Our bargaining team met with the Providence Milwaukie Hospital (PMH) team on May 30 and continued to prioritize patient safety and staff retention proposals. PMH rejected many of our proposals, most notably those that pushed for the installation of patient restraint beds in each seclusion room, those that made more nurses qualified for an extra shift differential, and the incorporation of an objective acuity measurement into all nurse staffing decisions. PMH also rejected our proposals to prohibit charge nurses from taking a patient assignment, a cap on mandatory MDO, and more paid time for the PNCC volunteers (who dedicate a lot of energy to bettering the Hospital). PMH has also been unwilling to either compensate the bargaining team for some of their time at the table or to provide an opportunity for other nurses to donate PTO to assist the bargaining team in supporting their work. Thus far, the bargaining team has collectively put in approximately 288 hours.

PMH also appears to be pushing for language that would limit our ability to take extra shifts with the differential on weeks that we use PTO, even though it is helpful to PMH for us to work on weeks that we are supposed to have much-needed rest or otherwise attend to our personal lives. We strongly believe that we should continue to receive the extra shift differential if it is a shift above and beyond our scheduled hours, regardless of whether we take PTO.

In response, our ONA team continued to advocate for adequate staffing for optimal patient care. We made many proposals that seek to address our issues around missed meals and breaks. We want to do more to penalize the hospital’s repeated failure to provide breaks, which is illegal, by requiring that it pay the nurses double time for the amount of the break or meal that was worked through. Moreover, we proposed that the replacement nurses for breaks be assigned a safe patient load as deemed under the staffing plan. Additionally, it is essential to retain our highly-skilled nurses in order to lessen the high turnover we have seen. Therefore, we also proposed to receive four weeks advance notice of our work schedule, to establish the right to a regular schedule after five years of continuous employment, and to establish a new weekend differential.

The chart on pages 2-3 is a summary of more major proposals and PMH’s responses.

For a detailed look at all of the proposals made by our team, see the Proposal Tracking Form on our ONA website.
