

A VIEW FROM THE BOARD ROOM

Cooperatively Battle Financial Illiteracy

By: Jean M. Yokum, Chairman, DCUC
President/CEO, Langley FCU, VA

“Give a man a fish and he’ll eat for a day. Teach a man to fish and he’ll eat for a lifetime.”

Credit unions nationwide have once again embraced the mission of education to cooperatively battle financial illiteracy by reaching out to children, young adults and more to teach basic financial concepts. In 2003, the majority of credit unions focused their efforts on school age children. Many defense credit unions, including Langley Federal Credit Union, forged relationships with local schools; but also took the unique stance of reaching out to new base recruits, who may be on the verge of making a major financial mistake.

Many of these young adults arrive ill-equipped to make wise financial decisions. Some might take an unnecessarily lengthy term to lower a car payment. Some will pay 150% interest on a stereo or 800% interest on a payday loan. Some haven’t considered the high insurance payment on a new Ford Mustang, which will send them into bankruptcy in a matter of months. Some might charge $8,000 on a high-interest credit card, not knowing it will take 15 years to pay off the debt. These are all real life situations we see every day, and we, as credit union people affiliated with the military, have a responsibility to prevent these mistakes.

CEO UPDATE

Serving Defense Credit Unions All Day, Every Day – All Year, Every Year

By: Roland A. “Arty” Arteaga
President/CEO, DCUC

“Arty” Arteaga

Over forty years ago, the Department of Defense acknowledged the need for a spokesman for the (then) 450 defense credit unions serving DoD. DCUC stepped up to that challenge in the early 1960s and for more than four decades has worked with DoD to address matters of relevant and common interests...interests to you, to each of the respective Military Departments, the Pentagon, and above all else, matters of valued importance to our troops and their families. Calendar year 2003 was no different. Once again, we played a major role in confronting strategic and operational issues, and worked diligently with you and our partners at DoD to ensure our collective concerns were heard, understood, and acknowledged.

This past year alone we worked successfully with DoD and our Military Department representatives on commercial solicitation rules, on DoD policy (pertaining to base operations), on DoD and Treasury e-commerce initiatives (such as Navy Cash, Paper Check Conversion, Stored Values Cards), on DoD’s Financial Readiness campaign, on MWR issues, in-store banking efforts, ATM support, on-base security matters and Fair Market Value. Additionally, through our active participation with national organizations, such as the National Military Family Association and the American Society of Military Comptrollers, we promoted defense credit unions throughout DoD’s support channels and ensured that newly assigned key DoD personnel were “trained-up” on the credit union philosophy and principles. Beyond that, however, we made sure the DoD establishment understood the unique challenges you face daily, and was cognizant of the immense value and enormous contributions you add and bring to each and every Command...at home station, in-transition or when deployed.

When you add the educational opportunities we provided in terms of Defense Issues 2003 and our 40th annual Conference, and the adjunct role we played in the 2003 DCUC Overseas and the Midwest Sub-council conferences...when you look at the working partnerships with Financial Service Center Cooperative (FSCC), GEICO, Intercontinental Warranty Services, Children’s Miracle Network, Association for Financial Counseling and Planning Education, plus our co-owner responsibilities with the Armed Forces Financial Network (AFFN), I believe you will agree — we (your DCUC Board and staff) have been

VETERANS RECEIVE COST-OF-LIVING INCREASE IN BENEFITS

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) included a 2.1 percent increase in the disability benefit payments that millions of veterans and dependents received at the end of December. President Bush authorized an increase matching the increase in Social Security rates by signing into law the Veterans Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2003.

The new rates apply to benefits earned in December. VA benefit payments routinely are made at the beginning of the month following the one in which they are earned, but with the New Year's Day holiday, checks or direct deposits were generally received on December 31.

Those receiving the increase included 2.5 million veterans awarded compensation for disabilities sustained or made worse during their military service, as well as 347,000 wartime veterans who are totally disabled from civilian-life causes and who receive a pension under an income-based program.

The increase also will go to 337,000 spouses, children and parents of veterans who died in service or from a service-connected condition, and another 231,000 who are served by an income-based program for survivors of wartime veterans.

Most veterans and survivors received their increased VA compensation or pension through direct deposit, which VA encourages because of its speed and security.

WINNERS IN MILITARY CONSTRUCTION BILL HOPE TO STAVE OFF BASE CLOSURES

By Amy Svitak and Richard H.P. Sia,
CongressDaily

The $9.3 billion, fiscal 2004 military construction spending bill President Bush recently signed into law promises more than improvements in readiness, housing and health care for U.S. troops and their families. For dozens of communities across the country, the bill represents a multimillion-dollar investment in the future of their local military facilities, possibly making them less vulnerable to the Pentagon's next round of base closing decisions in fiscal 2005.

In the scramble for military construction funds a year before the 2005 Base Realignment and Closure Commission is expected to cut as much as 25 percent of excess domestic base infrastructure, facilities in Alaska, Hawaii and Texas fared exceptionally well, while some in Alabama, California and Georgia did not.

An analysis by Congress Daily of funding allocations in the military construction bill shows bases with high-priority missions — for example, Hawaii's Schofield Barracks, home of one of the Army's new Stryker brigades — among those receiving the most federal funds. Rapid reaction forces at Fort Drum, N.Y., home of the Army's 10th Mountain Division, and Fort Bragg, N.C., headquarters of the 82nd Airborne Division and XVIII Airborne Corps, were among the big winners.

In addition, Virginia's sprawling Norfolk Naval Base and the Navy's sole recruit boot camp at Great Lakes Naval Training Center, north of Chicago, ranked high on the allocation list.

Other facilities, such as Shaw Air Force Base in South Carolina and the Blount Island Marine Corps maritime repositioning facility in Florida, grabbed a sizable amount of money, thanks to well-organized lobbying efforts by groups seeking to protect them from the 2005 closing round, the analysis shows. (See below for a complete database ranking allocations of fiscal 2004 construction funds by facility.) Lawmakers, prodded by local officials and lobbyists retained by community groups, added millions to the construction bill in hopes of shielding the bases from the Pentagon's ax. But the Defense Department insisted such efforts to protect them would not work.

"All installations are going to be judged equally," said Raymond DuBois, the Pentagon's former deputy undersecretary for installations and environment, last December. "You must approach this in a comprehensive and objective fashion. All installations are on the table."

Maybe not, said Chris Hellman, director of the Project on Military Spending Oversight, a Washington-based watchdog group.

"You can't BRAC-proof a base, even with new construction ... but it doesn't hurt," Hellman said. "And just because there is a BRAC round looming, that doesn't mean you put construction projects on hold, either."

The Blount Island facility, for example, garnered a hefty $115.7 million in 2004 funds for land acquisition. Part of the funds will allow the Navy to buy 137 acres of undeveloped property and a restrictive-use easement on another 133 acres of developed land.

The deal between the Navy and the Jacksonville Port Authority, negotiated with support from Florida Democratic Sens. Bill Nelson and Bob Graham, along with Reps. Ander Crenshaw, R-Fla., and Corrine Brown, D-Fla., could help ensure the Marine Corps' long-term use of Blount Island.

These funds, along with $30 million in congressional add-ons to the bill, are a likely boon to Florida Gov. Jeb Bush's recently formed task force to help save the state's 21 military installations and three unified commands. During the past two BRAC rounds, Florida lost its Cecil Field Naval Air Station, the largest military installation in the Jacksonville area.

A smaller, but no less important, amount of money — $26.3 million — is earmarked in the bill for Edwards Air Force Base in California, for the first phase of a complex for the military's next-generation, joint-strike fighter and a House add-on of a new base operations facility. A coalition of local governments and businesses near the base traveled to Washington last spring to lobby for help in protecting Edwards from the 2005 BRAC.

Fort Dix, the venerable New Jersey Army base that has barely survived past closure rounds, received a House add-on of $6.4 million for construction of an urban assault course and a major conference center. The base lately has served as a major processing facility for reserve forces bound for Iraq and Afghanistan.

Funds to improve mission-specific infrastructure and upgrade base housing are the most helpful, Hellman said. The Pentagon has pledged to solve the military's substandard housing woes, giving installations with new or improved living quarters a leg up. Other bases could benefit from new construction allowing them to take on old missions from closed facilities, he said.

"Unlike rounds in the 1990s, we're not going to see missions going away," Hellman said. "We'll see more consolidation; and if they close a facility, they'll probably move it to a new one, so any new construction is going to be positive in that regard."

Shaw Air Force Base, for example, received an $8.5 million congressional add-on to pay for a deployment-processing center. Shaw was a potential candidate for the ax during the 1995 BRAC round, but it is home to the 20th Fighter Wing with three F-16 fighter squadrons. Airmen regularly deploy from this medium-sized base to others around the world, including those in the Persian Gulf.

Local governments near Shaw hope the passage of land-use ordinances to limit encroachment also will protect the base from shutdown. While the Air Force is now planning to reduce its overall number of fighter squadrons, an overseas fighter wing could be moved to Shaw, further protecting it from the budget ax.

PLEASE WELCOME DCUC's TWO NEWEST EMPLOYEES

The Defense Council is both proud and happy to introduce to you its two newest employees – Deborah “Debbie” Caruso and Beth Thompson.

Debbie was hired as Administrative Assistant on October 1, 2003, and is the first voice you'll usually hear when you call DCUC's main office number. She comes to us from Boston, MA, having graduated in June from Northeastern University's College of Arts and Sciences with a BS degree in Sociology.

While attending Northeastern U, Deb participated in their work-study program. She spent six months in San Diego, CA, doing administrative work for a bio-tec company, Collateral Therapeutics, and another six months working at Harvard University in their HR Department, doing computer training.

She loves photography (says her apartment is covered with photos she's taken of family and friends), learning to cook, and exploring her new city.

Debbie Caruso

Beth Thompson

With Stacey Carter's retirement, Beth Thompson was hired as the new Director of Administration. She began work with the Council on December 5th, and many of you will remember her from her previous employment with CUNA & Affiliates where she was Regulatory Advocacy Assistant providing support for the General Counsel and Assistant General Counsel. Prior to that, Beth was Program Coordinator with the Association of Corporate Credit Unions working closely with Gigi Hyland.

Beth, too, is a New Englander, having graduated from Southeastern Massachusetts University, North Dartmouth, MA, with a BA in Political Science.

She loves her cat, September, almost all music (excepting rap or heavy metal), loves the bagpipes and photography, the New England Patriots and the Boston Red Sox (which makes her, she says, a glutton for punishment).

Your first chance to meet our two newest employees will be at Defense Issues '04 on Saturday, February 21st, at the Washington Hilton. If you're going to be there, please introduce yourself and make them welcome!

extremely busy this past year, from start to finish, doing what we do best...supporting you, our prized members!

It is all about relationships folks, and when it comes to DCUC's sustained relationships at the Pentagon and working relationships outside of the Pentagon (as the U.S. Air Force would say)...no one comes close! Let there be no doubt, though we are a small professional organization, we have been and are big in results. We're effective...we're efficient...extremely well respected...and in our world, we are the preeminent and leading authority on policy, procedural and support matters pertaining to base operations and applicable DoD regulations

As we leave 2003 and welcome 2004, let me assure you, your Council will continue to stay abreast of impending changes and challenges — such as Base Realignment and Closure, transformation, reorganization, base operations, the impact of the Presidential elections — and will continue to represent your interests at the Department of Defense. For just as we have for more than four decades, we will lead-the-way and be your principal advocate on matters pertaining to your support of our troops and the DoD's support of you.

Thank you for your continued loyalty and commitment to the Defense Credit Union Council. Together, we have made a vast difference in “serving those who serve our country”...together, we will continue to support the financial needs of the military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense establishment — and do so in unprecedented fashion!

Here's wishing you and your staff continued success, much happiness and good health in 2004, and here's hoping the very best for our troops and their families in the coming year. Keep them in your thoughts and prayers, daily. They are the true heroes of our Nation and our passion for support!

BUSH SIGNS "SERVICEMEMBERS CIVIL RELIEF ACT"

New Legislation Will Help Ease Financial, Legal Burdens on Troops Called to Active Duty Service

President Bush has signed the "Servicemembers Civil Relief Act," new legislation to help ease the economic and legal burdens on military personnel called to active duty status in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Authored by Veterans' Affairs Committee Chairman Chris Smith, the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act updates and strengthens current civil protections enacted during World War II. In addition, the new law contains dozens of provisions to assist soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines to help manage their financial and legal obligations while they are away from home in Iraq, Afghanistan and other locations around the world.

"Servicemembers called to active duty or deployed to new duty stations often find it difficult to meet their personal financial and legal obligations in a timely manner," said Chairman Smith. "The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act will help these brave men and women, as well as their families back home, by strengthening and expanding the current civil relief statute," he said.

"For example, servicemembers deploying to new duty stations will have the ability to terminate automobile leases without having to pay any early termination penalties," Smith said. "Furthermore, it will prevent personal property (such as automobiles) from being repossessed without a specific court order in order to take into account their military duty status," he said.

"In addition, it is often difficult for servicemembers to be physically present during civil court proceedings when they have been called up to active duty or deployed to new duty stations," Smith said. "To protect their rights, H.R. 100 will provide servicemembers with automatic 90-day stays in civil proceedings. Furthermore, if an additional stay is subsequently requested but denied, the court will be required to appoint a counsel to protect the servicemember's rights while he remains on active duty," he said.

"The new law will even allow the possibility of servicemembers reopening default judgments rendered against them when the failure to appear was caused by military service. And the civil protections under this law will now also be applied to administrative proceedings, such as licensing and zoning matters, which are much more common today," said Smith.

"For Guard and reserve members called to active duty – especially for extended periods such as Operation Iraqi Freedom – the reduction in income can place significant economic pressure on them and their families," Smith said.

"The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act recognizes that these men and women need and deserve special relief to meet a number of financial obligations and liabilities, such as rent, mortgages, installment contracts and leases," he said.

Now that it is enacted into law, H.R. 100 will also:

- Expand current law that protects servicemembers and their families from eviction from housing while on active duty due to nonpayment of rents that are $1,200 per month or less. Under the new provisions this protection would be significantly updated to meet today's higher cost of living – covering housing leases up to $2,400 per month – and then be adjusted annually to account for inflation.
- Provide a servicemember who receives permanent change of station orders or who is deployed to a new location for 90 days or more the right to terminate a housing lease.
- Clarify and restate existing law that limits to 6 percent interest on credit obligations, including credit card debt, for active duty servicemembers. HR 100 unambiguously states that no interest above 6 percent can accrue for credit obligations while on active duty, nor can that excess interest become due once the servicemember leaves active duty – instead that portion above 6 percent is permanently forgiven. Furthermore, the monthly payment must be reduced by the amount of interest saved during the covered period.

- Update life insurance protections provided to activated Guard and reserve members by increasing from $10,000 to $250,000 the maximum policy coverage that the federal government will protect from default for nonpayment while on active duty.
- Prevent servicemembers from a form of double taxation that can occur when they have a spouse who works and is taxed in a state other than the state in which they maintain their permanent legal residence. HR 100 will prevent states from using the income earned by a servicemember in determining the spouse's tax rate when they do not maintain their permanent legal residence in that state.

"With hundreds of thousands of our military personnel stationed around the world today in the war on terrorism, it is imperative that Congress do all that it can to ease the burdens that they and their loved ones face back at home," Smith said. "Enactment of the 'Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act' strengthens current civil protections, as well as provides important new ones, to help prevent soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines defending our nation and our freedom from being negatively affected by their service," he said.

CONSTRUCTION

But Hellman said the best way for a local community to shelter a base from the next BRAC round is through planning.

"The people that intrigue me are the ones that are looking at what the community can do to make the base a better match," he said. "They can't affect what goes on inside the base, but they may be improving highway access to bases for, say, mobility centers; and that's going to be something that the military is going to look at."

For example, the state of Texas authorized $250 million in bonds in September for communities to do just that type of work, "which makes a lot more sense than hiring a lobbyist," Hellman said.

Mississippi is also taking this approach. Three of the state's installations — Columbus and Keesler Air Force bases and the naval reserve facility at Pascagoula — won $16.7 million in congressional add-ons to the administration's $26.3 million Military Construction request for that state.

While Democratic Rep. Gene Taylor has carefully overseen Mississippi from Washington, the state is working locally to protect its military assets, recently establishing authority for local communities to borrow up to $300 million annually for base-related improvements.

YOU SHOULD KNOW THAT . . .

- The Defense Council will be hosting its mini-conference again this year. Defense Issues 2004 is scheduled for Saturday, February 21, 2004, at the Washington Hilton Hotel, tentatively set at the Georgetown West Ballroom. A registration form may also be found at the DCUC website, www.dcuc.org, at the scrolling marquee, Defense Issues 2004. Please print out the form, fill it in and return it together with your check/share draft in the amount of $100 per attendee to the DCUC, 601 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, South Building, Suite 600, Washington, DC 20004-2601, or fax it with your VISA or MasterCard account number, expiration date, and name on the card to the Council at 202/638-3410.
- All veterans with service-connected medical problems will receive priority access to health care from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) under a new directive. The directive provides that all veterans requiring care for a service-connected disability — regardless of the extent of their injury — must be scheduled for a primary care evaluation within 30 days of their request for care. If a VA facility is unable to schedule an appointment within 30 days, it must arrange for care at another VA facility, at a contract facility or through a sharing agreement. The directive covers hospitalization and outpatient care. It does not apply to care for medical problems not related to a service-connected disability. However, veterans needing emergency care will be treated immediately.

IDEAS FOR YOUR CREDIT UNION. . .

- Service CU, NH, is relying on technology to conduct marketing meetings with their branch locations by conducting webinars. By having the meeting at 10:00 eastern time, it allows for the branches located in Germany to attend as well. Employees are given an 800 number to call to attend the meeting and are free to make comments either on the phone or utilizing the 'chat feature' offered. After two successful attempts, this will be used on a quarterly basis.
- Navy FCU, VA, employees recently unveiled a credit union quilt, which will be on permanent display at Navy Federal's headquarters. The handmade quilt, crafted by a group of 15 of the credit union's employees and friends over the course of three years, was presented as a gift to the credit union in honor of its 70th anniversary. The theme of the quilt is Navy Federal's corporate values, commitment, communication, creativity, integrity and partnership. Its three panels depict different programs, initiatives and aspects of Navy Federal and how the values are represented through the employees, members and community.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE BEGINS GATHERING DATA FOR BRAC 2005

The Department of Defense has requested commanders of installations in the United States, territories and possessions to gather information about their installations as part of the 2005 round of Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC). The department will use BRAC to eliminate unnecessary infrastructure and to increase military capability.

All installations will participate in these calls. While none of the questions or data associated with the questions will be released to the public prior to the department's recommendations being forwarded to the independent Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission, which will be named by March 2005. All questions and data will be publicly available once the Commission receives them.

This data call is only one of many steps in the BRAC process. There will be additional data calls as necessary. Formal data calls are one of the ways the department satisfies its statutory obligations to treat all military installations equally and to make its closure and realignment recommendations based solely upon certified data.

In a related action, the department published Draft Selection Criteria in the Dec. 23, 2003, Federal Register for public comment. The department will use the criteria as part of its evaluation process. Comments are due not later than January 28, 2004. The department's list of base closure and realignment recommendations will be submitted to the independent BRAC Commission no later than May 16, 2005, as required by the legislation.

DCUC e-mailed, and sent a broadcast fax to all of its active members advising that, as a matter of routine and information, it will be providing periodic DoD press releases regarding the 2005 BRAC process.

General information on the DoD's BRAC process is available online at: <http://www.dod.mil/brac/>.

BOARD ROOM

It takes much time, effort and dedication to establish regular educational programs on financial-fitness related topics. However, the military is very aware that these problems exist and welcomes outside assistance, especially from their credit unions.

Return on investment is hard to measure in dollars and cents, but the impact of educational efforts takes hold quickly. Your base relationship improves because a lower occurrence of financial problems results in better productivity of personnel. The community in which you live is better off with more residents positively impacting local economies. Most importantly, getting the message to those who need it most and helping someone avoid a costly mistake creates a loyal member for life. Talk to your base about the possibility of starting a financial education series. The rewards will be well worth the effort.
