LOBBYING DEDUCTIONS BARRED UNDER EXPANDED DISALLOWANCE RULES
By: Ben Brener, C.P.A.

Prior to revision, Code Section 162(e) of the Revenue Reconciliation Act allowed taxpayers to deduct legislative lobbying costs, i.e. appearing before, or communicating with, lawmakers; at the federal, state, and local levels. Currently, the revised Code Section 162(e) not only disallows the deduction above the local level, but bars costs for lobbying high ranking federal officials in regard to both legislative and non-legislative matters.

How does all this affect IPTA Members? The Act prevents the deduction of some trade association dues used by the recipient for lobbying. The new rules apply not only to amounts paid to professional lobbyists, but a wide variety of expenditures we well. Depending upon the circumstances, barred deductions may include the cost of printing and mailing literature to members of the state legislature, a trip to Washington to meet with members of the Executive Branch, or research and analysis if the results are communicated to a lawmaker. Expenditures not disallowed under the new rules are as follows:

1. A de minimis rule is provided under which certain in-house expenditures do not exceed $2,000.00.
2. Expenditures incurred for the purpose of monitoring legislation, as opposed to attempting to influence its formulation/enactment.
3. Expenditures incurred to influence local legislation.
4. Expenditures incurred in influencing the actions or positions of certain lower level federal and state officials other than with respect to legislation.

Dues paid to trade associations and certain other tax-exempt organizations are non-deductible to the extent that the organization notifies the members that the dues are allocatable to non-deductible lobbying expenditures. The American Physical Therapy Association is examining this legislation and is expected to respond accordingly.
PHYSICAL THERAPY POSITIONS

Delnor-Community, a state-of-the-art acute care hospital located in the beautiful Fox River Valley, is currently seeking Physical Therapists. If you are looking for professional growth in a stimulating environment, we invite you to consider our hospital.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

The Section on Pediatrics of the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) voted at its 1994 Annual Meeting to support the APTA’s Statement on Health Care Reform. In addition, the Section voted to develop a statement which addresses the issues of health care reform specific to children with disabilities and their families. The following statement identifies the unique issues related to children and their families:

1. There needs to be an array of family guided, integrated services which permit family access to multiple providers and service environments including community-based settings.

2. Habilitation services must be provided which allow the attainment of motor skills. Children born with developmental or congenital disabilities must be provided the opportunity to achieve independent motor skills including ambulation. Habilitation usually requires more than 60 days of services.

3. Health care should include transition planning to allow those with disabilities the opportunity to move to their highest level of independent living and community life.

4. Cost containment measures should include a commitment to:
   a. Utilization of physical therapists to educate families and care-givers to help meet children’s health care goals.
   b. Functional outcomes of physical therapy promoting life long independence.
   c. Direct access to physical therapy service to children and their families.
   d. Preventative physical therapy services.
   e. Inclusion of a broad spectrum of health care providers in positions where health care delivery decisions are made.

5. The definition of assistive technology services and devices should be consistent with current legislation and should include equipment for positioning and mobility.

6. Health services not provided in PL 102-119, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, should be included in the health care plan available to children. School services are limited in scope and do not include all the necessary health services to meet a child’s total needs. (Government Affairs 2/14/94)
