Adam Faderewski

---

Social Media Coordinator, State Bar of Texas, and Associate Editor Texas Bar Journal

Facebook Pages Manager

---

The “safest” way to manage multiple pages on Facebook. It limits usage to pages you handle professionally. Schedule posts without accidentally posting to the wrong page. Free (or as free as possible relating to your opinion of Facebook).

Post Planner

---

Great value for what it provides. Plans range from $3 a month to $19 a month with the ability to track up to 25 social accounts. The app actively tracks top performing posts on platforms and shares them with you in order to “inspire” your content creation. It also rates how well your post may perform.

Meet Edgar

This is really meant as an app for those who do not have a dedicated social media person. You can bulk upload content for posting and set a schedule for when these posts would ideally go up. The app then will write automatic posts for you and repost past content that performed well. I cannot guarantee the quality of the octopus' writing.

edgar

MavSocial

---

Another social media scheduling app with similar features to Meet Edgar and the others. Calendar layout tracks future posts across all social media platforms—rather than the vertical panels used by Hootsuite. Similar to other apps, you can quickly repost evergreen content or high-performing content, and you can also boost Facebook posts from the app.

Evernote

---

Quickly take notes on your phone and edit them. They are easily transferable to your computer as they are all saved in one place. Voice notes can also be stored through the app. You can sort notes into notebooks, tag them, edit, export to other platforms, and are searchable.

Dropbox

---

A quick and easy storage space for photos and other documents that you may need or want at any time. Free accounts get up to 2 GB of storage space.

Google Drive

---

One of my favorite apps and the one I prefer for storing any files that I'll need when traveling. Easily accessible online, has a large amount of available storage for free (15 GB to Dropbox's 2), and is extremely easy to use.

Canva

---

Great app for making graphics and by creating templates on your computer, you can easily edit them for usage while on the run. The free version only has a limited graphic library but any image can be uploaded.

Over

---

Originally just an app to put text on photos. The app now offers many features similar to Instagram such as editing, layering, and masking. It has really evolved into more of a graphic app similar to Canva over time. Bonus— it's all free.

Typorama

Quickly add text to graphics, select a styling for the text, and with a few clicks of the thumb get a snappy text graphic for use in photos or alone.

Asana

---

Keep multiple calendars for your social media team. You can use it to keep track of scheduled posts on the different platforms you use and for general schedule evaluation.

Trello

---

Very similar to Asana. Trello allows team members to share what they're doing, to-do lists, etc. It can also incorporate apps used by your team, including Google Drive, Dropbox, and Evernote.

Mention

Allows for tracking of mentions across social media platforms (duh). Free accounts are pretty basic and will only track 250 mentions a month for a single social media account. Plans go up to $83 a month, or “On Demand” ... whatever that means.

SocialFlow

---

A deeply analytical app for social media. Its algorithms “predict” when the best time to post is, recommends posts for “reposting,” scores content, and searches trends to match previous posts with what is trending. Plans range from $10 - $1,000 a month.

SproutSocial

---

Allows you to track 5-10 social profiles across multiple platforms—including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and LinkedIn. It can also be used to schedule posts for publishing, as a calendar for social content, and is great for providing analytics on how you're performing on social media. Plans range from $99 to $249 per user each month.

Judicial Arbitrator Group is elated to welcome retired Chief Judge Patrick Murphy to the distinguished arbitrators at JAG

Pat Murphy was appointed to the 17th Judicial District Court bench in 2009 and served as Chief Judge from 2013 until his retirement from the bench in 2019. Prior to his appointment to the bench, Pat was in private practice for 22 years, representing plaintiffs and defendants in both state and federal court.

From 1981 to 1986, Judge Murphy served as an Assistant United States Attorney, including a stint as Chief of the Criminal Division. Upon graduating from University of Colorado Law school, Pat was a prosecutor for Weld and Boulder County.

Judge Murphy was awarded the Justice Department Distinguished Service Award in 1985, the Heart of Broomfield Award for Community Service in 2014, and received a special award from the State of Colorado Judicial Branch for Distinguished Service in May 2019.
