National Fenestration Rating Council Welcomes New Team Member Jeremy Browning

BALTIMORE, April 29, 2019 – The National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC), the organization that provides fair, accurate and credible energy performance ratings for windows, doors and skylights, is excited to announce the hiring of Jeremy Browning as a development manager. In the role, he will help fulfill NFRC’s mission and assist with increasing public awareness of energy efficiency and environmental responsibility.

NFRC’s CEO, Deb Callahan has spoken out about the significance of the team’s growth. “Being able to add fresh and dynamic team members is an exciting moment for NFRC. Jeremy is a wonderful addition to the team and I am excited to see how his contributions will help NFRC expand its mission and vision.”

With prior experience working for non-profits and organizations, Browning brings both the experience and personal drive to NFRC. “I am extremely excited to be on the NFRC team and working within the fenestration industry. I look forward to being a part of a group whose purpose is to collaborate and push for green and energy efficient buildings.”

To learn more about NFRC’s growing team and efforts the organization is taking to improve fenestration, please visit http://www.nfrc.org/

About National Fenestration Rating Council
NFRC is a nonprofit organization that administers a voluntary, uniform rating, labeling, and certification system for the energy performance of windows, doors, curtain walls, skylights, and other fenestration products. Its members include manufacturers, suppliers, utilities, consumer groups, representatives from the building and code industries, scientific and educational organizations, and government agencies.

###