Greetings Colleagues!

What an amazing year—our 25th year coming together to discuss the inspiring community of Forensic Nursing. As an international association which serves as a global network to exchange ideas, and with a mission of disseminating information internationally about forensic nursing science, it is only fitting to celebrate our 25th annual meeting outside of the organization’s home soil. I could not be more excited to embrace our global community by having the International Conference on Forensic Nursing Science and Practice come to Canada for 2017. It is with this excitement that I would like to personally invite each of you to beautiful Toronto this fall to join us for four days of education, enlightenment, and networking.

This conference is devoted to you, our members and forensic nursing associates, multidisciplinary partners, and esteemed guests. On this special anniversary year, we will continue our tradition of bringing inspired people together to ensure that IAFN remains on the cutting edge. This conference will be brimming with new research and many inspiring, intense, and important topics. Our keynote presentations include Jeffrey Bucholtz, Caitlin Pakosh, Janice Du Mont, and Dirk Huyer. They will examine topics such as: our culture’s response to sexual assault and the unrealistic expectations put on women to prevent it, the transfer of knowledge into practice, the Innocence Project, and recommendations from a coroner’s perspective. Additionally, workshops around strangulation, forensic photography, human identification, and dozens of sessions divided among eight tracks will help educate you to construct your future forward.

While you are here, I encourage you to explore this amazing city on the shores of Lake Ontario. Toronto, the capital of the province of Ontario, is a dynamic metropolis with a core of soaring skyscrapers, all dwarfed by the iconic CN Tower boasting the scintillating “edgewalk” (for the more adventurous of us). Toronto also has many green spaces, from the orderly oval of Queen’s Park to the 400-acre High Park. North America’s fourth largest city beckons you to explore, dine, shop, and partake of The Aquarium, Hockey Hall of Fame, Royal Ontario Museum, Distillery District, St. Lawrence Market, Queen’s Street, Chinatown, the Beaches, even our very own castle, Casa Loma, and so much more.

This amazing conference would not be possible without all of you. Thank you, in advance, for your part in making the 2017 International Conference on Forensic Nursing Science and Practice the amazing event that I know it will be. To all who attend, thank you for bringing your expertise to the on-site discussions and networking opportunities. To our members, thank you for the having the vision, knowledge, and experience to help us pave our way into the future. And last but certainly not least, thank you to Carol Dunn, IAFN Meetings and Events Planner; Denise Covington, Chair of the Planning Committee; and the 2017 Planning Committee for their tireless efforts in organizing and supporting this conference. My personal respect and appreciation goes out to all of you.

See you in Toronto!

With my warmest regards,

Liz Louden

Together We Can: Sexual Violence, Gender, and Responsibility

Presenter: Jeffrey Bucholtz, M.A.

Together We Can uses humor, audience interaction, popular culture analysis, and performance to take a critical look at the ways in which our culture facilitates sexual violence. Participants will explore ideas about healthy sex, obtaining consent, and the role popular culture plays in promoting unhealthy ideas about sex and consent. Participants will also address victim blaming, survivor dynamics, and responsibility for sexual violence in order to provide critical insights into the discourses that promote survivor self-loathing, and prevent survivor recovery. Finally, participants will engage in a fun and interactive critical thinking activity about the gendered language that facilitates sexual violence and promotes unhealthy ideas about femininity, masculinity, and sexuality. Together We Can is a thought-provoking, motivational, and pragmatic tool for those with the desire and passion to build a world free from sexual violence.

Research to Advance SANE-Led Services: Innovations in Knowledge and Practice
Presenter: Janice Du Mont, EdD
This keynote address will describe the innovations to SANE-led services resulting from a decades-long partnership with the Ontario Network of Sexual Assault/Domestic Violence Treatment Centres. Founded on an integrated KT approach, this iterative program of research has advanced knowledge, policy, and practice to optimize the care provided to diverse survivors of sexual assault, intimate partner violence, and elder abuse.

Caitlin M. Pakosh, HBSc, JD has been working as Case Management Counsel of Innocence Canada (formerly known as AIDWYC) since 2012 and is responsible for managing the organization’s cases across Canada. She has appeared in the Court of Appeal for Ontario and has worked on intervener and appellate cases that have appeared at a variety of levels of court, including the Supreme Court of Canada, as well as ministerial review applications.

Friday, October 13
12:45 pm–2:15 pm
The Intersection of Forensic Science and the Law: Forensic Nursing and the Path Forward
Presenter: Caitlin Pakosh, HBSc, JD
Forensic science has played a unique role in the criminal justice system: it has both contributed to, uncovered, and even assisted in, correcting wrongful convictions. The intersection of forensic science and the law will be explored with the view to prevent wrongful convictions by advancing strategies to enhance the expert-lawyer relationship and improve scientific literacy in the courtroom. The discussion will be drawn from the presenter’s work in the 2016 text “The Lawyer’s Guide to the Forensic Sciences.”

Saturday, October 14
8:30 am–9:30 am
Death Investigation: The Need for Culturally Safe Services
Presenter: Dirk Huyer, MD
Ontario has long-standing challenges in providing death investigation services to Indigenous communities. Respect, recognition, partnering, and working with Indigenous people are fundamental to transform relationships and develop trust. Discussion will focus on key learning points along the journey to the provision of culturally safe services.
