ONA Publication on Nurses and Bullying in the Workplace is Available Free to Members!

ONA is pleased to present Nurses and Bullying in the Workplace: A Resource Guide. These tools and strategies have been designed to help nurses address the serious problem of nurse bullying in the nursing workplace.

This resource guide is guided by several well-known and well-established ethical and practical principles of the nursing profession. These principles charge all nurses, regardless of their nursing role, with responsibility for establishing and maintaining a healthy work environment.

ONA believes that we can decrease the human and fiscal costs of nurse bullying by equipping nurses with effective strategies to combat bullying and other disruptive behaviors in the nursing workplace. We hope that Nurses and Bullying in the Workplace: A Resource Guide will help you and your nursing colleagues advance toward the goal of reducing the occurrence of disruptive and bullying behaviors in our nursing workplaces.

ONA members can order a free copy. Please email your request to Pisith Kong at kong@oregonrn.org, or call 503-293-0011 ext. 335
