Annual Meeting:

1994 Educational Program

This year marks the 25th Annual Meeting and Educational Program for the Ophthalmic Photographers' Society. We plan to offer a few more courses than the first meeting and a few new topics have been introduced since 1969. Let's all stay current by attending this year's program.

This year's educational program features a broad spectrum of courses that cover the basic needs of the learning photographer and a series of topics that will assist the student in obtaining information covered in the Certification for Retinal Angiographer (CRA).

The advanced topics have been assembled to demonstrate the newest in ICG angiography, ocular histology, financial considerations in ophthalmic photography, administrative issues, desktop publishing, computer graphics slidemaking, the latest developments in AIDS, and designing an ophthalmic photography department.

We have the distinct honor of having eight distinguished ophthalmologists as lecture faculty for the education program.

A new feature to the program will be an ICG conference with invited clinicians and photographers to discuss cases. There will be a photography field trip to Alcatraz. Students are encouraged to photograph the remote, abandoned prison and review the work the following day.

I want to thank all the lecturers and workshop coordinators and faculty for participating. The high caliber of courses offered could not be possible without your support. I look forward to seeing everyone in beautiful San Francisco.

1994 Scientific Exhibit Call for Photos

Document. — That's what most of us do. We take other people's pictures of people for reasons other than our own. Seldom do we have the time to create images; we take pictures. But why? The obvious answer is a paycheck, we need to eat. But can this day-to-day grind of ophthalmic photography fill our needs and interests as they relate to aesthetics, creativity, and recognition? For some, the answer is yes, for others something is missing. The Scientific Exhibit Committee would like to offer you a reason — a vehicle, a challenge of sorts — to allow your creativity and photographic expertise to fly!

The 1994 OPS Photographic Exhibit, which will be on display at the Annual Meeting of the American Academy of Ophthalmology in San Francisco this October, will allow its members to share their outstanding images, produced throughout the year, with the ophthalmic community. Entry forms will be mailed in June, with the deadline for submission, Friday, August 26, 1994. If you have any questions please contact Brad Clifton @ (206) 543-4443 or Ditte Hess @ (305) 326-6103.

Historical Committee On-Going Projects
I'd like to give a special thanks to the OPS members who responded to my recent request for materials for the OPS archives. Thank you Terry Tomer, Gerald Hoover, Paul Paquette, Steve Carlson, Craig Bridges, and Frank Lazenby who sent original photographs and programs to be included in the constantly growing archives.

We are THIS CLOSE to having an original copy of all the programs. A special display at the 25th Annual Meeting will be presented, provided a complete set of programs can be compiled.

May I again elicit your help in completing this project. I need the following programs donated to the archives:

- Las Vegas 1970
- Las Vegas 1971
- Dallas 1974
- Kansas City 1978
- San Francisco 1979
- Chicago 1980
- Atlanta 1984
- Rome 1986
- Dallas 1992

Time is running out. Your prompt and generous response is appreciated!

Denise Barsness, CRA, COMT
Chairman, Historical Comm.

There is a new discussion group on the internet for ophthalmic photographers called Optimal. Established by Joe Warnicki and The University of Pittsburgh, Optimal is a wide open forum for discussing topics related to our profession. The information on OPTIMAL is professionally invigorating, and can help fill the gaps between OPS meetings. The discussions are both informal as well as jammed packed with tidbits and pearls of wisdom. Ideas and opinions flow freely, and the forum offers a unique alternative to publishing articles, making phone calls, or attending workshops. Also, our international members can sign on and be accessible for the cost of a local phone call. Recent topics have included FA Reactions, camera ghost stores, and mind bending queries into how to get digital imaging systems to talk to each other.

To subscribe you first need to get an internet address. If you work for an institution that offers the Internet service, contact your Internet Administrator who will give you an address and information on how to log on to the service. Once you are logged on, you need to send a message to the host computer located at The University of Pittsburgh telling it you want to subscribe. Here is the procedure:

1. Once you have logged on to your host computer (you have typed in your name and password) type: SEND

2. The computer will say: To:

3. You'll say: "maiser@vision.eei.upmc.edu" (some systems require you to say: in%"maiser@vision.eei.upmc.edu")

4. The computer will say: Subject

5. You can leave this blank, or in future correspondence enter a brief subject.

6. Then there will be space for your message. Type this message:
   subscribe optimal yourfirstname yourlastname affiliation

7. When finished type: (control) Z

You are now a subscriber to Optimal. Optimal will now send a reply giving you more detailed instructions on how to send messages.

For further information on joining Optimal contact either Marshall Tyler, (910) 716-4985, or Joe Warnicki, (412) 647-2500.

See you on the Internet!

EYESPY

Eyespy was recently spotted on trendy Yonge Street in Toronto following a brief appearance at the ICOP '94 meeting at the Hotel Intercontinental. The hotel was a winner, as were the following individuals exhibiting meritorious attributes in the following categories:

Most Likely to End Up in the Poky Award to Denice Barsness for breaking and entering a charming B&B on St. George Street. 3:00 in the morning is no time to discover a lost front door key, but a loosely locked kitchen window as no match for this urban dweller. She was last seen hoisting herself up and over the window sill... try doing this at the Intercontinental.

Most Efficient Use of Time Award to Larry and Becky Merin. Four years ago at the last ICOP meeting, little Sydney and David were merely a twinkle in Larry's eye on a secluded beach in Bali. They were both the apple of Eyespy's eye in Toronto, where they quickly became the unofficial mascots of the event.

High Priestess of Culture Award to Elizabeth Smith for squeezing in the "Miss Saigon" play, two jazz concerts, and an excursion to the Royal Ontario Museum of Art. Uh, there was a meeting going on, wasn't there Liz?...

"Using One's Head" Award to Kulwant Sehmi for providing an extra boost to the group photo. Kulwant volunteered to stand in the front row, explaining that 'with my turban, no fill-in flash will be necessary'...

Best Legs in a Skirt Award is tied by Chika Kanagami in the to-die-for black velvet frock at the Formal Banquet and Steve Thomson of BOPA who wore a kilt from his native Scotland. It was a close contest but the greater expanse of knee won out. Way to go Steve!
