Metro Micro

Micro is Metro's new on-demand rideshare service, offering trips within Pasadena, Altadena, and Sierra Madre as well as in other zones across LA County. The new service is for short local trips and uses small vehicles (seating up to 8 passengers). Micro's on-demand trips mean you can access service when you need it, and offers shorter wait times, and better reliability for your local trips.

Micro operates Monday-Sunday from 5:30am-9:30pm and offers hundreds of pick up/drop off points within Pasadena, Altadena, and Sierra Madre. Some of the top destinations for Metro Micro riders include Pasadena's most popular shopping centers, hiking spots, and top academic institutions.

Pasadena Transit is a local bus system of six routes that are designed to complement the Metro A Line and Foothill Transit. Metro gets visitors to Pasadena from other parts of Los Angeles, while Foothill Transit gets visitors to Pasadena from the San Gabriel Valley; once you have arrived, Pasadena Transit is a convenient way to visit the city's points of interest and hotels.

Route 10
DOWNTOWN PASADENA SHUTTLE
This very useful route runs through the heart of Pasadena — it travels through Old Pasadena, the Civic Center District, Pasadena Playhouse Village, and South Lake Avenue Shopping District; then it makes its way over to Caltech and the Allen Metro Station. This was the route that started it all, it was originally designed for transporting visitors to popular points of interest. There are a ton of points of interest on this route, and it is convenient to most of the cities hotels, it is also the most convenient route to the Pasadena Convention Center.

Metro Rail
There are six Metro Rail lines throughout Los Angeles; Pasadena is serviced by the A Line, a 31 mile (50 km) light rail train line that runs between East Los Angeles and the San Gabriel Valley. Downtown Pasadena and Downtown Los Angeles sit at the center of the line.

A LINE RIGHT-OF-WAY
The A Line's route is quite unique and historic, it was originally built in 1885, and throughout its history it has served the Santa Fe Railway and LA's famous Red Car system. While most of line runs at-grade, it frequently becomes elevated and occasionally tunnels through the earth — providing an interesting perspective of Los Angeles that can only be experienced by riding the A Line. For example, near the Chinatown Station, as the train ascends above the LA River it simultaneously travels upward beneath an overpass for cars. As the train approaches Union Station from Pasadena, it simulates an airplane landing, as it comes to a complete stop at the platform. Near Southwest Museum Station, the train straddles a hillside, as it curves around riders can capture a great glimpse of the National Treasure at the top of the hill.
There are six A Line stations in Pasadena with easy access to several of the city's top attractions.
