Quarantined Across Borders Collection by Media Rise

Quarantined Across Borders is a collection of stories from people around the world who are writing about their experiences and observations while in quarantine. Media Rise has curated this collection of uplifting and thought-provoking stories on quarantine experiences across the globe. The collection includes personal stories, essays, and poems on borderlands, immigrant life, coping, and connectedness during the COVID-19 pandemic. In addition to the website, these stories are being posted by @mediarisenow on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram, with three new stories every day in June, for a total of 80+ stories from 30+ countries.

Ideas die at the hands of journalists. This is the controversial thesis offered by Michael McDevitt in a sweeping examination of anti-intellectualism in American journalism. A murky presence, anti-intellectualism is not acknowledged by reporters and editors. It is not easily measured by scholars, as it entails opportunities not taken, context not provided, ideas not examined. Where Ideas Go to Die will be the first book to document how journalism polices intellect at a time when thoughtful examination of our society’s news media is arguably more important than ever.

Call for Papers

Health & New Media Research (HNMR) invites the submission of original research manuscripts for publication in Volume 4, Issue 2. HNMR focuses on the role of communication and new media in public and environmental health to advance scholarly discoveries and real-world solutions. HNMR is an open-access, international, biannual peer-reviewed academic journal published in June and December by the Health & New Media Research Institute at Hallym University (South Korea).

The deadline for manuscript submissions is September 1, 2020. As an incentive for authors to contribute to this journal, there will be an award of US$1,000 for accepted papers. The submission should not have been published previously nor may any included material be drawn from previously published work. Submissions to HNMR must not be under consideration for publication in any form elsewhere.

For more information about the journal and submission, please visit our website: www.jhnmr.org. Inquiries should be sent to hnmr@hallym.ac.kr.
