FWA-NJ: Strategies for Getting Your Voice Heard

Maybe you are a classic introvert, or you lack the confidence to speak up with your contributions to the discussion, or you find it particularly difficult to find ways to influence your peers or your team when it comes to making important decisions, or maybe it's that female voice in a room full of males who simply talk over you and the good ideas that you bring forth. These and many other factors are perhaps contributing to your feeling that your voice is not always heard.

Take this opportunity to learn and adopt key strategies for your voice to be heard and taken note of at meetings, round tables, in conversations, and in presentations. Positive change can happen!
