DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COURT OF APPEALS

The D.C. Court of Appeals is the equivalent of a state supreme court. As the highest court for the District of Columbia, the Court is authorized to review all final orders, judgments and some interlocutory (non-final) orders of the Superior Court. The Court also has jurisdiction to review decisions of administrative agencies, boards, and commissions of the District of Columbia government, as well as to answer questions of law certified by federal and state appellate courts.

If you lose your case in the Superior Court you may appeal to the D.C. Court of Appeals.

Note: A magistrate judge's order must be reviewed by an associate judge of the Superior Court before being appealed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.
