BRIDGING THE GAP

WELCOME!

The performing arts have long provided an effective platform for exploring greater societal issues. However, the arts sector itself grapples with the same challenges, including inequities, regional conflict, generational shifts, climate change, and scarcity of funding and training resources. These are just a few of the issues currently at hand. As we recover from years of significant upheaval, how can our sector overcome the gaps that currently exist? By reconciling these gaps in the performing arts, how can we affect positive change on greater society?

ANEESHWAR KUNCHALA

2024 Celebrating Our Planet
Award Recipient

Nominating Statement: "Despite his young age, Aneeshwar is a determined advocate on his mission to combat environmental degradation. Through his journey, he continues to inspire young (and old) minds to appreciate nature and contribute to its preservation through the arts."

Aneeshwar Kunchala is an 8-year-old conservationist who uses his art to inspire and spread his important message about conservation to young people and adults around the world. He started this remarkable journey after seeing a picture of a dead whale on the beach with its stomach filled with plastic. This incident made him do something for the natural world, because the water sources are littered, the soil and air is polluted, and it's impacting all the creatures. The animals are losing their home and some of the species are close to extinction due to deforestation and poaching.

Aneeshwar is determined to do his part for the natural world by raising awareness with his poems, paintings, and documentaries. At 7 years old, he had an incredible opportunity to present a documentary for the United Nations produced by Sky Kids, "COP27—6 Ways to Save Our Planet," where children from six continents talked about the solutions to save the world.

Aneeshwar has become the Youngest Documentary Presenter (male), recognized by Guinness World Records. Aneeshwar also presented the Save Our Wildlife documentary to demonstrate how climate change is impacting wildlife. He is fortunate to have amazing opportunities to take his voice around the globe using world stages like Britain's Got Talent and America's Got Talent, as well as Nordic, Oslo and Amsterdam Business forums.

Aneeshwar loves spending time outdoors watching birds. He believes that every animal has its own special superpower. He is a conservation and wildlife campaigning phenomenon. He has already won multiple national and international awards for his work building awareness and inspiring millions of people to protect the planet and its living things. He is a Young Scientific Explorer, Climate Change Voice of the Year 2023, a Global Child Prodigy award recipient, a BBC Blue Peter gold badge holder, a British Youth Citizen award recipient, and was named a Young Climate Change Leader by the UK's Prime Minister, and a British Future role model. These achievements have helped him to reach out to more people and inspire young children to explore the natural world and try and help it by making small meaningful changes.

Aneeshwar's message – "Please save the animals and make sure the world looks beautiful."
