Many of you are asking questions about the various CIAA events & activities in light of the recent Coronavirus (COVID-19).

Let us reassure you that our planned activities & events are still set to take place and there are no current plans to postpone or cancel. We're very grateful for the ongoing support of our attendees and partners, all of whom continue to register and plan for the events.

We feel strongly that it is our collective responsibility to focus on the facts and to act with common sense and sound judgement, taking the advice of the relevant authorities and scientists. That being said, we are closely monitoring developments regarding the recent COVID-19 outbreak and its global expansion.

The Public Health Agency of Canada (PHAC) has assessed the public health risk associated with COVID-19 as low for Canada. In addition, the PHAC is closely monitoring the spread of COVID-19 in other countries and updating travel advisories as the situation for impacted countries becomes available.

Mindful of our duty of care, we're consulting with experts on what the appropriate sanitary, health and other procedures are to ensure that all pertinent measures will be in place at CIAA events. In addition, we are, where possible, monitoring travel restrictions imposed by the organizations and institutions for which you work. Should you wish to update us on any corporate restrictions you may do so by clicking Here to send us an email.

Please keep checking our website, which we suggest you bookmark, as that's where you will find updated information as the situation evolves.
