Announcing Dr. Marcy Ainslie as the NONPF 2023 Fellow!

NONPF is excited to welcome the inaugural 2023 fellow, Marcy Ainslie, EdD, APRN, FNP, RN. Dr. Ainslie is a nurse practitioner (NP) and Assistant Professor at the University of New Hampshire in Durham, NH, and in clinical practice with the Mental Health Center of Greater Manchester in Manchester, NH.

Dr. Ainslie's area of research and publications are in competency-based assessments and telehealth implementation in curriculum and clinical practice. She is the recipient of the New Hampshire Nurse Practitioner Association 2022 Lifetime of Service Award and the 2023 American Association of Nurse Practitioners Advocate State Award for Excellence.

As NONPF’s Fellow, Dr. Ainslie will support advancing the Doctor of Nursing Practice and other priority initiatives. Once again, we would like to welcome Dr. Marcy Ainslie to NONPF!

NEW NONPF Member Benefit!

NONPF has partnered with Rosh Review to create the NONPF Inclusive Language Assessment!

The assessment supports NP faculty and their students in their efforts to raise awareness and take action regarding the use of inclusive language in NP programs. Also, it will provide methods to reframe traditionally biased language and reflect on how you talk to and about patients and their conditions.

NONPF Resources - Are You Up to Date?

Click the links below to learn more about the critical and high-quality educational resources and workshops NONPF continues to offer for NP faculty.

NONPF continues to maintain its dedication to all NPs and faculty members. In doing so, we recognize that as the healthcare delivery system has grown increasingly complex, the role of the NP has evolved.

Since 2000, NONPF has been a leader in working to seamlessly transition all entry-level NP education to the DNP degree by 2025. The NONPF DNP Resource Portal provides current and transitioning DNP programs with resources that offer benefits and guidance in integrating DNP curricula without a master’s exit point as preparation for the NP role.

Nurse Educator provides practical information and research in nursing education.

Nurse Educator is a scholarly, peer-reviewed journal that publishes research in nursing education. Still, the goal is to keep you updated with new ideas and educational innovations you can use in your courses. Articles in upcoming issues are on preparing APRN students to provide primary palliative care, evaluating the scientific writing skill of DNP students, an organizational readiness tool for DNP projects, Generation Z students in the online environment, a strategy for documenting DNP practice hours, promoting a culture of civility in nursing learning environments, telehealth simulations, using OSCE as a teaching tool in an advanced health assessment course, and more.

In addition, Nurse Educator has departments on QSEN, teaching strategies, faculty development, technology, and articles filled with practical information you can use with your students. And, in every issue, educators share Teaching Tips.
