SCREENINGSROOM: Tremont, Level 4Coal Country*

Phylis Geller, USA, 2009, 84 min

Television programs, like Spike TV's Coal, represent workers as vanishing noble savages, as the real lives and concerns of miners and their communities are obscured from view. As high-profile tragedies befalling miners in the past year attest, they continue working under unsafe conditions, as corporations degrade the environment in search of profits. One of labor's most significant historical sites, Blair Mountain, is slated for the mountain top removal (MTR) method of mining. This film documents the ongoing struggles of those who fight the exploitation of workers in the mines and the destruction of the very mountains providing their livelihood. This "new civil war" has divided communities between those supporting "clean coal" industry initiatives and miners and activists resisting MTR in Appalachia. It is vital that the controversy over the environment, clean coal, MTR, and worker rights becomes a matter of public discussion. This film is a step in bringing these issues to a wider public.

The Same River Twice

Robb Moss, USA, 2003, 78 min

In 1978, filmmaker (and Harvard professor) Robb Moss and a close-knit group of free-spirited friends and lovers took a month-long trip through the depths of the Grand Canyon—a breathtaking white-water rafting adventure down the Colorado River. Cutting between footage of their youthful — often naked — live-in-the-moment existences and the complex realities of their adulthood today, the film travels the road from peyote to Prozac, creating a compelling portrait of cultural metamorphosis and the struggle to find one's place in the world. From running rapids to running for mayor, The Same River Twice is an intimate depiction of those baby-boomers who took the Sixties seriously, and then grew up.

Criminal Queers

Eric Stanley and Chris Vargas, USA, 70 min

(Work in progress) Criminal Queers visualizes a radical transgender/queer struggle against the prison-industrial complex and toward a world without walls. Remembering that prison breaks are both a theoretical and material practice of freedom, this film imagines what spaces might be opened up if crowbars, wigs, and metal files become tools for transformation. Follow Yoshi, Joy, Susan, and Lucy as they fiercely read everything from the Human Rights Campaign and hate crimes legislation to the “non-profitization” of social movements. Criminal Queers increases our collective liberation by working to abolish the multiple ways our hearts, genders, and desires are confined.

Camp

Alexis Mitchell, Canada, 2010, 25 min

Camp is a video essay exploring the secrets that underscore director Alexis Mitchell’s personal relationship to Jewish history and culture. Through a look at three camp environments, Mitchell engages with a queer re-telling of the traditional Purim story, the censored passages in Anne Frank’s diary, and a haircut given to by her grandfather in order to reveal the ways in which secrets haunt the surface of our cultural moments. Camp is framed through a play on the word “camp,” utilizing a camp sensibility amidst an analysis of temporary built environments. Through this frame, Mitchell engages with what we choose to keep hidden in these contemporary moments, and points to a larger fear of speaking out against injustice as a cause for silence

The Secret Loves of Jesse James

David Jones, USA, 2009, 5 min

An animated meditation on the theme of satyriasis, the excessive and often uncontrollable sexual desire in men. Through the archetype of the cowboy code, The Secret Love of Jesse James explores how the masculine discourse of the West is balanced upon a razor’s edge of intimacy and violence.

Film Socialisme

Jean-Luc Godard, Switzerland/France, 2010, 101 min

The latest and perhaps last film of Jean-Luc Godard is a three-part meditation on the filmmaker's ongoing interrogation of the relationship between present and past. He searches for a new mode of dismantling classical film form by engaging the history of film art through the technological present and future. A beautiful film with hallmark Godardian conventions, Film Socialisme carries us along a Mediterranean cruise, an encounter with a French couple and their children, and a tour of famous sites of antiquity, replete with obtuse narrative structures, elliptical dialogue, "Navajo" subtitles, and celebrity cameos (Patti Smith!). Godard's suggestion that consumerism and escapism can be surmounted by expanded video formats carves a path through the modern(ist) media jungle of contemporary western society. Characteristic of the reception of Godard's films, the film both elicited rave reviews and prompted walk-outs during its screening at Cannes. Godard's melding of poetic aesthetics and political commentary remains as simple and elusive as ever.

A Place to Live: The Story of Triangle Square

Carolyn Coal and Cynthia Childs, USA, 2008, 82 min

What does it mean to be a gay senior citizen trying to survive on limited resources in America? A Place to Live explores this issue by chronicling the development and construction of Triangle Square Hollywood, the country's first affordable housing facility for LGBT seniors.

Winner of the Audience Award at Outfest 2008: Los Angeles Gay and Lesbian Film Festival, A Place to Live follows the journey of seven individuals as they attempt to secure a home in Triangle Square. Since demand far exceeded the number of available units, a lottery system was established to select who would live in the complex—not everyone would be chosen. A Place to Live is a moving portrait of gay and lesbian seniors on the fringe of their community and of the triumphant opening of this historic building.

SCREENINGSROOM: Tremont, Level 4Contemporary (In)appropriations: New Experimental Found Footage Films

Various makers, various countries, 2009-11, 92 min

Whether you call it collage, compilation, found footage, or recycled cinema, the incorporation of previously shot materials into new works is a practice that generates novel juxtapositions of elements, producing new meanings and ideas that may not have been intended by the original makers—that are, in other words, “inappropriate.” This act of appropriation may produce revelations that lead viewers to reconsider the relationship between past and present, here and there, intention and subversion. The past decade has seen the emergence of a wealth of new sources for audiovisual materials that can be appropriated and repurposed to give them new meanings and resonances. The Festival of (In)appropriation is a yearly showcase of contemporary short audiovisual works that appropriate film or video footage and repurpose it in “inappropriate” and inventive ways. This year’s program contains fourteen works and is curated by Jaimie Baron, Andrew Hall, and Lauren Berliner. For more details, see http://festivalofinappropriation.org/?page_id=463.

A Movie by Jen Proctor

Jennifer Proctor, USA, 2010, 12 min

A remake of Bruce Conner’s seminal 1958 found footage film A Movie using appropriated material from YouTube and LiveLeak. As a remake, the video provides a parallel narrative that explores the changes in historical and visual icons from 1958 to 2010—as well as those images that remain the same. It also comments on the way disparate threads in online databases can be assembled to create “a movie.”

Eun-jung Shin, Korea/USA, 2011, 81 min

"The best and the brightest" is how Harvard University is described today. People all over the world admire Harvard. But Harvard is not an Ivory Tower. It is an organ of the American ruling class and has been very influential in U.S. foreign policy. This documentary critically examines Harvard's historical role and global impact. As a training ground for the international elite, Harvard has maintained close ties with the U.S. government and provided crucial dimensions of state ideology, particularly during the Cold War. Harvard people have been involved in many wars and interventions, including the Vietnam War. The documentary questions what the real purpose of education should be. It contains interviews with many progressive American intellectuals, including Professor Noam Chomsky. Other interviewees include Michael Ansara (Harvard Class of 1968), co-chair for SDS, John Trumbour, author of How Harvard Rules, and Richard Levins, Professor at Harvard Medical School.

Speaking of Baghdad

George Larkin, USA/Iraq, 2010, 28 min

An acclaimed international cast performs stories about life during the war written by Iraqi writers in Baghdad over the course of the last seven years. We get a chance to hear about the ongoing, devastating war from Iraq's own artists performed by a diverse cast of actors from around the world.

Starring C.S. Lee (Dexter, Chuck), Rex Lee (Entourage), Silas Weir Mitchell (Prison Break, My Name is Earl, Rat Race), Navid Negahban (Charlie Wilson's War, 24, The Closer), Geoffrey Owens (The Cosby Show), Keith Szarabajka (We Were Soldiers, Angel, The Dark Knight), and Michael Urie (Ugly Betty). Speaking of Baghdad and a short taken from it have played at seven film festivals (including the Starz-Denver and the Napa-Sonoma Film Festivals), on Link TV, at the US Air Force Academy's Conference on War, Literature, & the Arts, and six times with Amnesty International.

Forest of Bliss

Robert Gardner, USA, 1986, 90 min

Forest of Bliss one of the greatest of all poetic documentaries, was shot by Boston filmmaker Robert Gardner in Benares, India, in the 1980s. Without voiceover commentary or explanatory titles, the film immerses viewers in the everyday life of India's oldest and most sacred city, spread along the River Ganges in Uttar Pradesh. It is desirable to die in Benares and be cremated on the ghats by the river. City life as we see it in the film comes to focus more and more on the enterprise of hospices for the dying, the making of litters, and gathering of marigolds for use in funerals, the harvesting of wood and—sometimes rancorous—selling of sacred fire, and the actual cremations with their corpses, flames, and smoke. Gardner has edited his beautiful and disturbing images and sounds to form a meditation on cycles of life, on earthiness and transcendence, and on the abundance of human energy and creativity in face of the starkest reality.

Blazing the Trail: The O'Kalems in Ireland

Peter Flynn, USA/Ireland, 2011, 86 min

In 1910 the New York based Kalem Film Company made history by sending its leading filmmakers—director Sidney Olcott and screenwriter/actress Gene Gauntier—to Ireland. While there, they made The Lad from Old Ireland, the first fiction film to be made in Ireland and the first American film made outside the continental U.S. The film was an immediate hit, and Olcott and Gauntier returned to Ireland again and again over the next several years, producing a series of groundbreaking films celebrated for their authentic Irish settings.

Blazing the Trail tells the story of Olcott and Gauntier's adventures in Ireland. It recounts how they made films without electricity, using locals as actors; how they provoked the condemnation of a local priest and ran afoul of the British authorities. It tells the story of two of the cinema's earliest mavericks, of the people and culture they immortalized on film, and of the emerging Hollywood system that ultimately eclipsed them.

The Eclipse at Taregna

Rakesh Chaudhary, India, 2011, 21 min

Mr. Pathak is a retired civil engineer and lives in Taregna, a small town in India. He is worn out by life's many setbacks and is indifferent to his family—his daughter-in-law Laxmi and 8-year old grandson Roshan. The announcement by NASA that the best place to witness an upcoming solar eclipse will be Taregna has no impact on Pathak. However, Roshan's curiosity for the celestial event of a lifetime is boundless. When Pathak finally realizes that Roshan desperately needs a father figure, he can no longer remain a bystander to life.

SCREENING HISTORY (highlights): Palm Springs International ShortFest 2011; Indian International Film Festival of Tampa 2011; Queens World Film Festival 2011 (Winner – Founder's Choice & Best Actor – Male); Indian Film Festival of Los Angeles 2011 (Winner – Grand Jury Prize for Best Short Film); East Harlem International Film Festival 2011 (Winner – Best Short Film); International Documentary and Short Film Festival of Kerala 2011.

The Visual and Environmental Studies Department and The Harvard Film Archive Present

An Evening with Experimental Filmmaker Ernie Gehr

LOCATION: The Carpenter Center for the Visual Arts
24 Quincy Street, Cambridge

The Visual and Environmental Studies Department and The Harvard Film Archive are pleased to welcome the legendary experimental film and video-maker Ernie Gehr (b. 1943) for an evening of recent work, including the world premiere of three new videos. A luminary figure of the American avant-garde, Gehr has been dazzling audiences since the late 1960s with his visionary expansion of cinema. Celebrated for such pioneering structuralist films as Serene Velocity (1970) and Side/Walk/Shuttle (1991), Gehr shifted to video in 1999, bringing his daring inventiveness, offbeat humor and fascination with film history into the digital realm. Currently a Visiting Professor of Visual and Environmental Studies at Harvard, Gehr is also a respondent to an SCMS panel on his work, "Beyond Cinema: The Video Art of Ernie Gehr", (C3, Beacon Hill Room).

The event will begin at 7:00pm with reception for all SCMS conference participants followed by a screening at 8:00pm of new works by Ernie Gehr followed by Ernie Gehr in person, in conversation with VES Professor and Chair David Rodowick and HFA Director Haden Guest.

To Attend: The reception is open to all SCMS conference participants. The screening is free to registered SCMS conference participants with your badge, but tickets are required. Tickets are available at The Harvard Film Archive box office (located in the basement of the Carpenter Center) on a first-come, first-served basis starting at 7 pm.

Directions: Take the Green Line T inbound from the Arlington Street Station to Park Street. Change to any Alewife-bound Red Line Train and take it to the Harvard Square Station. Upon exiting the train, walk down the ramp and leave through the main Harvard Square Station entrance. As you exit the station walk past the Starbucks and Cambridge Savings Bank to your left. This will have you walking southeast on Massachusetts Avenue for several blocks. (You will pass an Au Bon Pain, Leavitt & Peirce Tobacconists, Harvard Book Store.) At the intersection of Bow Street (Grafton Street Pub), take a left across Massachusetts Avenue and Harvard Street onto Quincy Street. Proceed two blocks down Quincy Street to the Carpenter Center, on your right. Travel time approximately 45 minutes.

These Amazing Shadows

Paul Mariano and Kurt Norton, USA, 2011, 88 min

What do the films Casablanca, Blazing Saddles, and West Side Story have in common? Besides being popular, they have also been deemed “culturally, historically or aesthetically significant” by the Library of Congress and listed on the National Film Registry. These Amazing Shadows reveals the history and importance of the Registry, a roll call of American cinema treasures that reflects the diversity of film and, indeed, the American experience itself. The current list of 550 films includes selections from every genre—documentaries, home movies, Hollywood classics, the avant-garde, newsreels, and silent films. These Amazing Shadows reveals how “American movies tell us so much about ourselves . . . not just what we did, but what we thought, what we felt, what we aspired to, and the lies we told ourselves.”

Working Girls

Lizzie Borden, USA, 1987, 93 min

This is a piercing look at one day in a Manhattan brothel, following several women and the madam who work in this upscale establishment. Written and directed by renowned feminist filmmaker Lizzie Borden (Born in Flames), the film was based on her research and won the best feature prize at the Sundance Film Festival. Noted for its subjective approach to the portrayal of the mundane aspects of prostitution, Working Girls remains daring, challenging, and fresh to this day.

Northeast Historic Film

Northeast Historic Film is an independent regional moving image archives, collecting and making accessible the moving image heritage of northern New England: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Massachusetts. NHF is located in the historic 1916 Alamo Theater in Bucksport, Maine, home since 2000 to an annual Summer Symposium on nontheatrical topics. The NHF moving image holdings include two titles on the National Film Registry, amateur films dating from 1915 with particularly strong holdings in the 1930s, such as the work of Elizabeth Woodman Wright (family papers at Massachusetts Historical Society) and of Hiram Maxim, founder of the Amateur Cinema League. Other material of interest includes the only known U.S. instances of The Movie Queen (by itinerant women directors in the 1930s); all surviving Maine television collections and the WCVB-TV Boston newsfilm; early trade journals; a postcard collection of cinemas representing 49 states; and the Alan and Natalie Kattelle Collection of amateur cinema technology. Explore topical finding aids and collections at <http://oldfilm.org/collection/>

Directions: The Paramount is a 5-10 minute walk from the Park Plaza Hotel. Upon exiting the hotel on the Arlington Street side, turn right and walk a block-and-a-half to Boylston Street. Turn right on Boylston and walk approximately three blocks east, paralleling the Public Garden and Boston Common. At the intersection of Boylston and Tremont Streets, turn left onto Tremont and go one block to Avery Street (the corner with the Loew's Boston Common Theater). Turn right on Avery and go one block to Washington Street. As you turn left onto Washington, you will see the Paramount marquee.

Maquilapolis: A City of Factories

Vicki Funari and Sergio De La Torre, USA/Mexico, 2006, 60 min

Maquilapolis documents the lives of women working in one of Tijuana’s 800 Maquiladoras, the multinational factories just over the Mexico-United States border. Their fight for justice in their workplaces and communities merge with non-traditional documentary conventions to blur the lines between art and activism. The bilingual film was developed in collaboration with the workers themselves and makes innovative use of on-screen text and performance. The film offers frank and honest portrayals of workers caught in the meshes of globalization, while offering insights into discussions of immigration, women’s rights, and the transnational economic crisis with its shifting labor markets. Hailed by scholars, media activists, and labor unions as an invaluable resource, this film should be seen by everyone concerned with investigating the human stories that surround the failure of capital to provide for those who sustain its advance. It should also be seen by those interested in exploring new forms of documentary.

Women in Thailand make up 90% of the labor force in garment and toy factories that produce for export by multinationals. This film about women factory workers in Thailand as they struggle to organize unions reveals the human cost of globalization.

The Harvard Film Archive

The Harvard Film Archive's collection of 35 and 16mm material for approximately 16,000 titles, as well as its many posters, documents and ephemera, are accessible to faculty and students at Harvard, as well as to outside researchers. The film holdings include features, trailers, educational films, experimental cinema, propaganda, television programs, commercials, and home movies. Examples of entire collections received include Asian American Film Ephemera; the B.F. Skinner Collection; the Grove Press Film Collection; the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office Collection; and the Lothar and Eva Just Film Stills Collection of over 800,000 film stills, pressbooks, posters, and publicity and production stills from the classical studio era of the 1930s-1960s. The HFA also houses all of the films, papers, and related materials of several filmmakers, including documentarian Dick Fontaine, experimental filmmaker Hollis Frampton, cinematographer James E. Hinton, film and video artist George Kuchar, and animator Derek Lamb. Established with the assistance of the Luce Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities in 1979, the Harvard Film Archive has grown into an incomparably rich resource for scholars and filmmakers. <http://hcl.harvard.edu/hfa/>

In celebration of Women Make Movies' (WMM) 40th anniversary, ArtsEmerson screens The Heretics with award-winning New England video artist and Hampshire College Professor Joan Braderman's in attendance. Tracing the influence of the Women's Movement's Second Wave on art and life, Braderman tells the exhilarating inside story of the New York feminist art collective that produced Heresies: A Feminist Publication on Art and Politics (1977-92). Charting the collective's challenges to gender and power, and its history as a microcosm of the period's broader transformations, The Heretics goes on the road from New Mexico to Italy, reconnecting with 28 other group members, including writer/critic Lucy Lippard, architect Susanna Torre, filmmaker Su Friedrich, and artists Ida Applebroog, Mary Miss, Miriam Schapiro, and Cecilia Vicuña. Still funny, smart, and sexy, the geographically dispersed participants revisit how and why they came together to explore women's art and demand the right to be heard. "Upbeat and affirmative. . . the stories these women tell envision a radically different moment in art-world history, one in which questions of career and market are barely mentioned, and philosophical arguments are firmly grounded in street-level politics" (Ed Halter, ARTFORUM). Running time: 95 minutes.

Women Make Movies is the world's leading distributor of films by and about women. For the past six years, films from WMM have won awards at the Sundance Film Festival and for five of the last six years have won or been nominated for an Academy Award, including last year's Sun Come Up. From WMM's humble beginnings as a women filmmakers' collective in 1972 to today, with over 600 films in its catalog and a robust Production Assistance Program supporting 200 filmmakers, WMM has changed the landscape of movie making for women directors and producers. The 2012 celebration of WMM's anniversary will include 40 screenings across the globe, from Dubai to Brazil.

To attend: SCMS members can obtain discounted tickets ($5) using code SCMS2012. Tickets can be purchased at the Paramount Center Box Office (559 Washington Street), online at <http://www.artsemerson.org>, or by calling (617) 824-8400.

Directions: The Paramount is a 5-10 minute walk from the Park Plaza Hotel. Upon exiting the hotel on the Arlington Street side, turn right and walk a block-and-a-half to Boylston Street. Turn right on Boylston and walk approximately three blocks east, paralleling the Public Garden and Boston Common. At the intersection of Boylston and Tremont Streets, turn left onto Tremont and go one block to Avery Street (the corner with the Loew's Boston Common Theater). Turn right on Avery and go one block to Washington Street. As you turn left onto Washington you will see the Paramount marquee.

Sonali Gulati, USA/India, 2010, 71 min

I Am chronicles the journey of an Indian lesbian filmmaker who returns to Delhi after eleven years to re-open what was once home and finally confronts the loss of her mother to whom she never came out. As she meets and speaks to parents of other gay and lesbian Indians, she pieces together the fabric of what family truly means, in a landscape where being gay was until recently a criminal and punishable offense.

Two Sides of the Moon: The Honor Killing of Hatun Aynur Surucu

David L. Gould, USA, 2011, 33 min

Hatun Aynur Surucu was a Kurdish woman living in Berlin who was murdered by her youngest brother, Ayhan. Hatun and Ayhan were very close, but somehow on February 7, 2005, Ayhan felt compelled to shoot his sister three times in the head. The murder was quickly classified as an honor killing. Hatun's story is that of a woman caught between two cultures. Ironically, had she broken free from her family, she would have lived. Had she not questioned her family and culture, she likely would have been kept safe. It was having a foot in both worlds that sealed her fate.

SCREENINGROOM: Tremont, Level 4Between the Lines

Joan Micklin Silver, USA, 1977, 101 min

Filmed on location in Boston, director Joan Micklin Silver's film Between the Lines is a dramedy about a struggling local independent newspaper and stars a young ensemble cast, including Lindsay Crouse, Jill Eikenberry, Jeff Goldblum, John Heard, Marilu Henner, and Gwen Welles. This film is rarely screened and only last year finally became available on DVD. Micklin Silver was part of the generation of women directors making commercially oriented films in and around Hollywood during the 1960s and '70s. Statistically a small group, these films were important in that they marked the first significant increase of female filmmakers after the singular examples of Arzner and Lupino in the era from the 1930s to the early 1960s. Between the Lines captures the complex dynamics of a group of friends/co-workers wrestling with the fading social and political idealism of the 1960s. Set in 1977, this story of the commercial struggle of independent media retains powerful urgency 35 years on.

Land of Opportunity

Luisa Dantas, USA, 2011, 97 min

From front porches to the frontlines, Land of Opportunity captures the struggle to rebuild New Orleans, one of America's most beloved and emblematic cities. Juxtaposing the perspectives of protagonists from different walks of life, from urban planners to immigrant workers to public housing residents, this documentary reveals how the story of post-Katrina New Orleans is also the story of urban America. The story of how democratic processes can fail us, how economic crisis can pull the rug out from under us, and how migration and displacement can prove to be complicated bargains. This is a ground-level view of a situation that has been widely discussed but rarely seen with such texture and complexity.

Errol Morris: A Lightning Sketch
Charles Musser, USA, 2011, 72 min

The centerpiece of this documentary is a one-day visit to Fourth Floor Productions—Errol Morris’s studio—soon after Tabloid has wrapped up. We meet his staff, see his taxidermy, and watch him at work conducting a phone interview. For a substantial portion of the film, Errol talks freely about a range of subjects: writer’s block, the death penalty, his relation with Stephen Hawking, social media, dealing with Robert McNamara, the reception of Standard Operating Procedure, and so forth. Pressed, Errol admits, “I am a Gates of Heaven character.”

The Memorial
Alan Marcus, UK, 2010, 30 min

This experimental film presents an observational study of one of the country’s most unique memorials—the New England Holocaust Memorial in downtown Boston. Situated on what is a greened traffic island, the memorial’s six glass towers are adjacent to The Freedom Trail, with a six-lane road on one side and a string of restaurants and bars on the other. These include “America’s oldest restaurant” and “America’s oldest tavern.” Eschewing interviews, narration, and non-diegetic music, the film seeks to pose questions about the symbolic nature of Holocaust memorialization in an American setting and its relationship to Boston’s numerous American Revolution historical sites and memorials along “The Trail.” The Memorial is one of a series of four films that comprise the “In Time of Place” research project that explores the impact of tourism and the banal on sites of historical stature associated with Jewish identity, the Diaspora, and the Holocaust.

The Dove on the Roof (Die Taube auf dem Dach)
Iris Gusner, GDR/Federal Republic of Germany, 1973, 82 min

Linda Hinrichs (Heidemarie Wenzel), an engineer on a construction site, falls in love with not one but two of the male workers on her team: the old-school “Brigadier” and the earnest young Daniel, who interrupts workers’ partying to collect donations for North Vietnam. With a strikingly laconic and elliptical narrative structure—far from the mandated “socialist realism”—the film challenges the socialist glorification of work and conventional depictions of love and happiness. It also critiques both the official and popular views of international solidarity—with Angela Davis, Vietnam, and the Middle East. This was the debut film of Iris Gusner, one of only a handful of female feature film directors in East Germany (who recently co-authored a book with Helke Sander from the West). Banned and considered lost, a B&W duplication of the color original was restored in 2009 and was greeted by critics as “Nouvelle Vague” from the GDR.

Angst Essen/Eat Fear
Ming Wong, USA, 2008, 27 min

Angst Essen/Eat Fear is a reconstruction of a Fassbinder movie, Angst essen Seele auf, which tells the story of Emmi, an elderly cleaning woman from Munich who falls in love with a younger Moroccan immigrant worker named Ali. In Angst Essen/Eat Fear, director Ming Wong plays all the roles from the Fassbinder film. Speaking an approximate German, he embodies up to five persons at the same time, relentlessly switching between various identities defined by gender, age, or nationality. By playing all the protagonists in an unfamiliar language, Ming redirects the arrows of antagonism back onto every single one of the characters, thus turning each figure into an “other” or a “stranger.” Beyond a reflection on identity and alterity, Ming’s work is enlivened by a deeply funny and entertaining dimension, which reveals the positive options unlocked by a playful state of “in-betweenness”: in between ethnicities, languages, and genders.

Audiences for these films may also be interested in B8 “Cold War, Hot Media: East German Cinema” and L10 “DEFA and the Third World: DEFA Transnational.”

SPECIAL EVENT

SCMS and Emerson College Present

The Alloy Orchestra Performing a Live Musical Accompaniment for Josef von Sternberg's The Last Command (1928)LOCATION: The Historic Paramount Theater, 559 Washington Street*The Alloy Orchestra

Comprised of Terry Donahue (junk, accordion, musical saw, vocals), Ken Winokur (director, junk percussion, and clarinet), and Roger Miller (keyboards), the Boston-based Alloy Orchestra is a musical ensemble that since 1990 has specialized in composing and performing original scores for classic silent cinema. Among their 28 feature-length compositions are scores for Strike (1925), Metropolis (1927), and Steamboat Bill, Jr. (1928). Film critic Roger Ebert has praised the group's soundtracks for their "amazing bandwidth of music and sound effects." Many will be acquainted with the Alloy Orchestra from the soundtracks on Kino video and DVD releases. This is an extraordinary opportunity to see and hear the trio perform live.

The Last Command

Produced at Paramount Pictures, directed by Josef von Sternberg, and top-lining German film star Emil Jannings, The Last Command tells the story of a former White Russian general reduced to working as a $7.50-a-day extra in Hollywood—until he lands a screen role as a version of his former self. An embryonic Hollywood-on-Hollywood melodrama and a legacy of the fertile cross-pollination between Berlin and Hollywood, the lush costume drama blends grand orchestrations of Bolshevik uprisings with intense close-ups on psychic torment. "A really fine photoplay," raved Variety, "though there may be too many whiskers in it for the girls and not enough mush for the simps." For his performance in this and The Way of All Flesh (1927), Jannings received the first Best Actor award from the recently formed Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The film also stars William Powell and Evelyn Brent; title cards written by Herman J. Mankiewicz. Running time: 88 minutes.

The Paramount Theater: Built in 1932 as a 1,700-seat art deco movie palace, the Paramount was once the centerpiece of Boston's entertainment district. After closing its doors in 1976 it fell into serious disrepair. Millennium Partners restored the façade in 2002, and in 2005 Emerson College announced plans to renovate the property. The Paramount Center opened in 2010 and consists of a black box theater, screening room, teaching facilities, and a residence hall. Tonight's performance will take place in the 590-seat live theater that was reconstructed based on the design of the original Paramount auditorium.

To Attend: A portion of the house will be available on a first-come, first-served basis to SCMS participants with conference badges. Admission is free. Please arrive at least 20 minutes prior to show time, after which unclaimed SCMS-reserved seats will be offered to the public.

Directions: The Paramount is a 5-10 minute walk from the Park Plaza Hotel. Upon exiting the hotel on the Arlington Street side, turn right and walk a block-and-a-half to Boylston Street. Turn right on Boylston and walk approximately three blocks east, paralleling the Public Garden and Boston Common. At the intersection of Boylston and Tremont Streets, turn left onto Tremont and go one block to Avery Street (the corner with the Loew's Boston Common Theater). Turn right on Avery and go one block to Washington Street. As you turn left onto Washington, you will see the Paramount marquee.

Judith Helfand, George Stoney, and Susanne Rostock, USA, 1995, 88 min

Considered one of the most important strikes in the last century, the 1934 Southern textile workers strike saw half a million walk off their jobs in the largest single-industry strike in the history of the United States. Some were murdered, many were blacklisted. David Whiteman labeled this film a perfect example of the politically committed documentary. The filmmakers' activist stance in producing and distributing the film brought the history of the strike to light throughout the southeastern United States. By utilizing a coalition-based production model, Stoney, Helfand, and Rostock were able to envision the potential uses of the film as a tool for further activism and organizing. Today it stands as a testament for filmmakers, activists, unions, and interested citizens who are looking for new ways to reach out and educate others about forgotten chapters in the history of organized labor.

SCREENINGROOM: Tremont, Level 4My Perestroika*

Robin Hessman, USA, 2010, 88 min

My Perestroika follows five ordinary Russians living through extraordinary times—from their sheltered Soviet childhood to the collapse of the Soviet Union during their teenage years and on to the constantly shifting political landscape of post-Soviet Russia. Together, these childhood classmates paint a complex picture of the dreams and disillusionment of those raised behind the Iron Curtain. In this film, there are no “talking head” historians and no expert witnesses, nor is there an omniscient narrator telling viewers how to interpret events. Instead, the five share their personal stories. They take us on a journey through their Soviet childhoods and their youth during the country’s huge changes of Perestroika, and they allow us into their present-day lives. The film interweaves their contemporary world with rare home movie footage from the 1970s and ’80s in the USSR and official Soviet propaganda films that surrounded them at the time. Their memories and opinions sometimes complement each other, but together they paint a complex picture of the challenges, dreams, and disillusionment of this generation in Moscow today.

The Film Experience

An Introduction

Third Edition

Timothy Corrigan, University of Pennsylvania

Patricia White, Swarthmore College

The Film Experience is a comprehensive introduction to film that recognizes students as movie fans while surpassing all other texts in helping them understand the art form's full scope. Noted scholars and teachers Tim Corrigan and Patricia White capture the complete film experience, situating their strong coverage of the medium's formal elements within the larger cultural contexts that inform the ways we all watch film—from economics and exhibition to marketing and the star system. A host of learning tools gives students the support they need to make the transition from movie fan to critical viewer. Now with a sharper focus that highlights the essential formal and cultural concepts of cinema, and a powerful new suite of video and media, The Film Experience is the consummate introductory film text.

CINEMA OF CHOICE

Optional Thinking and Narrative Movies

Nitzan Ben Shaul

Hollywood narrative movies prescribe linear narratives and cue the viewer to expect predictable outcomes. There are, however, a small number of movies that, through the presentation of alternate narrative paths, open the mind to thoughts of choice and possibility. Through the study of several key movies for which this concept is central, such as Sliding Doors, Run Lola Run, Inglourious Basterds, and Rashomon, Nitzan Ben Shaul examines the causes and implications of optional thinking and how these movies allow for more open and creative possibilities.

EXISTENTIALISM AND CONTEMPORARY CINEMA

A Sartrean Perspective

Jean-Pierre Boulé and Erda McCaffrey [Eds.]

In a scholarly yet accessible style, the contributors exploit the rich interplay between Sartre's philosophy, plays and novels, and a number of contemporary films. This volume will be of interest to students who are coming to Sartre's work for the first time and to those who would like to read films within an existentialist perspective.

The Journal for Movies and Mind

Editor: Stephen Prince, Virginia Tech

Associate Editors: Carl Plantinga, Calvin College, Lesley Caldwell, UCL and Uri Hasson, Princeton University

Published in association with The Society for Cognitive Studies of the Moving Image (SCSMI) and The Forum for Movies and Mind*

Projections is an interdisciplinary, peer-reviewed journal that explores the ways in which recent advancements in fields such as cognitive psychology, neuroscience, psychoanalysis, genetics, and evolution help to increase our understanding of film, and how film itself facilitates investigations into the nature and function of the mind. The journal also incorporates articles on the visual arts and new technologies related to film. The aims of the journal are to explore these subjects, facilitate a dialogue between people in the sciences and the humanities, and bring the study of film to the forefront of contemporary intellectual debate.

The World Film Locations

From  intellect Books

The World Film Locations series explores the relationship between the city and cinema using a predominantly visual approach.

Each book is illustrated throughout with film stills from carefully chosen scenes paired with short descriptions. Longer essays explore the themes and key historical periods important to each city.

BLACK CAMERA

An International Film Journal (The New Series)

“In a world of increased diversity and complexity, Black Camera will be at the forefront of the cinematic depiction of ‘difference.’”

Gerald R. Butters, Jr., PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, Aurora University

EDITED BY MICHAEL T. MARTIN

IU Press, in partnership with the Indiana University Black Film Center/Archive, is the publisher of Black Camera, An International Film Journal (The New Series). Black Camera is devoted to the study of the black cinematic experience and is the only scholarly film journal of its kind in the United States. It features essays and interviews that engage film in social as well as political contexts and in relation to historical and economic forces that bear on the reception, distribution, and production of film in local, regional, national, and transnational settings and environments. Black Camera includes research and archival notes, editorials, reports, interviews with emerging and prominent filmmakers, and book and film reviews and addresses a wide range of genres.

Film HISTORY

An International Journal

“Anyone with a serious interest in the history of the cinema should subscribe to Film History. This excellent journal combines the rigors of contemporary research with a wide range of historical interests. It is first rate scholarship presented in a clear and compelling way.”

Martin Scorsese
FILM DIRECTOR

EDITED BY RICHARD KOSZARSKI

In its first twenty years, Film History has published over 600 remarkable essays documenting every phase of the motion picture’s cultural, economic and technological development.

International in scope, its pages span the entire history of the medium, from the technological and entrepreneurial innovations of early and pre-cinema experimenters through all aspects of the production, marketing, distribution and reception of commercial and non-commercial motion pictures.

Drawing on a wide range of contributors, from the field’s most respected historians to the groundbreaking work of a new generation of scholars, Film History speaks with authority, insight, and clarity.

MSMI

MUSIC, SOUND, AND THE MOVING IMAGE

Music, Sound, and the Moving Image

MSMI is the first international scholarly journal devoted to the study of the interaction between music and sound with the entirety of moving image media – film, television, music video, advertising, computer games, mixed-media installation, digital art, live cinema, et alia. The journal is truly interdisciplinary, inviting contributions across a range of critical methodologies, including musicology and music analysis, film studies, popular music studies, cultural theory, aesthetics, semiotics, sociology, marketing, sound studies, and music psychology.

CHICAGO 2013

Call for Paper, Panel, and Workshop Proposals

The Society for Cinema and Media Studies announces its call for paper, panel, and workshop proposals for the 2013 conference to be held Wednesday, March 6 through Sunday, March 10, 2013
at The Drake Hotel.

The Chicago area is home to some of our most important and distinguished programs in film, television, and media studies, including Northwestern University, the University of Illinois at Chicago, the University of Chicago, and the Art Institute of Chicago. Since 1980, more than 750 feature films and television productions have been made in Chicago, and, both in size and recognition, Chicago's own independent film community is the fastest growing segment of the industry.

The 2013 SCMS Conference Program Committee welcomes quality paper, panel, and workshop proposals on any topic related to cinema and media studies, as well as proposals for screenings.

The proposal submission form will be online June 1, 2012, and the deadline for proposals for open call papers, pre-constituted panels and workshops, and screenings is Friday, August 31, 2012 (5:00 pm Central Time).
