Funding Opportunity: Women’s Use of Quitlines

An exciting funding opportunity is available with the Division of Reproductive Health, CDC. The project focuses on evaluation of pregnant and postpartum women’s use of state quitlines. The grantee will be required to work with the tobacco control program and state quitline. Letters of intent are due on Jan. 18.

Please note - Only members of the following organizations are eligible to apply: Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC), Association of Schools of Public Health (ASPH) and Association for Prevention Teaching and Research (APTR).

More details about this opportunity:

Funding Opportunity for Potential Extramural Projects (PEP)
Evaluation of Pregnant and Postpartum Women’s Use of State Quitlines

The focus of this PEP is to assess knowledge of and barriers to referring patients to a state quitline among prenatal care providers, and the use of the quitline among prenatal and postpartum smokers in one state. Please consult the detailed project description for additional eligibility criteria. The approximate total project period is one year and funding is $100,000. One award will be given.

Letters of intent are due by January 18, and applications are due March 14.

PEP details and requirements for submission.

For more information on the project, please contact:
Patricia Dietz, DrPH, MPH
Division of Reproductive Health, CDC
(770) 488-5128
PDiетz@cdc.gov