John Welton PhD, RN
Dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences
Florida Southern College

How much does nursing care cost? What is a fair and equitable charge for nursing care? How do nurses contribute to health care and ultimately, what is the economic value of nursing care in our country? These compelling questions are the focus of nearly two decades of research and practice by Dr. Welton. He learned an early lesson about the business of nursing by starting an air ambulance company in the 1980s. This entrepreneurial nursing experience carried over to his PhD studies at Chapel Hill where he studied the nursing component of the DRG under Dr. Edward Halloran. He is the recipient of the AONE Foundation Nurse Researcher Award of 2012.

Articles Written by Dr. John Welton
(Click on the title to download and read the full article.)

“Value Based Nursing Care”
JONA, Volume 40, Number 10, 399-401. 2010.

“Hospital Nursing Workforce Costs, Wages, Occupational Mix and Resource Utilization”

“Outcomes of and Resource Consumption by the High Cost Patients in the Intensive Care Unit”

“Nurse Staffing, Nursing Intensity, Staff Mix and Direct Nursing Care Costs across Massachusetts Hospitals”
JONA, Volume 36, Number 9, 416-425. 2006

“Hospital Billing and Reimbursement: Charging for Inpatient Nursing Care”
JONA, Volume 37, Number 4, 164-166. 2007.

“Nurse Staffing & Inpatient Mortality: Is the Question Outcomes or Nursing Value?”
Medical Care, Volume 49, Number 12, 1045-1046. 2011.