific Approaches to the Treatment of Depression

Salon F

Depression is one of the most common concerns of patients in clinical practice. However, depression as a unitary concept/disorder often fails to give clinicians symptom-specific guidance on how to intervene. This presentation will discuss the complex of symptoms that often coalesce in different ways in different patients that are diagnosed with depression (anhedonia, fatigue, insomnia, anxiety, mood dysregulation). Such heterogeneity in symptom profile often presents intervention challenges. This workshop will review the recent literature that identifies specific types of depression and interventions that can reliably ameliorate symptoms. Psychiatric, medical and psychological interventions that have been found helpful will be reviewed. The RdoC-related research into bio-typed negative and positive valence systems that relate to symptoms commonly found in depression will be highlighted and directions in future research will be discussed.

LINC to Life: Build a Wellness Toolbox & Crisis Action Plan Objectives – Part A

Salon G

LINC to Life training will increase the knowledge and confidence of clinicians, nurses, case managers, care coordinators, discharge planners and other staff to implement the “My Wellness Toolbox Crisis Action Plan” intervention for suicide risk. The training will reflect on statistics and research that illuminate suicide as a public health concern that requires our attention and intervention in various settings such as hospitals, primary care, and behavioral health clinics. It will review factors that may lead someone to consider suicide as an option and build confidence that collaborative action prevents suicide attempts. The training will also present evidence-based, best practice tools in screening and assessing suicide risk. The essential components of the “My Wellness Toolbox Crisis Action Plan,” including triggers, coping strategies, personal and professional supports, lethal means restrictions and other resources to implement in a crisis will be discussed.

Spirituality and Recovery: Life and Role of the Forensic Peer Specialist

Salon I

Spirituality and Recovery are fundamental in both the personal and professional lives of Peer Specialists. The sense of rightness of thoughts, words, and deeds is common to all. It is critically important to the life and work of Peer Specialists because they have experienced the same issues as clients and have found a new way to live based on fundamental spiritual principles. Peer Specialists help others to get in touch with these same principles.

Offender Transition: Utilizing Care Coordination and Intensive Case Management

Salon J

This session will focus on how to help offenders leaving the criminal justice system successfully transition back into the community with limited resources. Integrating services and providing linkage to non-profits, workforce development, substance abuse and mental health treatment, transitional housing programs, and government agencies are critical to their transitional success. This session will also address the importance of intensive case management to help offenders transition back into the community. Equally important is the care coordination of mental health and substance abuse services to create a comprehensive success plan for the formerly incarcerated offender.

Social Justice Counseling: Counseling in a Woke World

Salon K

With the surge in hate incidents across the country, mental health providers need to understand (and address) acts of aggression and discrimination that impact minorities and marginalized groups. Research has shown a connection between racism and mental illness (e.g. anxiety), highlighting the negative impact that discrimination has on society. This interactive presentation will examine cause, course and symptomatology of Racial Battle Fatigue (RBF), an interdisciplinary theoretical framework that explores how racism is experienced and negatively influences mental, emotional, and physical health. This session will provide counseling professionals with information and tools to identify and assist clients experiencing the impact of RBF. Attendees will learn how combining advocacy and social justice counseling competencies can help reduce the impact of social stressors on healthy functioning.

The Designer Synthetic Drug Tsunami

Salon L

Designer synthetic drug analogs have swept over America, becoming one of the most pressing substance abuse challenges facing behavioral health professionals. What was once reported as the heroin/opioid epidemic is, in reality, a designer synthetic drug crisis. More Americans die from an overdose of synthetic narcotics, such as U-47700, than heroin. Although cannabis abuse has remained flat in many areas of the country, the abuse of designer synthetic cannabinoids such as 5F-ADB, is causing dramatic increases in emergency hospitalizations across America. This seminar will provide the most up-to-date information on the current designer synthetic narcotic, stimulant, and cannabinoid drugs in America. Video clips of actual users under the influence of designer synthetic drugs will be featured so behavioral health professionals can recognize the symptoms of intoxication. Hands-on examples of the current designer drugs being abused will be on display.

With compelling results, you will be prepared to engage with payers on reimbursement strategies that reward your efforts.

The Sequential Intercept Model: A Roadmap to Jail Diversion

Jackson (Downstairs)

Lake County government and LifeStream Behavioral Health have employed the Sequential Intercept Model to develop programs at several intercepts with three goals in common: 1) divert/deflect appropriately individuals with serious mental illness and substance use disorders (often co-occurring) to appropriate services in the community for treatment, 2) reduce the financial burden of treating those individuals in the jail and prison systems, and 3) increase community safety. This presentation will analyze the activities of the partnership at Intercepts 0-5. Descriptions of the programs developed, the partnerships between government and community-based organizations and results of the programs to date will be discussed.

You Had Me at Hello: Engaging Challenging Families

Palm Beach (Downstairs)

Research demonstrates active parental participation is the missing link in preventing youth from entering out-of-home care or relapsing once they transition home. Parenting with Love and Limits (PLL), an evidence-based model, will illustrate unique methods for family engagement including a combination of group and family therapy to teach parents missing core skills, motivational interviewing, clear boundaries to quickly engage families, and recognition of the link between unresolved trauma and behavioral health. Recognized as an Evidence Practice by OJJDP, SAMHSA, the Florida Sourcebook of Delinquency Interventions and the California Clearinghouse, PLL utilizes five key elements to reduce the need for costly and often inappropriate out of home care for at risk youth while also safely decreasing the length of stay and providing true reintegration services to youth returning home. The PLL model experiences an 80% successful family engagement rate and an 83% completion rate.

Evaluation of the Family Intensive Treatment Program for Parents in the Child Welfare System

Salon B

The Family Intensive Treatment (FIT) team model is designed to provide intensive team-based, family-focused, comprehensive services to families in the child welfare system with parental substance use disorders. First implemented in Florida in 2014, FIT includes components of family engagement, routine screening and assessment, individualized treatment and case plans, support of parents in treatment and recovery, joint planning and case management, wraparound and comprehensive community services, and flexible financing strategies. DCF and Casey Family Programs partnered with USF to evaluate the FIT program. This workshop will describe the FIT program, include a quantitative analysis that describes the characteristics of parents served in the FIT program, and examine program fidelity, the mechanisms by which family outcomes are or are not achieved, and cross-system collaboration.

Cyber Weapons & Internet Safety: Protecting Our Children in the Digital World
Salon C

The Internet has drastically changed the way our children interact with the world. It provides them with seemingly infinite opportunities to discover new things and ways to express themselves, as well as the ability to communicate globally and make new connections with just the click of a button. Yet along with offering rapidly emerging and fascinating ways to connect with the world, technology also brings new risks. This presentation will explore techniques for monitoring child Internet activities as well as the unique threats that exist while using computers, mobile devices and the Internet. Popular social media applications; sexual predators and child sexual exploitation; public Wi-Fi dangers; cyberbullying; online impersonation; pornography; and sexting and other high-risk behaviors will be discussed.

Future State: Evolving Care Models for Improving Population Health
Salon D

New models for care management that promote integrated care coordination, such as Accountable Care Organizations (ACOs), Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinics (CCBHCs) and Specialty Medical Homes are changing the value equation for provider organizations by shifting the financing risk for population health and consumer management to providers. As this evolution in care models moves forward, population health management tools have shifted from health plans to provider organizations that are looking for a competitive edge. In this session, we’ll discuss the strategic market challenges specialty organizations are facing and how this new landscape is forcing provider organization executives to shift their business models to gain the competitive advantage. We will include case study presentations from providers who have successfully navigated the challenges of population health management in an integrated market, with time for questions and discussion.

Involuntary Treatment in High Risk Drug Abuse
Salon F

The current opioid crisis requires of our society a vigorous and unified response. The statistics are sobering. In 2016 there were more than 63,000 drug overdose deaths in the U.S. The age-adjusted rates of overdose deaths in 2016 were 21% higher than the previous year. To make matters worse, according to SAMHSA, in 2016 only 10.5% of the 19 million substance abusers who would have benefitted from treatment actually did so. Any effective response to this crisis will necessarily include access to treatment. I have discovered a general reluctance among physicians to employ involuntary commitment. In Florida, the Marchman Act is designed to ensure appropriate treatment for those who would otherwise not enter treatment voluntarily. Thirty-seven states have similar legislation.

Quality Treatment and Support Services in Drug Court: Ensuring Fidelity to Best Practice Standards
Salon J
Drug courts cannot be successful unless participants are receiving evidence-based treatment and social support services. Rethinking Addiction
Salon L

Rethinking Addiction explores why the standard methods of treating addiction can often fail, and identifies connection and trauma as two vital and often missing pieces of the prevention and treatment puzzle. The presentation explores both the social and societal implications of disconnection, and the disrupted neurodevelopment that frequently leads to addictive behavior when someone has experienced trauma in the form of Adverse Childhood Experiences. Increased use of social media and its negative effect on human connection will also be discussed. There is an overall focus on the need for a community approach to addiction and the importance of shifting the emphasis from individual recovery to social recovery. Rather than isolate, stigmatize or incarcerate an addict, this presentation explores the effectiveness of encouraging healthy interpersonal relationships and support.

A Unified Partnership Between Attorney and Mental Health Counselor

Salon A

Mentally ill or addicted patients that are also facing legal troubles need a multi-dimensional support system to have the best chance of success both inside and outside the courtroom. There is often a lack of partnership and communication between attorneys and mental health counselors/therapists that can be detrimental to both the patient and the court system. This presentation provides an in-depth overview of how the criminal justice system works for defendants. It will focus on: the arrest process, getting a person into mental health/drug court, the mental health/drug court process, additional/different requirements for this population that regular defendants don’t face, complying with mental health/drug court, pitfalls of these specialized courts, the discrepancy between what may be best for the patient vs. what is best for the judge, and how more education can help remedy that discrepancy.

Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT) Enhanced by Recovery Coach Services

Salon F

The inclusion of MAT has become an important treatment approach in the field of substance use disorder, raising many questions about its efficacy. For example, questions arise as to whether we are continuing the addiction cycle when we do MAT. It is still a substance on which the client becomes dependent. However, there are some MAT treatment programs that have added recovery coach services to provide ongoing recovery support for their treatment population. Recovery Coach services support multiple pathways of recovery. The outcomes for this have shown great promise in the support of continuing recovery. Recovery coach services do not stop at acute care. They are continued post-discharge and intensely work on building a foundation for ongoing recovery.

PTSD and the Opioid Epidemic

Salon I

It is impossible to discuss PTSD without quickly moving into the area of Substance Use Disorder. Now, more than ever, we are seeing the effect in children who witness the trauma of overdose death of a parent, abandonment, or abuse; and in adults who turned to substances at an early age to medicate the pain of their shame and childhood secrets. This presentation will highlight a process for screening for adult consequences of childhood sexual abuse as a means of providing relief, giving answers, and providing validation. The cycles of shame, addiction and victimization overlay one other with painful symmetry and too often are not the focus of psychiatric or addiction treatment due to our lack of comfort with the subject or continued lack of progress pharmacologically in the realm of PTSD.

Slipping Through the Cracks: Intervention Strategies For Clients with Co-Occurring Disorders
Salon A-C

As a result of the absence of integrated services, clients with addictions and co-occurring disorders are vulnerable to slipping through the cracks. This slip involves going back and forth between the addictions, mental health, criminal justice and child welfare systems without recovering. This can also include periods of homelessness and medical hospitalizations. In this workshop you will learn the primary reasons clients slip through the cracks including: a lack of integrated services, inadequate service dose, misdiagnosis, hidden diagnosis, addiction to a drug subculture, lack of community, unresolved grief and trauma and low recovery capital. Emphasis will be placed upon 10 strategies to help clients with co-occurring disorders avoid slipping through the cracks and initiate recovery.

The blending of specific trauma-informed interventions with existing addiction protocols will enhance the current standards of practice for both individuals and families that have been adversely affected by this staggering epidemic. The format of this workshop is dynamic and interactive, overviewing the high correlation between trauma and addiction, how this disrupts the capacity for emotional regulation, and several demonstrations of specific trauma-informed interventions that can be utilized across the continuum of care for addiction, mental health and social service delivery systems.

Suicide Prevention: Challenge, Opportunity and Innovation

Salon G-I

The CDC has recently reported that suicide is rising in 49 of the 50 states. Yet there are now prevention and intervention strategies with an evidence base that, if brought to scale nationally, hold promise for halting and ultimately reversing these tragic trends. This presentation will review recent advances in clinical care, crisis intervention and comprehensive public health approaches, including the Zero Suicide Initiative, and the evidence supporting their efficacy in saving lives and preventing suicide attempts.

Richard McKeon, Suicide Prevention Branch, Division of Prevention, Traumatic Stress, and Special Programs, Center for Mental Health Services, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration

Attendance tracking via badge scanning!

Once again we are pleased to share an electronic method to track your session attendance.

Tracking attendance is easy:

- Wear your barcoded badge
- Get your badge scanned in each session you attend. No more paper CEU logs to complete!

To track your attendance you must have your barcoded badge scanned at the session entrance. Staff and volunteer room monitors will be scanning attendees’ badges. Badges will be scanned as you enter the general sessions and the workshop sessions. It is important to wear your badge at all times during the event so you can receive credit for session attendance.
