

Health Economics and Policy
Blended Learning PhD
Lancaster University

Lancaster University is an international leader in the provision of inspiring teaching and research, is in the top one per cent of universities in the world, and the top 10 in the UK. Located on a beautiful campus in the North West of England, one hour by train from Manchester, the University places great emphasis on student experience and employability and gives students access to academics who are leading experts in their field.

The new Blended Learning PhD in Health Economics and Policy - <http://www.lancaster.ac.uk/fhm/study/phd-study/courses/health-economics-and-policy-phd/> meets the needs of those wishing to enhance their research skills, develop their understanding of theory, policy and practice, and make an original contribution to knowledge development within their field, while at the same time fulfilling their existing responsibilities.

The programme is offered part-time and via blended e-learning, allowing a great deal of flexibility to those with other commitments who wish to study off campus. The course is aimed at individuals based in international settings, or in the UK.

This program is unique in many ways, and offered jointly by the Division of Health Research and the Department of Economics. We have many years of experience of offering study delivered to students who require a flexible approach, part time, and off campus.

More information about current research in Health Economics at Lancaster can be found here: <http://www.lancaster.ac.uk/fhm/research/health-economics/>

If you have any queries about the programme don't hesitate to contact us using the following e-mail address: fhm-pg-admissions@lancaster.ac.uk