

Angel Rosario is a Supervisory Property Administrator at the Defense Contract Management Agency (DCMA), leads a team of property administrators across the Northeast Continental United States. His background includes service in the United States Marine Corps as a Personnel Chief. Angel has also held significant roles within the National Property Management Association (NPMA), including serving as the NPMA Nutmeg Chapter President and currently holding positions as the Certification Governance Board Secretary and National Director of Marketing (Social Media).

Alisha Henderson is Defense Contract Management Agency's (DCMA) Plant Clearance Supervisor for the Northeast region. With more 13 years of specialized experience in Plant Clearance and Government-owned property disposal, she adeptly oversees surplus property disposition, particularly hazardous materials, and navigates intricate contract administration scenarios. Since 2015, she has been a member of the NPMA Nova chapter.

Darryl Friddle has a combine of over 31 years in Government property to include 8 years in Military Material supply (Acquisition to Disposition), 9 years as Property administration for two major contractors, 2 years in Supply for the Department of the Airforce (Civil Servant) 9 years 5 month as a Property Administrator for DCMA and 4 years 3 months with NASA and currently serving as the Industrial Property Officer at Kennedy Space Center Fl. He's currently an active NPMA member of the Johnson Space Center chapter.

Tom is the primary author of various FAR and DOD/DCMA property management subjects, has held numerous Government positions, and has a MA in Procurement and Acquisition Management, MS in Public Administration and a BS in Management. Member NPMA Chapter North Texas, Central Region and Council of Fellows Committee. Specializes in Federal Government Contract Property requirements & related DoD business system. Emphasis areas: Procedure development, contract compliance, regulatory awareness and self-assessments.

Ivonne Bachar, CPPM CF, Senior Director of the Property Management Office for Stanford University.

Throughout her career in Property Management, Ms. Bachar has held staff and management positions in research-intensive higher education, research & development, and commercial manufacturing environments. These organizations are recipients of Federal, State, and private funding through Contracts, Grants, and a variety of other types of agreements requiring broad understanding of compliance standards.

Her credentials include a master's degree in education, Certified Professional Property Manager (CPPM), and recognition as an NPMA Consulting Fellow (CF). She is an experienced instructor having delivered training and education at many levels to novices as well as seasoned professionals. Ms. Bachar is an NPMA Instructor of property management and certification courses and is a frequent workshop presenter throughout the U.S. She is keenly focused on mentoring and providing professional development guidance to individuals in property management and related fields. In addition to mentoring within the NPMA community, she is actively involved as a mentor for individuals in the Talent Development Program within the Business Affairs organization at Stanford University.

A long-time active member of the National Property Management Association, she has held numerous positions at Chapter, Regional, and National levels including National President. Ms. Bachar is currently serving as NPMA's Vice President of the Western Region. She is a recipient of the national Jack E. Griffiths Property Person of the Year Award as well as the Andrew C. Anderson Lifetime Achievement Award in recognition of her contributions to the NPMA, the Property Management profession, and the broad spectrum of those she mentors.

Joe is a Program Asset Manager and Parts Risk Manager at RTX, has a background as an Automated Logistical Specialist (92A) in the United States Armed Forces with tours of duty in both Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom and has a MS in Information Technology. Joe is a member of NPMA's North Texas Chapter and currently serving as the President and a National Delegate. He's a member of the Certification Governance Board (CGB), holds the NPMA certification, the Certified Professional Property Manager (CPPM), and published author in The Property Professional.