Read the ISTH Biennial Report

The ISTH released its Biennial Report in May, detailing all aspects of the ISTH's

The Early Career Task Force (ECTF) of the ISTH is committed to exposing early career members to diverse opportunities within ISTH which are avenues for both professional and career development and collaborations. One of these opportunities is creating or editing guidance and guideline documents, an effort led by the Guidance and Guidelines committee (G&G) of the ISTH.

In this two-part series, the ISTH first published an early career researcher's experience writing an SSC recommendation. In this second article the ISTH spoke with Jim Douketis, M.D., G&G committee member and co-author with Jeff Weitz, M.D., of a call to action paper in JTH: 'Guidance, guidelines, and communications. J Thromb Haemost 2014; 12: 1744–1745.'

New Regional Training Center Program Offers Opportunity to Build Lasting Partnerships

The ISTH has launched the new ISTH Regional Training Center (RTC) program, which focuses on building knowledge capacity in under-resourced regions of the world, which the ISTH designates as Reach-the-World (countries classified by the World Bank as low-income, lower-middle-income, or upper-middle-income). The RTC program supports long-term partnerships and collaborations as well as knowledge exchange between emerging and mentoring centers.

The program is centered around fellowships, which are combined with additional ISTH Reach-the-World (RtW) programs so that the Society's outreach will support and strengthen the professional capacity more broadly in the fellows' home centers. Applications are welcome from past RtW fellows and home institutions from developing countries.

World Thrombosis Day Campaign Gains Momentum, Honored by PRSA and ASAE

The World Thrombosis Day (WTD) campaign is excited to announce that it has reached more than 425 partners from 70 countries around the world. As the campaign community continues to grow, you are encouraged to join the global movement to stop blood clots and save lives.

Recently, WTD has added a few more honors for the 2015 campaign. In June, the Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) presented WTD with their Silver Anvil Award, which is among the most prestigious public relations honors in the U.S. Additionally, WTD received two distinguished awards from the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE). The campaign was honored with a 'Power of A' Gold Level Award, which recognizes associations that make exemplary commitments to creating a stronger U.S. and world. ASAE also awarded the campaign with a Gold Circle Merit Award, which signifies excellence, innovation, and achievement in association/nonprofit marketing, membership and communications.

Become a part of this movement and sign up to be a World Thrombosis Day partner! It is simple and free. To get started, click here and complete the online form. WTD resources have been updated and are now available online. If you have questions, please contact the campaign team at wtd@isth.org.
