

Ellie Edlmann, BMBS, MRCS, PhD.

British born and trained.

Working at the University of Plymouth as a Clinical Lecturer in Neurosurgery and at Derriford Hospital as a senior neurosurgical registrar.

My research interests: Neurosurgery in older people, CSDH and traumatic head injury

Issues important to me:

- Questioning the disparities in diversity between the patient population we serve and the neurosurgeons providing the care
- Recognising everyone's role (in neurosurgery and in research) and giving it fair reward
- Accepting peoples limitations and admitting failure, being a "good enough" mum is heralded as better than trying to be the "best mum", does this apply to neurosurgery...

Contact: eedlmann@gmail.com, Twitter @EdlmannE

