2012 Community Preparedness Conference: 3Ps – Pathogens, Pharmaceuticals, and Preparedness

Target Audience
Physicians, nurses, pharmacists, laboratorians, emergency medical response professionals and any other interested parties.

Overview
This course will provide an overview of the Louisiana Poison Center resources for select toxic emergencies and disaster preparedness including the substance abuse agents of alcohol, designer drugs, and pharmaceuticals found in the home. Overviews will also include an infectious disease briefing and recent guidance on Crisis Standards of Care from the Institute of Medicine.

Objectives
1. Describe the pharmacologic characteristics of alcohol ingestion.
2. List three ways the Louisiana Poison Center has assisted in emergency preparedness planning and response.
3. Describe the potential dangers of designer drug use.
4. Provide the names of three previous threat pathogens.
5. Describe Pharmaceuticals found in the home that may be abused.
6. List three annex topics found in the latest IOM guidance for Crisis Standards of Care.

ANCC Accreditation Feedback Line 1-866-262-9730

The Accreditation Program of the American Nurses Credentialing Center is interested in the opinions and perspectives of the participants in accredited continuing nursing education activities, particularly those perspectives related to the presence of perceived bias* in the continuing education. For this reason, we are now providing a toll free telephone number.

Participants may access this number at any time to:

- tell us of any noted bias or conflict of interest in the education
- tell us of any concerns, compliments, or opinions
- tell us of a great experience
- tell us of an unpleasant experience
- tell us your thoughts on the process

Just call and tell us!

*Bias is defined as: preferential influence that causes a distortion of opinion or of facts. Commercial bias may occur when an educational activity promotes one or more product(s) (drugs, devices, services, software, hardware etc.) This definition is not all inclusive and participants may use their own interpretation in deciding if a presentation is biased.

NOTE: Statements of commercial support and/or conflict of interest disclosures do not represent bias. Such statements inform the learner that the provider has implemented a mechanism to identify and resolve all conflicts of interest prior to delivery of the educational
