Clean Peak Energy Standard Coming Soon – Clean peak or clean bust?

The Massachusetts Clean Peak Energy Standard, currently under development, will provide incentives to qualified clean peak resources that can supply electricity or reduce demand during seasonal peak demand periods by requiring retail electricity providers to meet a baseline minimum percentage of sales with clean peak resources.

What it will mean for your business is yet to be determined. DOER recently sought important industry input on a variety of implementation issues including resource qualification, seasonal peak demand periods, verification of output, and certificate value and mechanics and long term contracts. Learn how these design parameters could significantly impact your business? Hear the unique perspectives of our panel of industry experts and join in the conversation as we explore ideas on how Clean Peak Energy Standard is best implemented in Massachusetts.
