EDITOR' S NOTE | 編輯按

A main goal this editorial team has taken up since the beginning of this year is to expand our network to cover more countries and regions in the Asia Pacific. Therefore, I am very delighted to announce that the colleagues at the Asia Centre for Social Entrepreneurship & Philanthropy (ACSEP), National University of Singapore have agreed to be our new local contacts in the country. Led by A/Prof. Lam Swee Sum, ACSEP aims to develop leaders in social enterprises, corporates, non-profits, and philanthropic organisations in Singapore and Asia through undergraduate and graduate courses, executive education and practical learning experiences.

In fact, many researchers in Singapore have attended ISTR conference before and are active members of the Society. It is simply natural for our network to extend our regular communicative work to the academic circles in Singapore.

In the past week, colleagues and friends here in Oceania have engaged in various activities to send their condolence and compassion over to New Zealand. We also want to do our part even in a smallest way: Qianjin has found and included a summary of a recent report on migrants and volunteers in New Zealand in this issue.

Peace,

Fengshi

Volunteering and Civic Action: Boundaries Blurring, Boundaries Redrawn | 誌願和公民行動：邊界模糊和邊界重繪

Adalbert Evers, Johan von Essen

Abstract: The aim of this introduction to the special issue is to call into question the presumed conceptual divide between volunteering and civic action and suggest an analytical tool and four perspectives that bring to light the varying meanings of popular engagement. Volunteering and civic action are laden with different moral meanings, are associated with different theoretical approaches and, just as important, have been assigned different roles in society. This conceptual divide is reflected in the academic debate. Only rarely, however, has the academic debate explored and discussed how the meaning of volunteering and civic action has changed historically. Therefore, we argue for a contextual and relational interpretation of the different forms of popular engagement instead of the application of essentialist definitions of volunteering and civic action. In order to examine the variety of popular engagement without being caught up in pre-made or taken-for-granted conceptualisations of volunteering and civic action as two separate forms of popular engagement, we propose approaching variations of popular engagement with respect to two criteria: first, to what degree popular engagement is enacted in institutionalised spheres of politics or in social public spheres and, second, to what degree actions of popular engagement are controversial or operating in line with what is widely agreed upon and dominant in public opinion. Moreover, we argue that history, discourses, politics and a relational approach are four crucial perspectives in order to reveal the varying meanings of popular engagement.

摘要：本期特刊引言的目的是引發大家去質疑假定的誌願和公民行動之間概念差異，並提出一個分析工具和四個視角以揭示大眾參與的不同含義。誌願和公民行動承載了不同的道德意義，也與不同的理論方法相關聯，同樣重要的是，在社會中被賦予了不同的角色。這種概念上的分歧反映在學術爭論中。然而，很少有學術爭論探討和討論誌願和公民行動的意義在歷史上是如何變化的。因此，我們主張對不同形式的大眾參與進行語境和關系解釋，而不是直接應用誌願和公民行為的本質定義。為了檢驗不同形式的大眾參與，而非將預定或理所當然的誌願和公民行動的概念作為兩種獨立的大眾參與形式，我們提出從兩個方面來了解不同形式的民眾參與：首先，在制度化的政治領域或社會公共領域中，在多大程度上實現大眾參與；其次，大眾參與的行為在多大程度上與那些在公共輿論中被廣泛認同或占主導的觀點相悖或一致。此外，我們認為歷史，話語，政治和關系方法是四個關鍵的視角以揭示大眾參與的不同含義。

Internet Use and Volunteering: Relationships and Differences Across Age and Applications | 互聯網的使用和誌願行為：相關性和跨年齡和應用的差異

Maximilian Filsinger, Markus Freitag

Abstract: The internet plays an important part in our daily lives. In this paper, we ask whether internet use is negatively related to civic life when focusing specifically on formal volunteering. Furthermore, we account for group-specific and activity-specific internet effects. Using a representative population sample of Switzerland, we show that internet use decreases the probability of undertaking voluntary work. This result is qualified in two respects: First, we find that the negative relationship between internet use and volunteering is more powerful among young people than older adults who are more likely to volunteer when they use the internet. Second, the use of social networking sites seems to mitigate the negative influence of internet use on volunteering.

摘要：互聯網在我們的日常生活中起著重要作用。在本文中，我們想了解互聯網的使用，特別是當關註正式誌願行為時，是否與公民生活負相關。此外，我們還考慮了特定群組和特定活動的互聯網效果。通過使用瑞士的代表性人口樣本，我們證明了互聯網的使用降低了從事誌願工作的可能性。這個結果在兩個方面是成立的：首先，我們發現互聯網使用和誌願服務之間的負向關系在年輕人中比在老年人中更顯著，後者在使用互聯網時更有可能做誌願服務。其次，社交網站的使用似乎減輕了互聯網使用對誌願服務的負向影響。

Measuring Growth of the Nonprofit Sector: The Choice of Indicator Matters | 測量非營利部門的增長：對指標的選擇

Astrid Pennerstorfer, Alasdair C. Rutherford

Abstract: Interestingly, although many authors consent that nonprofit organizations and the nonprofit sector have grown in many countries, there is little discussion of how to best measure this growth. Looking at the broad universe of nonprofit organizations, there is no single measure that is relevant for the whole sector and captures changes adequately. This article gives an overview of commonly-used growth measures in the existing nonprofit literature and discusses the informative value of the various measures. Using Austrian and Scottish time-series data, we present an empirical example of how the growth story of the nonprofit sector can change depending on the measures used. The correlations between measures such as the number of organizations, income/expenditures, and assets are particularly small. We recommend that researchers measuring the growth of the nonprofit sector should be clear about the properties of their selected measure, and where possible should present alternative measures in their analysis.

摘要：有趣的是，雖然很多作者認同非營利組織和非營利部門在許多國家都有所增長，但很少有人討論如何能最好地測量這種增長。縱觀廣泛的非營利組織，沒有任何單一的測量標準與整個行業相關並且能充分地捕捉變化。本文概述了已有非營利相關文獻中常用的增長測量，並討論了各種測量的信息價值。通過使用奧地利和蘇格蘭的時間序列數據，我們提供了一個實證示例，說明非營利部門的增長情況如何根據所使用的測量指標而改變。組織數量，收入/支出和資產等測量指標之間的相關性特別小。我們建議，測量非營利部門增長的研究人員應明確其所選測量指標的性質，並在可能的情況下在其分析中提出替代測量指標。

Migrants and Volunteering in New Zealand: A Research Study for The Voluntary Sector of New Zealand 2018 | 新西蘭移民和誌願行為：2018 年新西蘭誌願部門研究

By Eric Chuah

This study investigates migrant volunteering in New Zealand (NZ) focusing on how migrants find information on volunteering, their motivations to volunteer, experiences, benefits and barriers to volunteering. This study analysed online quantitative surveys from 91 respondents.

Migrants make up 25% of the NZ population. A migrant is defined as someone who was born overseas but is living in NZ. Migrants are the fastest growing demographic group in NZ. Different ethnic groups have different ways of finding out about volunteering. For example, this study found 67% of European migrants found out about volunteering from friends or family while 43% of Filipino migrants sourced their information from volunteering websites. Only a small proportion of new migrants engaged directly with charities to find their volunteering opportunities. 78% of migrant volunteers were motivated by intrinsic purpose such as contributing to society and 54% by social purposes such as making new friends. 49% stated gaining local work experience and learning about NZ culture as their motivation to volunteer. More than half the respondents had volunteering experience in their home country. One third of migrants volunteered within their first 12 months in NZ and over two thirds would recommend volunteering to others.

The major benefits seen by migrant volunteers includes achieving a sense of contribution, learning new skills and gaining a sense of belonging. Many of the motivations for volunteering align closely with the felt benefits of volunteering. For example, the main motivation respondents listed was contributing to society or for a good cause which was also the main benefit sought by volunteers. Barriers for migrant volunteers include lack of time, not knowing where to source reliable information and inconvenient location of volunteering opportunities.

Becoming One: Religion, Development, and Environmentalism in a Japanese NPO in Myanmar | 歸一：一個在緬日本非營利組織的宗教、發展和環境保護主義

By Chika Watanabe

At OISCA training centers, Japanese and local staff teach sustainable agricultural skills and organic farming methods to rural youth. Much of the teaching involves laboring in the fields, harvesting produce, and caring for livestock: what they can't use themselves is sold at nearby markets. Watanabe's detailed and multi-sited ethnography shows how Japanese and Burmese actors mobilize around the idea of "becoming one" with Mother Earth and their human counterparts within a shared communal lifestyle. By exploring the tension between intentions and political effects—spanning environmentalism, cultural-nationalist ideologies of "Japaneseness," and aspirations to make the world a better place—Watanabe highlights fascinating questions and both positive and negative outcomes.

Becoming One weaves together vivid descriptions of the intensive, intimate, and "muddy labor" of "making persons" (hitozukuri) with the wider historical resonances of these efforts, decentering common understandings of development, NGOs, and their moral and political promises. This engaging and thought-provoking book combines insights from anthropology, development studies, and religious studies to add to our understanding of modern Japan.

International Organizations and Global Civil Society： Histories of the Union of International Associations | 國際組織和全球公民社會：國際協會聯盟的歷史

By Daniel Laqua, Wouter Van Acker, Christophe Verbruggen

The Union of International Associations (UIA) was founded in 1910, aiming to coordinate the relations and interests of international organizations across the world. Its long history makes it a prism through which to study the field of international organizations and its dynamics. Bringing together experts from fields including history, political science and international relations, architecture, historical sociology, digital humanities and information studies, International Organizations and Global Civil Society is the first scholarly book to cover both the UIA's early years and its more recent past. Key issues explored include the UIA's importance for the field of scientific internationalism, the relations between the UIA and other international organizations, and the changing position of the UIA when facing geopolitical challenges such as totalitarianism, the World Wars and the Cold War. CALL FOR PAPERS | 論文徵集

2019 APSA Asia Pacific Workshop, Penang

Dynamics of Political Institutions in Asia | 亞洲政治制度的動態

Deadline for Application: 29 March 2019 | 申请截止：2019 年 3 月 29 日

Workshop Dates：June 23-29, 2019 | 研討會日期：2019 年 6 月 23-29 日

Location: Universiti Sains Malaysia, Penang, Malaysia

Theme

This workshop will explore dynamics of domestic and regional political institutions across Asia. We adopt a broad interpretation of formal political institutions, including (but not limited to) government agencies, legislative and judicial bodies, political parties and organizations, electoral rules and systems, constitutions, international treaties and related agreements, regional associations, and supranational or international organizations. Participants will explore core questions and theories of political institutions as well as implications of these theories for political representation, interest intermediation, governance, political liberalization, and regional integration. Employing diverse theoretical frameworks and case studies, the workshop will examine four themes:

- Institutions and Political Processes
- Liberalization, Democratization, and Authoritarian Resilience
- Institutional Innovation, Public Goods, and Governance
- Institutional Approaches to Cooperation and Conflict

How to apply
Completed applications, including all necessary supporting documents (in PDF or Word format), must be submitted by Friday, March 29. Selected fellows will be contacted in early April 2019. Applications must be in English and include:

- The completed online Application Form.
- A detailed, recent curriculum vitae/resume.
- A research statement (2,000 words maximum) describing the work-in-progress you propose to develop and present at the Asia Workshop. This statement should outline the main theme of the paper or book manuscript, the methods used, the data/fieldwork on which it is based, and how it relates to the workshop theme. The research statement should not be based on any part of a co-authored project. Submissions should not be an excerpt from an already completed work or one that has already been accepted for publication. Submissions may be derived from an ongoing dissertation project if also suitable for a journal article.
- Two letters of reference on official letterhead and scanned as electronic files. If you are a graduate student, one letter should be from your supervisor. If you are a researcher or faculty member, letters can come from a former dissertation supervisor, a colleague at your home institution, a university official, or an employer. Your letter-writers should preferably send these letters separately to asiaworkshops@apsanet.org.

For more information, contact asiaworkshops@apsanet.org. Please do not contact the workshop leaders directly.

Call for Application: Global Education Initiative Grants

Deadline for Application: 29 March 2019 | 申请截止日期：2019 年 3 月 29 日

About the Grants
The International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ICNL) is pleased to announce a Global Education Initiative to support the study of civil society law at universities and schools of law in eligible developing countries worldwide. The 2019 Global Education Initiative will provide grants to support the integration of civil society law courses into the curricula of universities and educational institutions. Grant amounts are not fixed, but successful grant applications have in past years ranged from $10,000 – $20,000.

The types of activities that ICNL can support include (but are not limited to):

- The design of a course, module or full curriculum relating to civil society law, including the plan for integration of this into the university structure;
- The preparation of a course syllabus or syllabi;
- The preparation of course materials (incl. lesson plans, lectures, discussion questions, activities, etc.);
- The development of digital learning platforms and/or e-learning resources;
- Training for academics/professors on civil society law.

This list is merely illustrative and ICNL strongly encourages applicants with innovative ideas and approaches not described above to apply.

Application Instructions
To apply for a grant, applicants must submit the following items in English or Spanish:

- Application coversheet (see here);
- Proposal (no more than five pages);
- Resumes/CVs of leading project staff;
- Background information about the applicant organization and/or educational institution (e.g. website links or informational materials);
- Letter of support from the educational institution or institutions where the initiative will take place.

Deadline
Applications will be considered on a rolling basis until all grant funds are awarded. Applicants should submit their applications no later than March 29, 2019. Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted. To read more information, click here.

ABOUT US | 關於我們

East Asia Third-Sector Researchers Network is an initiative first launched by the ISTR (International Society for Third-Sector Research) and the Centre for Social Innovation Studies in the Chinese University of Hong Kong in 2016 to help scholars and students in East Asia and beyond to exchange information about publications, conferences and job vacancies in third-sector studies through this Newsletter. Starting from November 2018, the Asia Institute of the University of Melbourne becomes the host of the Newsletter, and the scope of the Newsletter and the network will expand to cover the entire Asia Pacific. You are welcome to follow us on Facebook (ISTR-East Asia) and Weibo (@东亚第三部门研究网络).

東亞第三部門研究人員網絡是由 ISTR（國際第三部門研究學會）和香港中文大學社會創新研究中心於 2016 年發起成立。該網絡旨在通過發布每月通訊為東亞及其他地區的學者和學生提供第三部門研究領域出版物，學術會議，職位空缺等相關信息交流。從 2018 年 11 月起，墨爾本大學亞洲研究院成為該通訊的主辦單位，該通訊和研究網絡的範圍也將擴大到整個亞太地區。歡迎您在 Facebook (ISTR-East Asia)和微博（@东亚第三部门研究网络）上關註我們。
