Brandon Harper, Texas Tech University, Receives Bob Ashby Mentor of the Year Award from National Association of Educational Procurement

Brandon Harper, Assistant Managing Director at Texas Tech University, has received the Bob Ashby Mentor of the Year Award from the National Association of Educational Procurement (NAEP). The Award recognizes outstanding service as a mentor, who cares about the success of the fellow members, their organization and ultimately the profession. The award was presented at a ceremony held during the association's 2019 Annual Meeting in Kanas City, Missouri.

Brandon was nominated by Paige Mahaffey, Section Supervisor at Texas Tech University. In her nomination, Paige states that Brandon "is an active member of NAEP and uses the resources and knowledge gained from this organization to better himself and our department." Brandon's mentoring helps to foster the growth and development in the field of educational procurement for his team.

NAEP is pleased to honor Brandon Harper with the 2019 Bob Ashby Mentor of the Year Award.

About the National Association of Educational Procurement (NAEP)

Founded in 1921, NAEP's mission is to facilitate the development, exchange and practice of effective and ethical procurement principles and techniques within higher education and associated communities, through continuing education, networking, public information and advocacy. NAEP strives to be recognized as the Association dedicated to the advancement of excellence in the purchasing profession serving higher education and associated communities.
