Public areas can be in hotels, attractions, museums, transportation, and retail stores. In restaurants, once you’re actively drinking and eating at your table, no covering required. Now if you’re at the beach or outdoors, engaged in social distancing or actively walking, hiking, or biking – then you don’t need a covering. Exemptions: Children under 2; persons unable to wear facial coverings due to health regulations, religious reasons, facial treatments, medical conditions; and, public safety personnel with PPE.
