Sanford Brown College-Orlando Honored With Four Top Awards - School of the Year, Three Top Volunteer Recognitions

TALLAHASSEE, FL – Aug. 17, 2015 – Sanford Brown College received School of the Year – which is among highest honors given to career schools by the Florida Association of Postsecondary Schools and Colleges (FAPSC) – while three volunteers were given “Spirit” medallions for their dedication to the organization.

The school, located in South Orlando, was honored with the 2015 School of the Year Award for its innovative academic programs with an increased focus on student learning outcomes by immersing students with industry relevant projects in the classroom and community.

“Sanford Brown College in South Orlando is a shining example of a school reaching out into the community and offering great opportunities for its students,” said Curtis Austin, executive director of FAPSC.

In addition, three Spirit awards were given to Sanford Brown College’s Mark Page, Online and Jay Frank and Matthew Pummel, Orlando. The awards are given to outstanding volunteers who contribute to FAPSC.

“Volunteers are the backbone of our organizations and are key to our ability to make an impact in the state,” Austin said. “These three Sanford Brown College individuals contribute to our overall success.”

FAPSC has been the voice of Florida’s career schools since 1956. The association of more than 250 members works on behalf of the more 1,000 licensed private career schools and colleges in Florida that prepare students each year for employment in more than 200 occupational fields by offering degree programs, certification and training.
