Oregon nurse practitioners can now perform vasectomies

Unclear what training will be required

Vasectomies are generally safe, but complications happen in an estimated 1 to 2 percent of cases. When they do, Dr. Andrew Neeb, a urologist with Urology Specialists of Oregon in Bend, said it’s important that the provider knows how to fix the problem, especially if it requires emergency surgery.

In a fight between nurses and doctors, the nurses are slowly winning

More states are allowing nurses to provide all the kinds of care they learned about in school.

“Skinny” Repeal would have Gargantuan Impact

“Skinny” repeal is all the rage in Washington these days, as Senators look to a bill that would undo one of “Obamacare’s” least popular provisions: the individual mandate, which requires all Americans to carry health insurance or face a stiff tax penalty.
We look forward to #Nurses being included as part of that discussion.

Sen. Lamar Alexander @SenAlexander
We will hear from state insurance commissioners, patients, governors, health care experts and insurance companies.
