

The Sam Weintraub Memorial Scholarship Award

Sam Weintraub
1927-1987

In Memory Of

Sam Weintraub served as BOMA's executive director from 1966 to 1987. During that time, his enthusiastic, colorful leadership helped BOMA grow into a highly visible, professional trade association of more than 450 local members. The vitality of BOMA today is a tribute to Sam's vision and dedication.

He was president of Weintraub and Associates, Inc., an advertising and public relations company he founded in 1953. He was best known for his successful local, regional, and national advertising campaigns; the many awards for excellence he received in both print and broadcast media; and the local and statewide political campaigns and issue referendums the agency won for its clients.

Sam was married to Suzanne Weintraub, who still lives in St. Louis, and had three children: Larry, Rob and Sara. Larry and Rob went into the family business, now called Weintraub Advertising. Larry has been BOMA's executive director since 1987 and still places importance on his father's memorial scholarship, not only because it honors his father, but also because it rewards and furthers the academic accomplishments of a deserving, hard-working student. The Weintraub family's dedication to excellence and success has carried on throughout generations, just as Sam Weintraub would have wanted.
