The American Society of Professionals in Patient Safety is the first and only individual membership program for the patient safety field.

The Society was established to advance patient safety as a distinct and vital health care discipline, and to build an engaged, focused community of individuals committed to accelerating the delivery of safe patient care.

Membership in ASPPS is open to anyone who works directly or indirectly to support and improve the safety of patients. Our members represent a variety of different occupations and professional backgrounds including patient safety officers, patient safety managers, health care executives, risk management personnel, primary care physicians, physicians, nurses, patient advocates, clinical/academic educators, researchers, and students.
