How Leonardo Met Mona Lisa: Exploring Careers in the Arts

Program Description: This is a two-session experience for the high school senior with an interest in art that begins by setting a learning context through art career exploration.

The experience includes a brainstorming activity, a research and writing component, and a panel discussion with art experts from the community.

The experience concludes with the publication of the students’ written articles in a class newsletter, during which the high school seniors demonstrate proficiency with the real world application of their knowledge products.

Program Benefits: This program enables learners to explore the possibilities of a career in art, and helps them to make informed decisions about their future while learning valuable research and writing skills.

Past participants have valued the program because it helped them to understand the career options available to students of the visual arts and what each one requires.

The Roles the Librarian Plays (check all that apply):

TOOL KIT 1: INSTRUCTIONAL GUIDE

This is a guide for the librarian, teacher, and/or subject expert to follow when replicating the program.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

This Instructional Guide contains these components, in order of use:

1. Overview of session one ........................................................................................................ 4.1
2. Overview of session two ........................................................................................................ 4.2
3. Overview of session three ...................................................................................................... 4.3
4. Overview of session four ....................................................................................................... 4.4
5. Project Conclusion .............................................................................................................. 4.5
4.1 Session one: brainstorming

Purpose of the session
Start students thinking about careers in the visual arts. Instructor and librarian will also become familiar with student’s questions and concerns regarding their thoughts about careers and higher education. Conduct pre-test.

Program set-up
Have activity handouts 5.1 and Pre-survey 7.4.3 available. Program will take place in the classroom. Students must be seated in a form that facilitates group discussion.

Activities
Total class time: 50 minutes

- Introduction to the project (Instructor/Librarian--5 minutes)
  Explain the purpose of this project and discuss its objectives. Let students know that they will not only learn about art careers but that they will share what they learned with other students through a career guide that they will create as part of this project.

- Conduct pre-test (Librarian--5 minutes)
  Students should be given pre-test (7.4.3) to find out how comfortable/knowledgeable they are regarding art careers, library/museum use, and other variables. We also wanted to find out if students had made career decisions yet, if they had any questions or concerns, and if they had discussed this with their families.

- Career brainstorming (Instructor/Librarian--35 minutes)
  Assign a career from handout 5.1 to each participant. Allow a few minutes for reflection on what each professional does and what type of education/skills are needed for each profession. Each student should briefly discuss his or her assigned career with the rest of the group. Leave some time for questions/discussion at the end of the period.
Choose a career topic (Instructor--5 minutes)
Students must choose an art-related profession that they are interested in learning more about. This choice will be used for research during the library visit.

Post-activity questions
- List some valuable art-career related skills that you already possess?
- Which of these are you interested in developing further?

Pitfalls/Helpful Hints
- It should be stressed that there are no right/wrong answers to this exercise as many of the career options provided are rather uncommon. This activity is strictly created to let students think about the possibilities of a future in the arts.
- It is up to the instructor/librarian to determine whether students should work on their own or form part of a small (two or three-member) team. It was often the case that several students were interested in researching the same profession. We gave students the option to choose how they preferred to work.

Evaluating the pre-test
Instructor and librarian should meet soon after session one to discuss the pre-test. The most important information we gathered came from it came from the ‘questions and comments’ box. A significant portion of the students wrote that their biggest concerns were: not knowing where to start searching for schools, how to find funds for higher education, and how to choose a college. We tried to incorporate some of this information into our PowerPoint lecture in session two. This instructional component of the next session should be geared towards the group’s specific needs as indicated by the pre-test.
4.2 Session Two: Research at a Special Library

Purpose of the session
This session will introduce students to materials used to research careers in the visual arts. It will also introduce students to the nature and use of a special library, and it will provide in-depth introduction to a museum profession using the gallery spaces and art collections as context.

Program set-up
Have handout 5.2, writing materials, easel pads, and pencils available. Make sure Audio visual equipment is properly connected (computer, screen, and projector). Chairs should face the screen during introduction, PowerPoint lecture, and wrap-up sections of the unit. Computer terminals with internet access should be available.

Activities
Total class time: 1 hour, 40 minutes.

- Introduction to a special library (Librarian—10 minutes)
  Welcome and introduction to the library. Discuss what a special library is and what type of collections are housed in your space. Discuss specific policies to your library and to special libraries in general. Introduction to the use of research materials. Introduction to the concepts of primary and secondary research.

- PowerPoint presentation and discussion about art careers and higher education (Instructor/Librarian--15 minutes)
  Instructor will provide a general introduction to higher education in the visual arts. What skills and materials will likely be required to be accepted into college. Additional topics can be included as indicated by the results of the pre-test.
  Librarian will present materials available to students to research higher education, scholarships, and careers in the visual arts. Discuss the importance of internships and other work experience when working in the arts in order to start a career. Allow time for questions.
“Art and [other disciplines]” discussion (Museum expert—30 minutes)

It is important to let students realize that there are many other fields that are important to art and that studying strictly art reduces one’s chances of pursuing a career in this field. Emphasize that the more interdisciplinary skills one has, the easier it is to succeed. Introduce expert and have him/her give a short discussion of the profession. Group should visit the galleries with expert to gain first-hand knowledge of the context in which this person works.

When this program was created, students visited an exhibition with our Conservator of Paintings. The expert discussed how science and art are important elements of his profession and how these skills are used in his job. He also discussed his background in both chemistry and applied arts. Allow time for questions.

Library research (35 minutes)

Students should be given time to do research at the library using both the materials discussed earlier and books recommended by the librarian. Because of the nature of our library as a closed-stacks, non-circulating facility, library materials were placed in an area accessible to students and organized by subject. Depending on the particular career they were to research, students used printed materials or the internet, or sometimes both. Librarian and library staff should be available for assistance. Provide handout 5.2.

Wrap-up (Instructor/Librarian—10 minutes)

Students to discuss what they found out about their individual topics

Post-activity questions

• What surprising, new information did you find out about the career you chose? Share with the group.
Pitfalls/helpful hints

- While trying to avoid to seem exclusive or to have too many rules, make sure that students understand the policies in use at your library. In my case, because of the nature of our materials, we do not allow the use of ink, nor do we allow backpacks in the library. I provided pencils and writing materials for all participants and made sure instructor communicated to the group prior to the visit that they could not bring large backpacks or coats.

- Make sure to emphasize to expert that you are interested in making a connection between art and other disciplines.

- Check with the Museum’s Tour Coordinator whether or not large groups are expected in the galleries during the time you plan to use the spaces. Conflicting schedules might cause delays or conflicts in holding a long discussion in the galleries.
4.3 Session Three: Panel Discussion

Purpose of the session:
Allow students to participate in a discussion with a group of art professionals from the community. This panel discussion is intended to be an active interview by students. Students must be able to make the connection to the concept of primary research.

Program set-up:
Classroom must be set-up to facilitate group discussion. Use a long table and provide a chair for each guest speaker. The panel must be placed in front of the group. Have handout 5.3 available.

Activities:
Total class time: 45 minutes

- Introduction: (Instructor/Librarian--5 min.)
  Instructor/librarian should introduce the session. Explain that, although there will be discussion about careers, panelists will not only describe their professions. They are here to answer questions. Provide the name of each guest and their professional title.

- Guest introductions: (Panelists--10 minutes)
  Each guest must introduce him/herself and give a very brief description of what he/she does for a living.

- Brainstorming questions: (Instructor--5 minutes)
  Each student must think of three questions they would like to ask our panelists. Provide handout 5.3.

- Open discussion ( Group/Panelists--25 minutes)
  Open the floor to student questions and discussion.

- Thank panelists for their participation (Instructor/Librarian)
Post-activity questions

- What did you like best about the professions we discussed today? What aspects of their jobs did you like the least?

Pitfalls/ helpful hints:

- Make sure to call each panelist a day or two before the scheduled date to remind them of the time and location.
- Invite anywhere from two to four professionals to participate. Panelists should represent a variety of art-related professions from the community.
- Take special note of student’s questions and comments during this portion of the project. More than the post-test, listening to students’ open questions was the most valuable indicator of how their perception of art professions had developed over the course of the sessions.
4.4 Session Four: Writing a Short Art-Career Entry for Student Newsletter

Purpose of the session:
Students will write a short, informative newsletter entry about the art-career they chose and researched during previous sessions. Session can be led by the instructor only. Conduct post-test.

Program set-up:
Use regular classroom arrangement. Have handout 5.4 and post-test 7.4.4 available.

Activities:
Total class time: 50 minutes

- Introduction and questions: (Instructor--10 min.)
  Instructor will introduce the session and answer student’s questions about the assignment. Students will be asked to follow the general final project template (handout 5.4) so that every student’s entry will include the same type of information and in the same order. Entries should be informative and concise.

- Writing time: (Students--35 minutes)
  Students will work on their written entries.

- Post-survey (Instructor—5 minutes)
  Conduct post-test (7.4.4)

Pitfalls/ helpful hints:

- Let students know that it is very important that they complete the survey and that, if possible, they include their comments as it will be helpful to know where this unit can be altered to better serve students learning needs in the future.

- The grading rubric for this session is available in section 7.4.2 of this guide. The instructor will be responsible for evaluating student’s work. Librarian will evaluate the research portion of the unit (7.4.1).
Evaluating the post-test

You can compare student’s responses from the pre-test and first page of the post-test. Pre- and post-test results from question #1 can indicate if any students changed the way they felt about pursuing an art career. Questions #2, #3, #4 and #5 indicate how student’s perceptions and comfort level with finding career-related information has changed over the course of this project.

The second page in the post-test is strictly a customer service survey and is intended to provide instructor and librarian information regarding their performance throughout the lesson. In addition to learning what students found most and least useful, the last two questions of the customer service portion can help determine if any changes should be made the next time this lesson is implemented.
4.5 Project Conclusion

Printing the newsletter

- Students’ work will be compiled by librarian into a newsletter that can be distributed during the end of year student art show or any other relevant school event that students and their families attend.
TOOL KIT 2: LEARNERS’ MATERIALS

6.2 The Materials from the Library’s Collection.

Besides using reference materials related to careers in the arts, the library used a number of books to visually illustrate what professionals in a specific field are able to create. These depend on the career chosen and are too many to cite here. Below is a list of reference guides that were critical to finding information about specific professions (provide one copy of each item):

7.2 Partner’s Roles/Profiles

- Instructor:
  The ideal partner will plan every step of the project with the librarian. Partner should ideally be creative, engaging, and have thorough knowledge of the art field. Partner should be available to meet with librarian and to help solve any unexpected issues that may arise. Instructor will be responsible for collecting and evaluating student’s work.

- Expert/panelists
  Experts and panelists will share their expertise with students and answer questions during discussion sessions.

7.3 Promotion and advocacy tools

It may seem like a challenge for a librarian in a special library to contact potential partners for this project. The best resource is to ask colleagues from your institution, particularly those in an Education Department, to recommend art instructors that they have collaborated with in the past.

<th>Yes</th>
<th>No</th>
<th>Why not?</th>
<th>Discussed Interest</th>

As results are obtained they should be communicated to all interested parties. It is important for the library to keep track of the number of users as this may be considered for institutional statistics. It is also important for the institution to provide a customer service report.

Comparing the results of pre- and post-tests can indicate measurements for attitudes of the participants with respect to using libraries and searching for information, as well as knowledge of art-career options. The questions and comments sections from both pre- and post-test can be an important tool to support the evidence in reports to foundations or organizations. Comments can also be used to improve future workshops as changes can be made according to participants’ needs or concerns.
