

ISTR's Online Programs

ISTR's online programs are designed by our members for our members to share research & experiences and to engage in scholarly conversation with our peers.

Four general types of online programs are currently offered. We welcome your contributions (in multiple languages) to any of the following:

1) Book Club

Authors/co-authors are encouraged to deliver a brief talk and engage in a discussion about your recently published books.

2) Professional Development Workshops

Do you have a skill or expertise that you could share with others? Our workshops are very popular and highly valued. Workshops can cover a range of topics, including research methods, professional writing, data visualization, big/open data sources, mentoring approaches, internet identity, and more!

3) Meetings & Roundtable Discussions

ISTR Affinity Group meetings and Regional Network meetings are currently offered. Additional meetings and roundtable conversations that cover timely issues are also welcome.

4) Webinars

Webinars may be one of the following:

- New research that is timely and of general interest to a broad range of our international members.
- A research work-in-progress about which you wish to solicit feedback.
- "Curated conversations" to discuss a specific topic more informally that includes questions from the audience.
- Panel discussions that present a variety of international perspectives on the third sector response to the Covid-19 pandemic. We especially encourage panels organized around a common third sector sub-field, such as volunteering, philanthropy, law and regulation, gender, social enterprise, advocacy, etc. Regional discussions are also invited. Panels should be limited to 3 or 4 speakers.

ISTR welcomes ideas from all of our members, including students and emerging scholars.

To submit your idea, send an email to Margery Daniels at mdaniels@istr.org.

Please include your contact details, a description of what you would like to present, information on co-presenters or speakers, and an indication of your preference for the day/month you would like to present.

Submissions will be reviewed by ISTR staff with support from the ISTR Conference Academic Committee.
