Summary: The Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act grants certain rights to public safety officers, as defined. The act requires that, when a public safety officer is under investigation and is interrogated by his or her commanding officer, or another member of the employing agency, on matters than that could lead to punitive action, the interrogation be conducted under certain conditions. This bill would authorize an employing public agency to grant the right of representation to a public safety officer if an interview regarding the investigation of another public safety officer focuses on matters that may result in punitive action against the officer who is not formally under investigation.
