Welcome to the International Society of Experimental Hematology (ISEH) Discussion Forums. As a condition of initial and continuing access to its Discussion Forums, ISEH requires those members wishing to participate to accept and adhere to the terms of the following Guidelines.

General "Netiquette"

- Always include your name and e-mail address if you are seeking off-forum responses

- Thank you or acknowledgment messages should be made off-forum.
- Members are expected to post information that is professional in nature.
- Members are expected to show respect and compassion to colleagues who post to in the forums.
- Put helpful keyword(s) in the subject line of your message, so others can decide quickly if they want to read your message.
- In a response message, always include the relevant portion of the original message so that everyone will know what you are responding to.
- Discussion Forum postings should be kept as short as possible on the whole, so that when a member does need to make a longer posting it will not tax the archive space or those who receive the Discussion Forum digest messages.
- Please address any queries or concerns directly to info@iseh.org
