

Lincoln Financial Group continues to spread the IABA Mission

For the 2nd year in a row, Lincoln Financial Group was excited to host the Actuarial Case Competition (ACC)! The ACC was created in 2014 by members of Lincoln's Actuarial Development Program, to support the mission of the IABA and spread awareness of the actuarial profession to high school students.

In the first year, Lincoln partnered with Capital Preparatory Magnet High School in Hartford, CT. Over the course of several monthly visits, Actuarial Development Program participants visited an algebra class and discussed what actuaries are and how actuaries solve problems. During the visits, the high school students applied what they learned by working through a realistic problem that put their risk-management and problem-solving skills to the test. The ACC culminated with the students presenting their results in a final presentation at the Lincoln office in downtown Hartford, and competing for a prize!

Since its pilot year, the Actuarial Case Competition program has continued to grow and thrive. A summer internship position was created and awarded to one of the participating high school students, and in 2015 the program was expanded to two additional Lincoln locations – Greensboro, North Carolina and Fort Wayne, Indiana. The high school students walked away from the program with a new awareness of a great career, and Actuarial Development Program participants benefited from a unique, hands on leadership and professional development opportunity.

As a corporate sponsor of the IABA, Lincoln Financial is proud to take an active role in supporting diversity in the actuarial profession and developing future actuaries.

To learn more about opportunities at Lincoln where you can grow your career, please visit lfg.com/careers.