Regina Perry-Carr from Chicago, IL, is Artistic Director of Nunufatima Dance Company. Regina began her dance training with mother Regina Taitts and ballet instructor, Charlene Rose (Cecchetti technique). She continued her training with Chicago dance companies Najwa Dance Corps and Muntu Dance Theatre of Chicago; in 1998 officially joining the professional ranks of Muntu, becoming one of their principal dancers. Regina has continued teaching and performing nationally and internationally. Regina has 30 plus years of training and 24 years of teaching experience in West African dance. Regina is a dancer extraordinaire, believing dance is not only movement but requires body, mind, and spirit. Regina is commended for having a beautiful poise which radiates the stage and warms the hearts of those seeking to learn the technique and beauty of African dance.
