RUNNING YOUR OWN SMALL SAWMILL

Interested in starting a small business, sourcing your own lumber, or developing a high-demand skill?

Join Rural Action, Hocking College, and the Appalachian Partnership for Economic Growth for a day-long workshop on running a profitable small sawmill. Presented by Harry Watt, a wood products specialist with North Carolina State University, and Craig Albright, a local sawmill professional with over 35 years of experience, this event will give you the skills and knowledge to turn your hobby into a business. The event is also geared towards those already in the woodworking industry, and will cover sourcing, cutting, and grading your own lumber.

Additional topics will include:

- Sawing Techniques
- Log Grading
- Lumber Drying
- Business Management
- Lumber Marketing
- Sawmill Equipment
- Sawmill Maintainence
- Cutting Demonstrations

April 13th, 9AM-4:30PM
The Grange, 16 State St, Amesville, OH

To register, contact Tristan Kinnison at (740) 677-4047 or at tristan@ruralaction.org or click here!
Registration is $55, including lunch.