Chairperson's Message - Tim Millar

Opening Remarks

I feel humbled and privileged to write my first note to you as Chair of ICMCI through the Meridian.

Firstly, I'd like to say a heartfelt thank you to Francesco D'Aprile for his service as the previous Chair, and for his ongoing support as immediate past Chair for the new EXCOM. Also we have to thank others who have completed their three or more terms on EXCOM – Calvert Markham, Charles Liu, Aneeta Madhok, Ilse Ennsfellner & Rob Wagenaar – those who were present received a small gift and certificates of appreciation at the Johannesburg Conference in September. In addition several who served one term, Richard Harris, Drumm McNaughton and Anton Florijan Barisic - our joint and further thanks to all for their voluntary time and effort.

Johannesburg Congress review

As hosts for the 2013 ICMCI Biennial congress, we are happy to say that we had a really successful biennial congress in South Africa between the 25th and 28th of September 2013.

Typically, preparation for a congress starts at least 14 months prior to the congress itself, requiring detailed research and a sound business case which is presented at the preceding meeting. The candidate hosts need to make a presentation prior to the meeting and are then shortlisted, prior to a decision being made on the preferred host country.

Nine reasons to volunteer for ICMCI

Helping our beautiful profession to grow and to develop further, also on a worldwide scale, is not everybody's piece of cake, especially when this has to be done from a volunteer position with hardly any remuneration or even reimbursement of costs. "You must be crazy to accept such a side job" many colleagues tell you. But there are good arguments to do this anyway. In my final speech ending 13 years of “duty” for the ICMCI as a Trustee and member of Excom (6 years) I have listed a few

CMC Canada Turns 50!

In 1963, after many years of committee work by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Quebec, and meetings between senior representatives of the largest accounting firms and major consulting practices, it was agreed that there was much to gain by working together to build and standardize the emerging profession of management consulting.

2013 marks the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Canadian Association of Management Consultants (CMC-Canada).

GIMC - Agreement with CMC-Canada

Global Institute of Management Consultants (GIMC), created by ICMCI Breakthrough Strategy, is a virtual Institute for management consultants located in countries where national Institutes of Management Consulting (IMCs) do not exist. Any management consultant who would like to be a member of the professional management consulting profession and attain the CMC designation should be able to do so, even though there is not an IMC in their country
