Consulting Engineers Legislative Council
Proactive Consulting Engineers in the Political Process

The Florida Institute of Consulting Engineers (FICE) has been successful in our efforts to address issues of concern to engineers across the state. We must remain vigilant in our fight to keep current engineering issues in the forefront of legislative attention. Actively supporting pro-engineer candidates is the single most effective tool in this effort.

A committee of FICE, the Consulting Engineers Legislative Council (CELC), was created to provide targeted pro-engineering legislative candidates with special funding to assist in their efforts to run a successful campaign.

CELC Objectives are to:
- Support candidates who understand engineering issues and will be strong advocates for concerns of consulting engineers and their business.
- Promote and support engineering candidates for public office.
- Protect and improve legislation relating to the practice of consulting engineering.

CELC funds are generally used by candidates for television and radio campaign advertising, phone banks, and targeted direct mail during the final stages of their race.

CELC dedicates its influence to ensuring engineers’ strength.
CELC Members pledge contributions totaling $1,000 annually to pro-engineering candidates located throughout Florida. Once a commitment is established and races have been identified, CELC Members will be contacted by the Florida Engineering Society (FES)/FICE Government Affairs team and asked to contribute promised funds, in whole or in part, for a specific candidate.

Contribution checks are made payable directly to the candidate and mailed to CELC. These checks are then presented to the candidate by a FICE Representative on the contributors behalf.

As a CELC Member, you are ensuring that elected officials know that they are hearing the voice of Florida’s engineers.

The power of CELC Members commitment assures stability within the engineering profession in Florida. Empower CELC and join today!
