The 35th National Child Welfare, Juvenile, and Family Law Conference:

Families Matter — Advocacy for All Parties in the Child’s Best Interests

This conference is the NACC’s premier training and is the product of 35 years of experience. It is designed primarily for attorneys who practice child welfare, juvenile, and family law. NACC members and attendees dedicate most of their practice to the representation of children and youth, parents, or the state in juvenile dependency, delinquency, or family law cases. Due to the multi-disciplinary nature of this work, professionals from the fields of medicine, mental health, social work, probation, law enforcement, and education also belong to the NACC, attend our conferences, and serve as faculty. The conference is comprised of Plenary and Breakout Sessions.

New Breakout Sessions!

This year Breakout Sessions will feature revised tracks:

TRACK 1: BEGINNER — Sessions are aimed at practitioners with 0–5 years of experience in child welfare law;

TRACK 2: INTERMEDIATE — Targeted to those with 5–15 years of experience in child welfare law;

TRACK 3: ADVANCED — For those with 15 years and beyond;

TRACK 4: SKILLS — This track features sessions designed to help improve advocacy skills;

TRACK 5: GENERAL INTEREST — This track features a variety of topics of interest to NACC members and conference attendees.

The NACC

The adversarial system works best when all interested parties are competently represented. The NACC works to promote a justice system wherein every child has his or her voice heard with the assistance of well-trained, well-resourced independent lawyers resulting in the child’s rights being protected and needs being met.

Identifying, Documenting & Serving Drug Endangered Children: A Collaborative Response Between Criminal Justice & Child Welfare

Red Laquer Room – 4th Floor
Ignored, abused, and abandoned — these are some of the chronic conditions experienced by children raised in environments where there is drug use, manufacturing, cultivation, and distribution. Drug endangered children are part of a very large and growing population of children whose lives have been seriously and negatively impacted by dangerous drugs. Attendees will gain an understanding of opportunities to identify children living in dangerous drug environments and encourage intervention at the earliest possible point when endangerment is suspected to reduce physical and psychological harm to children; how exchanging information, altering activities, and sharing resources enhances the capacity of each agency for the mutual benefit of all to achieve a common outcome; and provide better service to children and families. Attendees will also learn more about what evidence can be collected and documented to show the risk of neglect, physical or emotional abuse, or exposure to criminal activity to help demonstrate the life of the child so appropriate services can be provided. And lastly, the course will review a multi-disciplinary response that considers the unique and often limited resources within a community and how these resources can be coordinated and applied in a manner that allows the child to receive better care.

• Lori Moriarty, National Alliance for Drug Endangered Children
• Stacee Read, Office of Colorado’s Child Protection Ombudsman
• Eric Nation, Jasper County Sheriff’s Office, Newton Iowa

Professor of Law and Director of the University of the District of Columbia David A. Clarke School of Law HIV/AIDS legal clinic. Can we achieve our goals of limiting entries to foster care and speeding exits from it by looking for the strengths of the people involved in our cases rather than their weaknesses? The session will focus on the power of storytelling in law and using your lawyering skills to help families build.

Faith Mullen is an Assistant Clinical Professor supervising law students in the General Practice Clinic at the Columbus School of Law at The Catholic University of America. She has previously worked as a Senior Policy Advisor at the Public Policy Institute with AARP and as an attorney with Legal Counsel for the Elderly and the Legal Aid Society of the District of Columbia. While at the Legal Aid Society, she represented parents in child welfare cases. She writes about access-to-justice issues and the use of story to improve lawyer performance. She has been a member of the District of Columbia Bar since 1984.

Child Welfare Law Certification — QIC ChildRep Fee Waiver

Child Welfare Law Certification
NACC Child Welfare Law Certification is available to attorneys who serve in the role of Child’s Attorney (including Guardian ad Litem, Law Guardian, Attorney ad Litem), Parent’s Attorney, and Agency / Department / Government Attorney. The specialization area as approved by the ABA is defined as “the practice of law representing children, parents or the government in all child protection proceedings including emergency, temporary custody, adjudication, disposition, foster care, permanency planning, termination, guardianship, and adoption. Child Welfare Law does not include representation in private child custody and adoption disputes where the state is not a party”.

If you represent children, parents, or the state child welfare agency you may be eligible to become certified in child welfare law. The NACC certification program is accredited by the ABA and has been endorsed by the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges, the Conference of Chief Justices, and the Conference of State Court Administrators.

Certification Eligibility Requirements
Child Welfare Law is an increasingly complex and sophisticated area of practice requiring special training and expertise. To become a Child Welfare Law Specialists attorneys must demonstrate Good Standing; show Substantial Involvement in child welfare law; supply evidence of sufficient Educational Experience; provide peer references; submit a Writing Sample; and pass the Child Welfare Law Certification Exam. The certification exam questions are drawn from the 2nd Edition of the NACC “Red Book” (Child Welfare Law and Practice, Representing Children, Parents and State Agencies in Abuse, Neglect and Dependency Cases, Duquette and Haralambie, Bradford Publishing 2010). Lawyers certified in child welfare must be knowledgeable in relevant state and federal laws; principles of child development, family dynamics and psychology; familiar with collateral systems impacting children and their parents; and recognize the professional responsibility and ethical issues that arise out of child welfare proceedings.

Certification Preparation
Your legal education, practice experience, and continuing legal education in child welfare, delinquency, family law, and related areas all help prepare you for the certification exam. Upon submitting a certification application, you will also receive a copy of the Red Book.
