Article IV – Procedures for Ethics Violations

1. A Standing Committee known as the Committee on Ethics shall be maintained by the Association.
2. Any alleged violation or breach of this Code of Ethics and Standards shall be reported in writing to any officer of the Association who shall have the duty to refer the written allegations to the Committee on Ethics.
3. The Committee on Ethics shall initially review the written allegations to determine if it provides a basis for proceeding further. If the Committee on Ethics determines that the written allegations require further investigations then it shall send a detailed statement of the allegations to the member or members involved requesting a written answer to the allegations within thirty (30) days.
4. Upon receipt of the response from the member or members involved, or if no response is received, the Committee may, if it so determines, proceed as follows:
 - a. Schedule a formal hearing before the Committee, with at least ten (10) days written notice thereof to both the complaining parties and the members involved.
 - b. At the hearing both parties shall be allowed time to present any pertinent material to the Committee and may be represented by counsel if they so desire.
5. At the conclusion of the hearing the Committee shall consider the material presented and make a determination as to whether any actions shall be taken against the offending member or members. If the Committee determines that action would be appropriate, it shall make a written report to the Board of Directors.
6. The Board of Directors, upon receipt of a written report from the Committee on Ethics, shall advise the offending member or members in writing of the receipt of the report and allow the member or members an additional five (5) days to make a further presentation. At that time, the Board may proceed to discipline the offending member or members in any appropriate manner including expulsion from the Association if it so determines.

OUR DEFINITION OF CREMATION INCLUDES THE FOLLOWING: (check one)

1.2 Cremated Remains – The remaining bone fragments after the cremation process is completed. Note: the term “cremains” may also be used; the preferred term is cremated remains, but both are in common use.

1.3 Cremation – The mechanical and/or thermal or other dissolution process that reduces remains to bone fragments. Cremation would include the subsequent processing and pulverization of bone fragments.

Cremation may occur under any of the following methods:

1.3.1 Communal Cremation – To cremate several pets in a cremation chamber at one time with no regard for keeping pets separated. This process allows for the co-mingling of cremated remains. No cremated remains are returned to the client. (Note: this may be described as “mass”, “group” or “combined” cremation; the preferred term is communal cremation).

1.3.2 Individual Cremation. This is an interim term for the cremation procedure also commonly referred to in the industry as Partitioned Cremation, or Segregated Cremation. More than one pet is placed in the cremation chamber and cremated at the same time with some form of separation between pets such as trays, refractory bricks, or space; the pet’s location in crematory is documented and cremated remains of pets are removed one at a time and kept separated. Each pet’s individual cremated remains are returned to the client. (Note: other terms include “individually separated”, or segregated and individually separated (S.I.S), or “individually partitioned” cremation; in every case the consumer and the Authorizing Agent must be informed that more than one pet may be cremated simultaneously).

1.3.3 Private Cremation – Only one pet is placed in the cremation chamber and cremated, with the cremated remains returned to the client. Private cremation may include viewing of the cremation by the client.

1.3.3.1 Private cremations can occur in a cremation machine with multiple cremation retorts chambers.
